HUGHES UNYIELDING IN REPLY TO BRITAIN ON OUR WAR CLAIMS

ISSUE NOW GOES TO PARIS

MANY QUESTIONS TO DECIDE

British Expected to Present Series of Legal Arguments Against Demand of United States.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—The American reply to the British Government's note concerning the sharing in German reparations to the extent of the American war damage claims was delivered today by Ambassador Kellogg to the Foreign Office.

It is understood that Washington maintains its position and answers British arguments, but the British Government declines to discuss the contents of the note, and the American Embassy has received instructions from the Department of State not to give any information concerning it.

LONDON, Jan. 5 (Associated Press).—Secretary of State Hughes, in the American reply to the British note regarding the apportionment of reparations and the settlement of war damage claims, which was presented to the Cabinet today by Foreign Secretary Chamberlain, is understood to have requested the British Government to examine a compromise proposal given by James A. Logan Jr., United States representative with the Reparation Commission, to Leith Ross of the British Treasury, some days ago.

This proposal, it is said, suggested that the payment of American army occupation costs might be extended for a much longer term of years than the twelve provided in the Wadsworth agreement, and that half of the sum might be payable in reichsmarks in Germany, thus not affecting exchange.

Washington Still Hopeful.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—High Administration officials today continued to exhibit an air of confidence over the outcome of the conversations now in progress with the British Government relative to the right of the United States to share in the Dawes plan annuities in payment of damage claims against Germany, despite the fact that Great Britain has been firmly challenging the American position.

The reference in Secretary Hughes's latest note to the British Government to an extension of the Rhine army cost annuity payments for a longer period than twelve years, and dealing with the payment of our German damage claims out of Dawes plan annuities in the same manner, spreading the payments over a period of years, does not constitute any new offer on the part of the United States.

The communication merely specifies in more detail what Secretary Hughes has from the very beginning indicated, that this Government stood ready to spread the payments so as not to have them constitute a greater burden on the Allies than they are bearing, and represents no compromise in the American position.

The press statement from London that the latest note suggests that half of the sum might be payable in reichsmarks in Germany, so as not to affect exchange, is said to be inaccurate. It is understood there is no question about payment in reichsmarks. All Dawes plan payments are payable in reichsmarks in Germany.

American Problem at Conference.

PARIS, Jan. 5.—Secretary Hughes's reply to Foreign Minister Chamberlain refusing to arbitrate the American demand for payment of war damages out of the Allies' collections from Germany under the Dawes plan leaves the question in clear-cut fashion before the meeting of the Allied Finance Ministers, which opens in Paris on Wednesday.

Without admitting the legality of the American claim under the Berlin treaty to share in collections under the Versailles treaty, France, Belgium and Italy have agreed to the equity of the principle of America sharing in the German payments. The English have adopted the position that the claim of the United States is not legally good and has no base on equity, although they are showing a slight disposition to discuss a compromise if not called on to recognize the legality of that part of the Treaty of Berlin assuring to the United States the financial privileges she would have enjoyed had she ratified the Versailles treaty.

The American war damage claims now in process of adjudication by the Mixed Claims Commission is expected to reach $350,000,000. There is another claim for $250,000,000, costs of the American Army of Occupation. Under the agreement negotiated by Assistant Secretary Wadsworth in 1923, America is entitled to share in reparations payments on a priority basis to meet this claim. The American case in the present controversy has been built on the Wadsworth plan. The memorandum of Nov. 15 suggested extension of the provision of the Wadsworth agreement.

Soviet Stops Shaw's Play For His Slap at Zinovieff

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—The political bureau of the Russian Communist Party has instructed the Soviet theatrical censorship to bring to an end the run of the Russian version of Barnard Shaw's "Saint Joan" at the Moscow Kamerny Theatre.

"This beau geste of the Kameneff-Zinovieff clique," says The Morning Post's Russian correspondent, "is the reply to Shaw's disrespectful remarks about Zinovieff & Co. in his letter to the Moscow Isvestia. The production of "Saint Joan" at the Petrograd Alexandrinsky State Theatre has been canceled.

"In order to mislead public opinion abroad and to conceal the fact that the withdrawal is really suppression, it will officially be announced that owing to the failure of 'Saint Joan' to attract the public, the play will be removed from the repertory of the Kamerny Theatre."

MUSSOLINI REBUILDS A FASCIST CABINET

NEWSPAPER MEN ARRESTED

Garibaldi's Organization of Ex-Combatants Is Disbanded in Drive on Political Groups.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Jan. 5.—Following Premier Mussolini's strong speech in the Chamber last Saturday, which marked the swing of the pendulum back to the extreme Fascist side again, the Premier today intimated his intention of giving his Cabinet a more markedly Fascist complexion. All of the Ministers, obedient to his wishes, have placed their portfolios at his disposal, including the Ministers of War and Navy, who, being officers of the armed forces of the State, do not belong to any political party.

It is not considered probable, however, that any notable changes in the make-up of the Cabinet will be made beyond replacing the Liberal Ministers Sarrocchi and Casati, whose position in the Cabinet had become particularly delicate after the passage to the opposition of the Liberal former Premier Salandra.

The first effect of the passage to the Opposition of Signor Salandra, who has also resigned his post as Italian representative to the League of Nations, has been to split the Liberal Party. Only about half a dozen Deputies remained faithful to Salandra and followed him to the opposite side of the Chamber. The remaining two dozen Liberal Deputies have declared that they will continue to vote in favor of the Government. It is considered probable that the leadership of this group of pro-Fascist Liberals will be taken by ex-Minister Sarrocchi. If this is true, it will be the best proof that Signor Sarrocchi's withdrawal from the Cabinet was not due to any animosity against the Fascist Government.

Three Ex-Premiers Oppose Mussolini.

With the passage to the opposition of Signor Salandra, Mussolini now has opposed against him in the Chamber three former Prime Ministers—Giolitti, Orlando and Salandra. Their numerical strength, however, is very small, as they can only dispose of about thirty votes. Signor Salandra's break with the Fascist Government, therefore, had only a moral value, as indicating his disapproval of the measures which Mussolini is taking against the opposition, and in no way changes the parliamentary situation.

The seizures of newspapers printing false or alarming news, the closing up of the meeting places of subversive elements and the disbanding of suspicious political clubs continued throughout the day all over Italy, the task of the police being facilitated from documents seized in searches made in the homes of some of the opposition leaders, which revealed, it is said, a widespread plot against the Government.

Among the organizations thus disbanded is the Republican Italia Libera, the organization of ex-combatants which, headed by General Peppino Garibaldi, figured in the severe disturbances that marred the Armistice Day celebration in Rome.

The police also were very active in journalistic circles in Rome, searching the homes and offices of several newspaper men and seizing all the documents that they found. They also made some arrests. Among those arrested was Camilo Cianfarra, formerly corre-

COOLIDGE MEN LOSE FIRST POSTAL TEST; VETO IS IN DOUBT

PARTY LEADERS WORK HARD

Administration Forces Confident Veto Will Be Sustained by a Narrow Margin.

MOTION TO RECOMMIT LOST

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The Administration suffered an unexpected defeat in the Senate late this afternoon when, by a vote of 52 to 30, the Senate refused to recommit the Postal Salary Increase bill to the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads. An hour before the vote Administration leaders were hopeful that the motion would prevail, and Senator Butler of Massachusetts, the President's intimate friend and spokesman, was quoted as saying that in his opinion the motion would carry with a few votes to spare.

The next and final test will come at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon when the Senate will act on the President's veto of the bill. Tonight the result appears to be in doubt, with the odds apparently favoring the Administration. Thirty-two votes will sustain the veto.

In the effort to stave off a rejection of the veto the Administration leaders are exerting every effort to win the two or three recruits whose votes are necessary to make a victory for Mr. Coolidge certain. Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, who voted against recommitting this afternoon, and who, it is stated, will vote to override the veto, will confer with the President tomorrow morning. Secretary Mellon and Senator Pepper will take part in the conference, which is believed to be a last minute effort to swing the Pennsylvania Senator to the Administration side.

Senator Reed, however, was not the only regular to leave the party trenches today. Senators Wadsworth of New York, Fernald of Maine, Dale of Vermont, Edge of New Jersey, Gooding of Idaho, Jones of Washington, McLean of Connecticut and Stanfield and McNary of Oregon refused to support the motion to recommit, and the prediction is freely made that all of them will be found voting the same way tomorrow. Just one Democrat, Senator Dial of South Carolina, voted with the Administration. Senator King of Utah was paired in favor of recommittal, but Senator Bruce of Maryland surprised his colleagues by voting against it.

Several Senators who were absent today will be present when the vote on the veto is taken tomorrow afternoon. A report persists that at least two Senators who voted today to recommit the bill will vote tomorrow to override the veto. Three other Senators are said to have refused to say how they will vote, and on their decision the result largely hangs. The one thing certain is that the vote will be close. Leaders on both sides admit that.

Judge Rosalsky Calls for More Police And Stricter Laws to Reduce Crime

When Judge Otto A. Rosalsky was empaneling jurors yesterday in his part of General Sessions he referred to the fact that the calendar in the criminal courts was smaller than it had been in many years, but added: "This does not mean that crime is decreasing, however. I still maintain that this is a lawless community, with real desperadoes and bandits who ought to be in jail."

The Court then declared that something in the way of legislation was needed to alleviate the condition in the city brought about by the brazenness of criminals in committing crimes of violence, and continued:

"New York City is the dumping grounds for criminals of the United States. We need more police. We need a Secret Service, new laws investing the authorities here with more power and a system whereby every person who has served a term or terms in prison should be under the supervision of the Department of Welfare.

"I believe in extreme severity and long-term sentences for habitual criminals who engage in crimes of violence. I hope the Legislature will pass laws which will permit us to deal more successfully with such cases.

"We are making little progress in handling a difficult situation," Judge Rosalsky said, after referring to the different degrees of murder and deploring what he termed their "nonsensical differentiation." He said that the people of the city are faced with a "great crime problem," and declared that "Commissioner Enright is doing his best with the men on hand."

Then he said: "You can't approach criminal cases along scientific standards. I believe that we should have a greater police force and have them on call at all hours of the night."

Referring to the fact that because there are but 702 indictments awaiting trial, as against 2,087 at the beginning of 1922, Judge Rosalsky commented: "Our criminal calendar is now in a healthy state and in a little more time the Judges will be waiting for indictments to be handed up by the Grand Juries."

Judge Rosalsky then spoke in commendation of the scheme to permit offenders under certain conditions to make restitution to needy victims of their thefts and said that this practice was of more service to society and worked greater good all around than the imposition of moderate jail terms.

FINISHED CATHEDRAL ASSURED, SAYS BISHOP

Pledges Already Received Make Raising of $15,000,000 Fund Certain, He Asserts.

WALLS TO RISE IN SPRING

Dr. Manning Tells Churchmen of Unifying Influence Project Has Had on the City.

A sum sufficient to make the completion of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine a "settled fact" has been assured, declared Bishop William T. Manning last night at a dinner-conference of church committees for the district of central Manhattan.

Representatives of some of the largest churches in that district reported great enthusiasm in their parishes and that they were busily preparing for the mass meeting at Madison Square Garden on the night of Jan. 18, which is to open the $15,000,000 drive.

"We already have a goodly sum definitely assured," said Bishop Manning, who was introduced by Supreme Court Justice Edward R. Finch. "We have enough to make the project a settled fact. We are going to see those walls begin to rise this Spring."

The statement was received with an outburst of applause. Bishop Manning called on the chairmen of the committees and their assistants to visit prospective donors in person and not to solicit by mail unless absolutely necessary.

Earlier in the day a group representing the arts met at luncheon at the Hotel Astor and pledged their best efforts to raise $150,000 to construct one of the bays in the nave.

A Great Unifying Influence.

Bishop Manning spoke last night of the cathedral as a great unifying influence and said he was delighted to observe that the idea of its completion was laying hold of the mind of the community.

On a visit to a prominent man in Wall Street yesterday, Bishop Manning said, he was told of the great interest with which the project was being regarded in the financial centre. A financier told him that he was surprised at the type of men who had promised to help in the undertaking—men not ordinarily identified with such movements.

"This man said that, judging from the way the movement was going, he had no doubt of the results," he added. "I have been in New York for many years, but I have never seen it so deeply stirred in regard to any religious project as it is with the idea of building the cathedral. When that sort of spirit is aroused you are bound to go far.

"A country rector writes that every person in his parish will make a gift and that individuals in other parishes in his section will also contribute.

Persons of All Faiths Help.

"When did it happen before that people of all faiths gave help toward the building of a great Christian cathedral? I don't know of any case where that happened before. But that is what is happening in New York today. Think of what that means in terms of spiritual influence! Everybody is gathering about delighted to see the cathedral built. Such spirit is a marvelous influence for good. The message of that country rector is going to be duplicated many times in this diocese.

"There are no parishes on which we depend to take the lead so much as we do on those in Central Manhattan. We have spent a year in preparation. Now we are ready for action. We depend on you to fill Madison Square Garden on the evening of the 18th."

Bishop Manning then announced that this Spring would see the walls of the Cathedral begin to rise. He urged the workers to visit every individual in the parish whether they thought they would win a response or not.

Before calling on Bishop Manning Judge Finch said there was not one cathedral in the United States that people go on pilgrimages to see, whereas people from all over the world make pilgrimages to old world cathedrals.

"This is an effort to build in New York City," he said, "a cathedral that will be the largest in the English speaking world and one of the three greatest in the world."

Joseph P. Day of the Business Men's Division reported for Chairman Haley Fiske and announced that a group of prominent men in various commercial and other lines had decided to enlist their efforts on behalf of the project. He emphasized the fact that the under-

HEARST AND ZIEGFELD IN BIG THEATRE DEAL

MAY LEASE COSMOPOLITAN

Playhouses in Other Cities May Be Constructed for Ziegfeld by Hearst and Brisbane.

Florenz Ziegfeld Jr., in association with William Randolph Hearst and Arthur Brisbane, will build two theatres on the southeast and southwest corners of Sixth Avenue and Fifty-fourth Street, and will probably follow this by putting up playhouses in Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston. As a forerunner to this important alliance, Mr. Ziegfeld is negotiating to lease Mr. Hearst's Cosmopolitan Theatre at Columbus Circle and will take almost immediate possession with one of his own productions.

This information, which came last night from an authoritative source, is believed to be one of the most important theatrical developments of recent years. Reports of such an alliance have been current on Broadway for many weeks. Mr. Ziegfeld still refused to comment last night, saying that if he had any news he would make an announcement in due time.

It was learned positively, however, that the two new New York theatres would be known as the Ziegfeld and the Billie Burke. The Ziegfeld, which will be on the southeast corner of Sixth Avenue and Fifty-fourth Street, will be considerably the larger. The other, on the southwest corner, will probably seat about one thousand, but will nevertheless be equipped to house musical productions. Both theatres will be built by the Messrs. Hearst and Brisbane, and will then be leased for long terms to Mr. Ziegfeld.

The new alliance was the occasion of much comment from theatrical men, and from many angles. One of the principal points of discussion was the fact that, with the construction of two playhouses at Fifty-fourth Street for so important a producer as Mr. Ziegfeld, and by his taking over of a theatre at Columbus Circle, the theatrical centre takes a definite step northward.

With Jolson's Theatre already established at Seventh Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, it was pointed out that the movement northward is in no sense a new one, but it was believed that Mr. Ziegfeld's action might lead to the Fifties being looked upon as favored theatrical territory.

Another angle that received general comment was the fact that the new step marks the entrance of Mr. Hearst into the legitimate theatre field, even though he will be interested only in the real estate end. Coupled with this step comes a renewal of an earlier report that Mr. Hearst will devote himself less and less to motion pictures hereafter, and more to the legitimate theatre.

From a technical angle showmen were much interested in Mr. Ziegfeld's action. Mr. Ziegfeld has been an unusually prolific producer this season, and at present three of his productions are running in Forty-second Street houses. In only one case, however—the "Follies," at the New Amsterdam—has he an interest in the theatre itself. The remaining productions, "Kid Boots" and "Annie Dear" are in theatres controlled by the Selwyns.

Since huge profits have accordingly been earned by the Ziegfeld productions for the owners of these theatres, the Ziegfeld action is regarded as an inevitable step. By leasing the Hearst-Brisbane theatres outright Mr. Ziegfeld will be enabled to keep for himself the profits of the theatres, which, in the cases of big musical shows, are almost invariably larger than those of the shows themselves.

The Cosmopolitan was rebuilt and redecorated by Mr. Hearst at a cost of about $700,000, when he took possession of it two years ago. It is an open secret that it has not been successful as a picture theatre. It is at present dark, following the closing of a motion picture there on Saturday night, and will probably be reopened by Mr. Ziegfeld in about a month. The opening attraction will be either Mr. Ziegfeld's production of "The Comic Supplement," now in rehearsal, or "Louis XIV.," which he will start rehearsing next week.

The new theatres on Sixth Avenue, it is understood, will be ready in about a year. The construction of playhouses in Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia is almost sure to be undertaken before the New York theatres are opened.

Hearst Confirms Report.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 5.—William Randolph Hearst tonight confirmed the report that he and Arthur Brisbane are to join with Florenz Ziegfeld Jr. in theatrical ventures and in the building of a chain of theatres in large cities of the country. Mr. Hearst said he had no intention of withdrawing from the movies as a producer or curtailing the output of his International and Cosmopolitan moving picture companies. On the contrary, his present plans provide for expansion of his cinema interests. While declining to issue a quoted statement Mr. Hearst, through a Los Angeles attorney, said details of his theatrical venture had not yet been completed.

STONE IS NOMINATED FOR SUPREME BENCH AS M'KENNA RESIGNS

RETIRING JUSTICE HONORED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The nomination of Harlan Fiske Stone of New York, now Attorney General, to be an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, was sent to the Senate this afternoon by President Coolidge, following an announcement earlier in the day by Chief Justice Taft that Associate Justice Joseph McKenna had tendered his resignation and that it had been accepted by the President.

Attorney General Stone's selection for the Supreme bench came as a surprise to political Washington, where the impression prevailed that President Coolidge would nominate a Pacific Coast jurist or lawyer for the vacancy to be caused by Justice McKenna's resignation, which was known in advance of its formal tender.

Justice McKenna was appointed from California. None of the other justices of the Supreme Court is from the Pacific Coast. Geographically the court is represented by one member each from Ohio, Wyoming, New York, Utah and Minnesota and two each from Massachusetts and Tennessee.

Nothing came to light after the nomination of Mr. Stone to indicate who might succeed him as Attorney General. The element of surprise over his selection was increased by the fact that he has been a member of the Cabinet for only nine months. He was appointed Attorney General on April 7, following the resignation of Harry M. Daugherty of Ohio, as a result of the Senate inquiry into the conduct of the Department of Justice.

Talk of Beck for Attorney General.

The explanation given at the White House of the resignation of Attorney General Stone after so short a period of service in the Cabinet was that it had been Mr. Stone's life ambition to be a member of the Supreme Court. The decision to nominate him, it was said, was made on Saturday, and Mr. Stone was notified by the President today that the nomination would be made.

Without any authoritative information on the subject, the man most talked about tonight as a possible successor to Mr. Stone is James M. Beck of New York, now Solicitor General. He is Mr. Stone's chief deputy and occupied a similar position under Attorney General Daugherty. There has been talk that Mr. Beck might be offered the post of Ambassador to Great Britain. This was the outcome of reports that Frank B. Kellogg desired to retire.

It was made known recently that Justice McKenna had informed the President of his intention to resign. "Resignation," in this case, is a technical term which is a misnomer in that a Supreme Court Justice who has served ten years and has reached the age of 70 years may be retired with full pay.

Justice McKenna was the oldest member of the Supreme Court in point of service and the second oldest in years. He was born in 1843, while Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes was born in 1841. Justice McKenna, who had served in Congress from California, resigned while serving his fourth term to become United States Circuit Judge in 1892, by appointment of President Harrison, and left that position in 1897 to become Attorney General under President McKinley.

On Dec. 16 of that year President McKinley nominated him for Associate Justice of the Supreme Court to succeed Justice Stephen J. Field of California, who resigned. He took his seat on the bench on Jan. 26, 1898. Justice McKenna was eligible to retire in 1913, when he reached the age of 70.

Simple Ceremony at Parting.

Ever since the death of his wife last year, Justice McKenna, it was understood, has been inclined to lay down the burden of judicial cares. He will be 82 years old next August, and began his public life as a member of the California Legislature in March, 1866. Justice Holmes, who ranks next in seniority, was appointed an Associate Justice by President Roosevelt in 1902.

A simple but impressive ceremony marked the announcement in the Supreme Court today that Justice McKenna would retire. Justice McKenna, filed into the historic courtroom at noon

FIRST WOMAN TAKES OFFICE AS GOVERNOR

Mrs. Ross Sworn In and Assumes Her Duties as Chief Executive of Wyoming.

RELIES ON "DIVINE HELP"

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Jan. 5 (Associated Press).—A climax to more than fifty-five years of equal rights for women in Wyoming came shortly after noon today when Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross formally took over her duties as Governor of the State.

Inaugural ceremonies, Spartan-like in their severity and simplicity, marked the induction into office of the first woman Governor of any Commonwealth in the United States.

Calling for "divine guidance," Mrs. Ross, heavily swathed in mourning for her husband, the late Governor William B. Ross, stepped into the place made vacant by his death less than three months ago.

Tears came to her eyes as Acting Governor Lucas, in a brief address pledged to her the fullest cooperation of the State officials, called upon the electorate of Wyoming to accord loyalty behind her and paid a glowing tribute to the virtues of her husband.

Address by the New Governor.

Mrs. Ross addressed the assemblage in the Senate Chamber as "my friends," and continued:

"Owing to the tragic and unprecedented circumstances which surround my induction into office, I have felt it not only unnecessary but inappropriate for me to now enter into such discussion of policies as usually constitutes an inaugural address.

"This occasion does not mark the beginning of a new Administration, but rather the resumption of that which was inaugurated in this chamber two years ago. It is well understood, I am sure, that it is my purpose to continue, as I am convinced it is the desire of my State that I should, in so far as changing conditions will permit, the program and policies then launched.

"I avail myself of this opportunity to acknowledge the gracious consideration shown me by Governor Lucas during the period he served as Executive of our State, and to say that I look forward confidently to that same degree of cooperation with him and with other State officers and with the Legislature that during my husband's term lightened for him the burdens of official life and contributed to his satisfaction and joy in service.

"In approaching the responsibilities of this exalted office I do so with a profound sense of the high obligation it imposes upon me. That the people of Wyoming should have placed such trust in me—in a large measure I feel an expression of their recognition of my husband's devotion to their interests and of his contribution to the progress of the State—calls forth in this solemn hour my deepest gratitude and challenges me to rise to the opportunities for service thus made possible, and to dedicate to the task before me every faculty of mind and body with which I may be endowed.

"Such dedication I now offer to my State, relying upon divine help for strength and guidance."

Country-Wide Congratulations.

Tonight, flushed with happiness and excitement and saddened in turn with the thought of her recent bereavement, the new Governor went through a heap of congratulatory telegrams from persons of all walks of life the country over. Included in the lot was one from Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson of Texas, who after Jan. 20 will share with Mrs. Ross the distinction of being a woman Governor.

It was a fitting and added tribute to the womanhood of the country that the oath of office was administered by one of the men—Chief Justice C. N. Potter of the Wyoming Supreme Court—who on Sept. 30, 1869, drafted the clause granting equal rights to the women of

HITS MAYOR'S SUBWAY PLAN

SUBMITS NEW PROPOSAL

Suggests Four-Tracking L. R. T. Above 96th Street and Diverting Bronx Traffic to New 8th Av. Line.

Controller Charles L. Craig testified yesterday in the transit investigation before Justice John V. McAvoy that he considered that the charges against the Transit Commissioners, inspired by Mayor Hylan and preferred by the Board of Estimate, had been actuated by political motives intended to embarrass Governor Alfred E. Smith, then a candidate for re-election. Mr. Craig said that he had not voted for the resolution directing their presentation to the Governor. He had not even read the charges finally approved by the board, he said, after the original set had been toned down under threat of legal action by Chairman George McAneny and the other members of the Transit Commission, but declared he had been told that they had been changed without his knowledge at a conference of the other members of the board in the Mayor's office just before the open meeting at which they were adopted.

Mr. Craig asserted that ever since he had taken office on Jan. 1, 1918, he had been a consistent advocate of the municipal operation of any new subways to be built by the city and an opponent of the construction of any new subways as additions to the B. M. T. or Interborough systems, and intimated he had big doubts about the Mayor. He pointed out that Mayor Hylan's plan called for the connection of all new lines, except a couple of comparatively unimportant lines, and including the proposed Washington Heights and Brooklyn crosstown subways, with the B. M. T. system.

All to Connect With B. M. T.

"The plan, which you have referred to here as 'Mayor Hylan's Plan for Real Rapid Transit,' could very properly be entitled 'Mayor Hylan's Plan for the Enlargement of the B. M. T. System,'" Mr. Craig added, "because every railroad that is laid out under that plan is an enlargement of that system with the exception of one or two, like the line going down Utica Avenue toward Jamaica Bay. There was one thing upon which the Mayor and the Transit Commission were in singular agreement, that all the new lines, except one or two, were to be connected with the B. M. T."

The Controller said he had been "adamant" against any proposal to add new subways to either of the present systems and that, much as he disliked lack of harmony in the Board of Estimate, he had been compelled to oppose the Mayor's plan.

Mr. Craig presented a plan of his own to relieve present subway congestion by four-tracking the Interborough Broadway subway north of Ninety-sixth Street and diverting the Bronx traffic now carried on that line into the proposed new Eighth Avenue subway at 103d Street. He disclosed that he had been in conference with officials of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company on this matter and had obtained from them an estimate that the work of four-tracking could be done for $30,000,000 without interfering with operation and that the Interborough might be willing to go into such a scheme, provided that company received trackage rights on the proposed Eighth Avenue line, which Mr. Craig said he would have operated by the city.

Committed to 5-Cent Fare.

Controller Craig declared himself irrevocably opposed to any increase of the 5-cent fare guaranteed by the city's contracts with the Interborough and B. M. T. and, speaking of the Interborough in particular, declared that if that company could not operate profitably on a 5-cent fare it should give up its contract. Declining to speak for any other members of the Board of Estimate, the Controller explained his own failure to vote favorably on requisitions received from the Transit Commission by saying that the commission had received, under the law creating it, the power to modify the 5-cent fare provisions of the contracts and that he did not wish to vote for extensions of the present subway systems while the validity of that power was being tested in the courts.

Henry L. Sherman, counsel for Justice McAvoy, at the close of the afternoon's session began to question Mr. Craig concerning the city's ability to pay for the extensive independent subway system proposed by Mayor Hylan and the Board of Transportation, and is expected to continue on that line when Mr. Craig resumes the stand this morning. Mr. Craig said that the city's present debt limit, due to its increase by $20,000,000 by the retirement of city securities on Jan. 1 as the money provided for that purpose in the 1925 budget became available, was approximately $50,000,000.

Questioned concerning what he had meant in his warning against "frittering away" the city's borrowing margin, Mr. Craig cited the proposed East River bridge which, he said, was "to connect Wanamaker's with Brooklyn."

Mr. Craig declared that the construction of this bridge was stopped because he prevailed upon the Legislature to write into a bill that no part of the money which Mayor Hylan and his associates sought to raise by bond issue could be used for its construction. "Even

Franco-German Tariff War Is Precipitated As Germans Break Off Trade Negotiations

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 5.—The Franco-German negotiations for a commercial agreement to replace the régime under the Versailles Treaty which comes to an end Jan. 10 have been definitely broken off.

The conversations which had been dragging for many weeks in Paris could not in any case have produced a definite agreement in time. But the intention was to establish a temporary modus vivendi enabling trade relations to proceed normally between the two countries until a definite commercial treaty again entered into force. This hope now has also gone by the board so that Jan. 10 will bring the commencement of a tariff war between France and Germany.

The delegations of the German iron and steel industries who were to arrive in Paris tomorrow to sign an agreement for a modus vivendi have canceled their visit, while the delegations of other trades and agricultural interests now in Paris today informed the French that negotiations must be considered as broken off "in view of the changed situation arising from the allied note to Germany on failure to comply with the disarmament clauses."

The French do not appear unduly alarmed at the prospect of the coming commercial struggle. It is considered here that the German attitude is nothing but a political manoeuvre which can be countered by a firm stand. The industries of Lorraine and Alsace will be affected considerably, their principal markets being German. But the experts hope the difficulties will be tided over, especially in view of the fact that the Germans need the products of Lorraine and Alsace just as badly as the French need German markets.

Mayor to Start for Palm Beach on Jan. 29; Says His Wife's Orders Are Implicit

Mayor John F. Hylan announced to his colleagues of the Board of Estimate yesterday that he expected to leave here, accompanied by Mrs. Hylan, for his annual vacation at Palm Beach, on Jan. 29. He explained that he had been trying unsuccessfully to find train accommodations on any one of the two or three days preceding that date. The Mayor is expected to remain away six weeks.

"My reason for mentioning this now," said the Mayor, "is that all important matters which must be properly disposed of right away may be brought up and attended to. Others which require my perusal and vote but which do not demand immediate action can wait."

Joseph A. Guider, newly elected Borough President of Brooklyn, inquired: "Mr. Mayor, if you are going to take a vacation in February, why can't we all vacate?"

"That word 'vacate' is unfortunate," interpolated Murray Hulbert, President of the Board of Aldermen. "I would suggest 'recreate' as a substitute."

"There is just one time of year when my wife insists that she be obeyed implicitly," said Mayor Hylan, "and it is when my vacation is due. She insists then on having her own way and she gets away with it, too."

"My wife insists upon the same thing," echoed Mr. Hulbert.

Craig Says City Should Run New Subways would we build subways if $41,000,000 had gone here in one sweep?" he said.

Robert Ridgway, chief engineer of the Board of Transportation, was the only other witness of the day. Mr. Ridgway testified that as chief engineer of the Transit Commission he had estimated that the cost of the subways projected in "Mayor Hylan's Plan for Real Rapid Transit" would be $830,000,000 instead of $600,000,000, as estimated by the Mayor.

Mr. Ridgway declined to make any guess as to the probable result of the operation of the proposed Washington Heights line, desired to throw light on the previous assertion of former Justice Clarence J. Shearn, special counsel of the Transit Commission, that the increased cost of construction, more than double that of the dual contract lines, would prevent operation at a five-cent fare. The law that created the Board of Transportation provides that the board must submit such an estimate of expected results in communicating its adoption of a subway route to the Board of Estimate. Mr. Ridgway said he had not yet completed this estimate but that he was trying to do so as quickly as possible because he knew that John H. Delaney, Chairman of the Board of Transportation, wanted it.

Court Silences Mooney.

During this phase of Mr. Ridgway's examination, an assertion was made by Edmund L. Mooney, special counsel to the Board of Transportation, that Mr. Sherman in asking certain questions was "striving for headlines."

"There is nobody striving for any headlines here except counsel now speaking," said Justice McAvoy.

"Please sit down until I call you again," Justice McAvoy directed. "I do not want any oration."

Mr. Craig apparently enjoyed being a witness. He entered the meeting room of the New York City Bar Association, 42 West Forty-fourth Street, where the hearing was held, accompanied by Deputy Controller Charles F. Kerrigan and Philip D. Hoyt, Secretary of the Finance Department. Unlike the Mayor and other witnesses, practically all of whom have had counsel and most of whom have had subordinates to supply requested information, Mr. Craig testified without assistance other than memoranda which he had in a brief bag. The Controller smiled frequently. He carried two pairs of eyeglasses and at one point mounted one pair on his thumb and the other on the forefinger of his right hand and used them to punctuate points in his testimony.

He began his testimony by telling of the conditions in regard to transit that prevailed when he first took office with the Hylan Administration on Jan. 1, 1918. He put the blame for the original delay in completing the subways of the dual system on the old Public Service Commission and declared that all these lines should have been completed and in operation by Jan. 1, 1917.

"Every minute of postponement after Jan. 1, 1917, meant that the Interborough were crowding people onto their cars in an utterly indescribable and indecent fashion and reaping the whole benefit of the profit of postponement," he said. "The same thing was going on, but not to the same degree, on the B. R. T. lines."

Mr. Craig testified that he had written the Board of Estimate's declaration of policy on the five-cent fare question after suggestion of modification of the contracts between the city and the operating companies came from Lewis Nixon, then Public Service Commissioner. The declaration, he said, was prepared in response to an application of the Interborough for an increased fare and was presented to the board on Jan. 10, 1919, when it was adopted unanimously.

Wrote Board's Declaration.

Referring to Contract No. 3, between the City and the Interborough, the declaration read:

"After the requirements of the Interborough are met, if any surplus remains, the City of New York is entitled to receive from the five-cent fares sufficient to pay the interest and sinking fund requirements on its investment. Anything above that produced by the five-cent fares is divided between the Interborough and the City of New York. There is no prospect that the City of New York will ever receive anything whatever from this arrangement, either to carry or return its investment or as profit.

"The only guarantee the Interborough has is the income from the five-cent fare. The railroad and equipment belong to the City of New York, free and clear. The city is entitled to have the Interborough operate the entire system for forty-nine years at a five-cent fare and no more.

"If the contract is as unprofitable as claimed by the Interborough, it is to the interest of the public that it be terminated and a new arrangement made whereby adequate and proper service may be assured to the public and the cost of that service borne by those who enjoy its benefits."

Doubt as to Which Should Pay.

Mr. Craig said that the reason many of the requisitions of Mr. Delaney as Transit Construction Commissioner had not been honored by the Board of Estimate was that questions of principle as to whether the city or the companies should pay for certain expenses of construction were involved.

"There were other reasons," he continued.

"One reason was that the Transit Commission had come into existence. They had come into existence after a very—I might almost say—bitter opposition on the part of those who were then the elective officers in contending that the home rule principle was being violated by the creation of the Transit Commission, and the very act under which the Transit Commission came into existence imposed upon them as their primary duty, to strike from these contracts, Nos. 3 and 4, the provision for a five-cent fare, which we had been on record for for more than two years, as being good for forty-nine years.

"Yet, here we were confronted, then, with what the Transit Commission claimed to be sweeping legislative authority to rewrite those contracts; and the only effect of these requisitions which had been laid down there by Mr. Delaney some of them before the Transit Commission took office, was for us to add more city money to the improvement and enhancement of the lines which the Transit Commission were to release from the obligation of these contracts, so as to pave the way for an increased fare and the tax-exempt features of the lines not owned by the city, and the other features that I suppose you will come to later on, in relation to the so-called readjustment plan."

Falling Prices a Factor.

Mr. Craig said that falling prices had had a great deal to do with the board rejecting some construction contracts and that in many cases the Transit Commission had been responsible for delay in not advertising contracts promptly. He explained that the failure of a requisition to get a sufficient number of votes to be approved killed the requisition and that Mr. McAneny, as a former member of the Board, knew this and should have required formal notice. He said that the Transit Commission was always represented at meetings of the Board of Estimate and knew what had happened, even if it did not receive a direct reply to all its communications to the board.

"I might add that the Transit Commission was not over-keen in answering official communications," Mr. Craig said. "I have proof to substantiate that whenever you want to go into it."

Mr. Craig caused a laugh by his reference to his sentence to a term in jail for contempt of court, in reply to a question as to what he had done to try to get the consent of Lindley M. Garrison, then receiver of the B. R. T., to a modification of the contract to permit the substitution of a subway for an elevated structure for the easterly part of the Fourteenth Street-Eastern line.

"Well, you know I am very timid about talking about any receivers or anything that happened in the Federal Court," he said.

Wanted to Be Co-Receiver.

"I wanted to be a co-receiver for the line, without pay," said the Controller, "and to try to straighten out some of these things, so that the Judge who had charge of the receivership would know something about it from a point of view other than the security holders and the company, or those who were interested in the reorganization. That desire was not realized, and not only was it not realized, but I was also invited to go elsewhere, and the Judge who declined to permit me to be a co-receiver did his utmost to send me to jail for a couple of months."

"The Fourteenth Street line is now being operated?" asked Mr. Sherman.

"It is only being operated partially, because I went after Mr. McAneny and insisted that he make some use of that very investment he referred to under the East River, even if he had to lower the cars down with a derrick," Mr. Craig replied.

Questioned about the charges against the Transit Commissioners, Mr. Craig said that the matter was first brought up at what he called an "irregular" meeting of the Board of Estimate by Murray Hulbert, President of the Board of Aldermen, in October, 1923. He said that this meeting, at which he was not present or represented, passed a resolution directing the Corporation Counsel to advise the Board whether the Transit Commissioners could be removed for alleged neglect, and, if so, what steps should be taken for their removal.

Mr. Craig said that he heard nothing more of this matter until a year later, in October, 1924, when the charges were presented to the board. "Naturally I assumed," he continued, "that the President of the Board of Aldermen, who initiated the matter, and the Mayor and his Corporation Counsel had evidence upon which to prepare these charges."

"Was any evidence submitted to the board at this time?" Mr. Sherman asked.

"There was no evidence submitted with the charges when they were submitted to the board," Mr. Craig replied. "They were referred to the committee of the whole. The day that the committee met I was actually absent, but I had requested Deputy Controller Prial not to participate in this action because I had a view of it that was entirely my own that it was a very inexpedient season of the year.

Not Invited to Mayor's Office.

"This matter was on the calendar of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for Oct. 24, 1924, which was subsequent to the meeting of the Committee of the Whole. The Board of Estimate and Apportionment was due to meet, and it was calendared to meet at that date at 10:30 in the morning. I was there, and I waited for the other members to come to the meeting. Finally I began to get curious to see how long I had waited, and I found that I had waited an hour and six minutes.

"Whereupon, at 11:36 A. M., the other members of the board came up from the office of the Mayor, where they had been prior to that time in conference, to which I had not been requested or urged to attend, or notified of, for that matter, and an announcement was made that the Secretary had a resolution, which was read. This is the resolution which has been certified by the Secretary as having been adopted. There was not any intimation, in any manner, shape or form, that any change of any kind, by amplification or by excision or any other manner, had been made in these charges. When it came to the roll-call, I declined to vote upon the matter, for a reason which I have expressed then and I have expressed since."

Calls Charges Slap at Smith.

"How did you regard the charges at that time?" Mr. Sherman inquired.

"I regarded these charges at that time as purely a political move intended to embarrass Governor Smith in his candidacy for re-election in New York City," Mr. Craig replied. "It seemed to me that there were not entitled to be dignified with much discussion or much action at that stage and that the Transit Commission could just as well be removed on charges made two weeks later as they could then; and that it was not in the interest of the public, and particularly not in the interest of the success of Governor Smith, whom all of us in New York City were interested in—at least I was interested in; I will still speak for myself as a member of the board—that it was contrary to his interest and the success of the party ticket to scatter the attention of the people at that time on discussions of things of this kind; that they had better be concentrated on the election of Al Smith.

"And that was apprehensive that misuse would be made of these charges. Immediately they were acted upon by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, and the Mayor had evidently been impressed by that feeling of apprehension on my part, because as soon as the roll was called and it had received a sufficient number of votes from the other members, he arose out of his seat and he made an announcement in which he said that in order that there might not be any suggestion that this was a political matter he would request the Secretary not to forward the charges to the Governor until after election."

Never Read Accusations.

The colloquy on the charges follows:

Q. These charges were made public at that time, weren't they, as being a matter before the board? A. They were in the hands of everybody.

Q. But had you seen these new charges as amended at all up to the time that you asked to vote on it? A. I never saw them and I have never seen them since. I know that they are published in the minutes of the Board of Estimate and I know that I have copies of those minutes, but I have not had sufficient interest in this matter, particularly since you ad Judge McAvoy took these charges up, to follow this thing through, or to read those charges, or to see how sufficiently they were sustained. I may say I have had a great many other things to do, which is probably the real reason why, that I had to give my time and attention to, things that required action by me.

Q.—I want to ask you about the time—A.—Let me add this: You asked me about, if I had heard about; these changes. Some controversy arose after the meeting of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment on the 24th of October. A word was brought to me through a source not connected with the Board of Estimate and Apportionment that these charges that had been voted upon had been changed in the Mayor's office before the meeting that morning. I then called up Mr. McGowan, who was Secretary to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, and asked him, personally, what he knew with regard to that. He said that the charges had been materially changed; that they had been cut down; and I said to him that I thought it was his duty to the city to call the matter to the attention of the Controller, who was asked to vote upon this resolution before the roll was called, and his answer was that he had no instructions to that effect. I did not know of these changes in that way and to that extent, but I have no means of checking them up, because at that time they had not been made public.

Validated at Hurried Meeting.

In his intimation that Mayor Hylan at one time had been willing to build new subways to connect with the present B. M. T. lines, Mr. Craig asserted that the connection between the proposed Washington Heights subway and the B. M. T. Broadway subway at Fifty-ninth Street and Seventh Avenue had been validated at a hurriedly called meeting of the Board of Estimate on Aug. 7, 1925. Mr. Craig said he had arranged to go into the country on the afternoon of that day and that on suggestion of Mr. Delaney who had gone to Europe, adjournment of the Board of Estimate had previously been taken formally to Sept. 27, and an agreement reached not to take up any transit matters before that time.

"Was that the time when there was an agitation here by what was known as the Waterman Committee of 1,000 to 'say it with shovels?'" Mr. Sherman asked.

"They were active about that period," replied Mr. Craig, who said that he had not considered the matter important enough to cause him to abandon his visit to the country. He said that he asked Mr. Prial, his deputy, to represent him there and had sent a letter to the board declaring that approval by the board of the Washington Heights route with its connection at Seventh Avenue would mean that the people of upper Manhattan were to be "delivered to the tender mercies of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit crowd." The letter also said:

"Such a present to the B. M. T. would not be altogether remarkable, as the B. R. T. has just been reorganized under this name by interests identified with the Chase National Bank. During Mayor Hylan's incumbency of office the Chase National Bank has had the use of hundreds of millions of New York City money and sinking fund moneys placed at its disposal by his action. Whether the same influence that has brought about this condition has been responsible for the proposed delivery of Manhattan people to the tenderness of the reorganized B. R. T. is a matter in regard to which further light should be had."

All to Connect With the B. M. T.

Mr. Craig said that he sent with the letter a resolution requesting the Transit Commission to take the necessary steps to award contracts for the Central Park West and Eighth Avenue subway without the connection at Seventh Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, and added that the board thought so little of the letter that it did not even make it part of the record.

"There was one thing that Mayor Hylan and the Transit Commission were in singular agreement upon," Mr. Craig continued, "and that was that all the new lines that were to be built by the city were to be connected with the B. M. T. and in one or two cases with the Interborough. That was the first time it was taken up. Everything prior to that was just simply manoeuvres, and preliminary work leading up to that condition, and that action proposed there was the first actual overt act to use the city's credit to an extent that it would exhaust it to provide new lines under Mayor Hylan's plan, every one of which would be connected with the B. M. T. and would be operated with that system when they were put into operation.

"And I say, in that particular, Mayor Hylan and the Transit Commission were in singular agreement, because every proposition brought forward from the Transit Commission before, or since, for that matter, was for the enlargement at city expense of the operating rights and contracts and systems of the B. M. T. and the Interborough. But the Interborough was a very small factor in this $600,000,000 plan. It was practically all B. M. T."

Against Extending Private Lines.

Mr. Craig said he believed that the proposal to build an independent subway system might have been with the thought of saving the B. M. T. half the cost of construction, but modified this opinion when informed that, although there was such a provision in the Interborough contract there was none in the contract with the B. M. T.

"That only emphasizes the fact that extreme generosity was being shown to them," Mr. Craig said.

"So you opposed all the Mayor's plans of Sept. 6, 1922, did you not?" Mr. Sherman asked.

"Mr. Sherman," replied Mr. Craig, "I have always, since I have been in office, been unalterably opposed to further extension of private operations of the transit lines built by the City of New York. That has been my position from the very beginning, that the city has had a sickening experience with these private operators, and that we will never have any real rapid transit relief until it is provided by the City of New York, and that we will never have any decent operation until it is provided in like manner. So that I have been adamant, to use the expression, against any proposition which, when it came to a show down, was merely an addition of the lines to the B. M. T. or the Interborough.

"And, on the other hand, I have been very ready at all times to vote all the money that the city can raise, without any contract with the B. M. T. or Interborough or any other private company. That was a condition that was well understood in the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, that I was irrevocably opposed to any plan that used up the city's debt margin for the purpose merely of making addition to these existing lines, and so that in that sense, if it is a fair answer to your question, as every line in Mayor Hylan's plan was, to use his own description of it, hooked up with the B. M. T. I was opposed to that plan in toto, and would necessarily have to assert that position, as much as I disliked to have any lack of harmony of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, whenever the Mayor was tempted, as he did attempt on Aug. 3, 1923, to carry that scheme into effect.

"Just Kissing It Along."

Mr. Craig declared that the reservations, mentioned by Mr. Ridgeway in his testimony, meaning an informal arrangement by which the plans for the actual connection with the B. M. T. lines were to be held by the Commission until notified by the Board, were of no consequence or effect whatever.

"That was just simply kissing it along, to use the vernacular, until the route could be legalized," he said. "Of course, the Board of Estimate could not attach any strings to its consent and later on it could be mandamused to approve the construction contract if the terms of the contract were proper terms."

Mr. Sherman asked whether Mr. Craig recalled that the Board, as a result of conferences between the Commission and its Conference Committee, had apparently decided to go ahead with the Brooklyn line. Mr. Craig replied that he did.

Q.—And do you recall that in March, 1924, the Mayor came back to the city? Do you remember? A.—Yes, I recall that also.

Q.—Now, then, do you recall what happened with respect to the carrying out of the building of these lines which the Mayor and the other members of the Board of Estimate, other than yourself, had been committed to? A.—Well, I recall, generally speaking.

Q.—He then began to condemn these lines? A.—He was condemning the company.

Q.—How about the lines? A.—Well, he apparently changed his position on the hook-ing-up process.

Q.—You say, condemning the company? A.—I said he talked against the company.

Q.—He had been doing that for years. A.—Not against the new one.

Q.—But with regard to these lines is what I am concerned with—with regard to these new subways that people were in need of.

A.—There was a lot of backing and filling, outward shift of position, accompanied by a multitude of words.

Q.—Now, was any reason ever given for the condemnation of these lines? A.—The Mayor gave plenty of reasons. I think that is a thing you should interrogate him about. I did not give any reasons any differently than I had ever given, and my position remains the same today as it was in 1922 and 1923 and prior years. Now, I am willing to be interrogated as much as you desire in regard to my attitude, but I think that the Mayor would far prefer that his own point of view be expressed by him, rather than by me.

Controller Submits Plan.

Questioned concerning his solution for subway congestion, Mr. Craig said that his plan for four-tracking the Interborough Broadway subway north of Ninety-sixth Street would bring speedier relief to Washington Heights than any other method that had been proposed.

"There is no real express service in Manhattan north of Ninety-sixth Street now," he said. "While there is a three-track line on Broadway in upper Manhattan, it provides only a local service. Now, the four-tracking of that line from Ninety-sixth Street to the Dyckman valley would immediately open up a four-track express system all the way to Chambers Street and would very greatly increase the number of trains that could be handled and the speed with which they could be handled.

"If you follow that up, taking off the line the Bronx trains which now use about 50 per cent. of the service up to Ninety-sixth Street, and transfer these trains to the Eighth Avenue line, then you have very materially increased the service of the Interborough below Ninety-sixth Street.

"You live in that part of Manhattan and you know, without my having to testify to it under oath to you in regard to it, that there is an enormous jam of people at every express station north of South Ferry who are people for the Bronx trains and block the platform. Washington Heights train, and people from Washington Heights who want to get a seat on a Bronx train, or want to get in any way that they can, and the result is when they get to Ninety-sixth Street they all have to unscramble themselves again, and the people from Washington Heights have to get off the Bronx trains and block the platform. The Bronx trains are held and the people from the Bronx on the Washington Heights trains have to get off and get a Bronx train.

"There is no question whatever but that the four-tracking of the line north of Ninety-sixth Street and the taking of this Bronx service off would quadruple the facilities for rapid transit in Manhattan north of Times Square, and particularly the district between that which you and I live in, and the Washington Heights region, where they have only a local service, and the construction of the Eighth Avenue line. Of course, the Bronx trains could not be taken off immediately, but they could be transferred under an arrangement which I am satisfied from information which I procured could be made, by which the trains could be operated on the Eighth Avenue line to a point about Central Park and 101st Street, where they could connect with the existing Bronx lines and go up the Bronx from there."

Puts Cost at $30,000,000.

Obtaining the consent of James L. Quackenbush, counsel of the Interborough, Mr. Craig said he had obtained an estimate of $30,000,000 as the cost of the proposed four-tracking and suggested that his conferences with Interborough officials had led him to believe that they would consent to the arrangement if they should receive trackage rights to run Bronx trains on the proposed Eighth Avenue subway.

Mr. Craig revealed a continuing difference with Mayor Hylan when questioned concerning his letter of August, 1923, warning the other members of the Board of Estimate not to "fritter away" the city's borrowing margin lest the construction of new subways would not be possible except under arrangements with the Interborough or the B. M. T.

"There had been running back for some time a sharp conflict of view or action between myself and the Mayor in regard to conserving the city's credit or debt margin for subway construction," Mr. Craig said. "Personally, I was opposed to any use of the city's credit for any public improvements that could not be shown to be more urgently required than subways.

"The City of New York is big enough to pay for a lot of improvements out of the taxes rather than postponing the footing of the bill to some succeeding administration or some succeeding generation."

$93,000,000 in Public Projects.

Mr. Craig said he favored paying for repaving of streets out of taxes and mentioned projects for bond issues for swimming pools, public baths and comfort stations as included in requests totaling $95,000,000, which were before the Board of Estimate at that time.

Q.—And it was such items, aggregating $95,000,000, that you had in mind when you said that the debt limit—the city's debt margin—was being frittered away, so that the construction of new subways would not be possible? A.—Yes, that is one of them. Among others was the request for a new bridge over East River to connect Wanamaker's with Brooklyn.

Q.—You mean the Mayor and the Board of Estimate and Apportionment seriously proposed a bridge to connect Wanamaker's with the City of Brooklyn? A.—I mean to say that they planned a bridge to cross the East River, one end of which was right at Wanamaker's door. There is no secret about this, and the only way that bridge was stopped was because I prevailed upon the Legislature to write into law that no part of the money which Mayor Hylan and his associates sought to have bonds issued for could be used for construction of his bridge. It stands prohibited now by legislative act. Where would we build subways if $41,000,000 was gone here in one sweep?

Debt Limit Now $50,000,000.

Mr. Craig, in concluding his day's testimony, said that the city's debt limit was constantly changing. A month ago he reported it to Mr. Sherman as $38,000,000. Since then, he said, it had been reduced to about $24,000,000 by the appropriation of $2,650,000 for the Staten Island tunnel and the reservation of $10,000,000 for the Washington Heights subway and several small items, and increased by about $26,000,000 by the retirement of that amount of city securities under appropriations in the 1925 budget available on Jan. 1. He said the present debt limit was about $50,000,000.

Robert Ridgway, Chief Engineer of the Board of Transportation, estimated the cost of the proposed independent Manhattan west side subway from Fifth Street to Astor, Vesey, Fulton or Wall Street at $181,000,000. He explained the variance of this estimate with that of Mr. Delaney by saying that Mr. Delaney's estimate included the cost of the East River tunnel in the middle of the river, while his was to the edge.

Mr. Ridgway's detailed estimates for the various sections of the line varied considerably from those Mr. Delaney had previously submitted in the inquiry and Mr. Ridgway said that many changes in the number of tracks had been made since that time.

Mr. Ridgway confirmed Mr. Delaney's previous statement that the cost of the new subway was more than twice that of the existing subway and that to build as many miles of subway as now operated by the Interborough, constructed at a cost of $264,000,000, would cost more than $600,000,000. It was at this point that Mr. Mooney charged that Mr. Sherman was "striving for headlines" and directed to sit down by Justice McAvoy.

Parries Questions on Fare.

Mr. Ridgway estimated that the cost of equipment, which the city would have to pay for if it operated the line, would increase the cost to $253,000,000 or $254,000,000. He parried, however, every question designed to ascertain whether he believed it would be possible for the city to operate this line at a five-cent fare. He said that an estimate of expected results required a traffic estimate and that he had not been able to complete the estimate of anticipated returns, although he and his staff were working on it and trying to finish it as speedily as possible.

Mr. Sherman read from the annual Interborough report, which he said showed a deficit of $2,404,282, including return on the city's investment, and asked Mr. Ridgway whether there would be any operating deficit on the new line.

"I would prefer not to answer that, Mr. Sherman," Mr. Ridgway replied.

"You cannot prognosticate, then, as to whether these new lines will or will not earn interest upon the cost?"

"I do not think I would like to make an estimate of that kind," Mr. Ridgway said. "I would rather wait until I get my figures."

Mr. Sherman said that the Mayor's 1922 plan estimated the cost at $600,000,000 and that an earlier witness in the inquiry had testified that the Transit Commission's engineers had estimated that it would cost $650,000,000 to build the lines. "Was that $650,000,000 your estimate?" Mr. Sherman asked.

"That was, sir," Mr. Ridgway, who was the chief engineer of the Transit Commission before he was transferred to the new city Board of Transportation. "It was made under my general direction."

SUBWAY YARD SURVEY.

Board of Estimate Orders Report on Storage Facilities.

Meeting as the Committee of the Whole, the Board of Estimate yesterday instructed Peter J. McGowan, Secretary of the Board, and Corporation Counsel George P. Nicholson to make a report on subway and elevated storage yards for the McAvoy transit investigation. While representatives of the Transit Commission testifying before Justice McAvoy have blamed the poor subway service partly on the city's failure to complete storage yards, Mayor Hylan and other members of the board yesterday charged that the Interborough was not using all the available storage facilities.

William J. Flynn, Bronx Commissioner of Public Works, pointed out that an I. R. T. yard at 149th Street and Lenox Avenue was not being used by the company.

"I know that yard," said Mayor Hylan. "It has eight tracks idle, each with a capacity for ten cars."

Maurice Connolly, Queens Borough President, said that contractors and not the city were responsible for delays in building several yards in Queens. The board recommended favorable action on contracts for two yards in Queens.

The board replied yesterday to a communication sent on Dec. 10 last by the Republican Club of the Twenty-second Assembly District, Manhattan, which urged the city to appropriate funds and approve contracts for the proposed Washington Heights subway. In its reply the board said that bids for two sections of the subway would be opened on Jan. 28 and 30, that $10,000,000 had been set aside for the work and that additional funds would be appropriated when needed.

While the letter was being drafted Mayor Hylan said:

STONE IS NOMINATED FOR SUPREME BENCH

reading opinions and twenty-one of these, including one by Justice McKenna, were delivered before the announcement of the vacancy was made by Chief Justice Taft.

"Gentlemen of the bar," said the Chief Justice, "Mr. Justice McKenna has announced to us, his colleagues of the court, his purpose to retire from the bench. He has presented his resignation to the President, who has accepted it. As his associates we have expressed our feelings toward him in a personal letter, which I shall now read."

Farewell Letter Recalls Career.

The Chief Justice then read the following letter:

Jan. 5, 1925.

Dear Brother McKenna:

Your active membership in this Court is ending after twenty-seven years. The affectionate and charming intimacy of this relation is known only to those who have enjoyed it. Few have been permitted to share it as long as you have. Happy are you with such a retrospect of love, confidence and usefulness.

What an extended and varied experience you have had! Going with your parents to California at the age of 12, you settled in the Golden State a little more than five years after the arrival of the Forty-niners. Your youth and young manhood were spent in the atmosphere of that community's irrepressible enthusiasm and inspiring confidence in its great future. Admitted to the bar in 1865, twice District Attorney of your home county, for two years its representative in your State Legislature, your upward steps carried you to the National House of Representatives, where during four Congresses you served with distinction.

Put to the test in one of your electoral campaigns, you declined to yield your convictions on what you deemed sound monetary principle, and in the face of overwhelming adverse local sentiment you carried again your Congressional District. You attached your colleagues in the House to you by your proved character, and won the admiration and trust of the leading rival Republican leaders of that day.

Against your inclination, President Harrison induced you to become a Federal Judge, and to begin your experience on the bench with the birth tribunal which has since done much to expedite the administration of national justice—the Circuit Court of Appeals. Five years you had there, when your former Congressional colleague, William McKinley, called you to his Cabinet as Attorney General. Then he appointed you a Justice of this court.

For more than a quarter century you have borne the burden of intense judicial labor. More than half that time you have been the Senior Associate Justice. Your opinions, found in ninety-six volumes of our Reports, 170 to 256, number 1,000. In them you depart from conventional wording and adopt a distinctive style of your own, readily recognized by one familiar with the reports.

It is characterized by clearness and force, with a grace of touch and aptness of phrase that stimulates the reader's interest. An examination of that array of judgments in cases, many of them of primary public importance, reveals how much of your trained mental energy, long experience with men and affairs, judicial and ethical spirit and love of country have been poured into them.

Your pride in the court, its high traditions and its courage, has made deep impression on us who have enjoyed the benefit of your greater experience, example and esprit de corps. Your fraternal nature, your loyalty toward each of us, your tenderness in times of strain and stress, endear you to us and make us feel deeply sensible of our loss.

May you have many years of happy and well earned leisure, sweetened by thoughts of the affection and high regard in your associates, and still more by the knowledge of the good you have wrought in your great and honorable career. Farewell!

Affectionately yours,

Mr. Justice McKenna.

Jan. 5, 1925.

My Dear Chief Justice and my dear brethren:

I thank you for your expressions of esteem. I accept and appreciate even their praise as impelled by personal friendship and as a mark of it. They mitigate the regret—indeed, sorrow—that I feel in separating from the work of a tribunal so necessary to the existence of a constitutional government—a work whose guiding and prompting considerations regarded, it has so adequately performed, and it is assured prediction, will continue to perform.

To this sorrow I shall have the more intimate personal one of a separation from the companionship of you, my dear Chief and brethren. Here again is the mitigation that I shall carry to my retirement as you so feelingly remind me, abiding reminiscences of it, the honor conferred, the pleasure it gave.

And to it will be added the rebellection of the association with the eminent men who preceded you in the constitution of the court and its work. May I say, in some emphasis, of my service, that it was under three Chief Justices: Chief Justice Fuller, Chief Justice White, and you, my dear Chief, which is yet in instance, though, soon to become a memory.

I conclude, assured by your words of regard, that while our official relations are this day severed our personal ones, their pleasure and honor to me, will be continued.

With these words of good-bye go my sincere and affectionate regards.

JOSEPH McKENNA.

As Justice McKenna concluded, Frank Key Green, the Marshal of the court, laid a basket of red roses on the table in front of him. Then the Marshal tapped with his gavel. All the members of the court rose and those within the bar rail and in the places for spectators followed their example.

Justice McKenna shook hands with

quiry, and he was confirmed two days after nomination. It was a coincidence that Senator Walsh, who had had a leading part in the Senate investigations of last year, was the man who three years earlier, as Chairman of an investigating committee, had received from Dean Stone a communication in which he went on record as attacking the lengths to which Attorney General Palmer had gone in proceeding against aliens suspected of radical beliefs.

This document was recalled yesterday by many in touch with the situation when it was learned that Attorney General Stone was to go to the Supreme Court bench since, upon the appointment of a new Justice, there is always careful assaying of his viewpoint and estimating as to how it will affect the "liberalism" or "conservatism" of the Supreme Court bench as a whole.

His pronouncement was considered at that time as constituting a "liberal" attitude. It took sharp issue with the Department of Justice as having deprived the aliens in question of their constitutional guarantees. He said in part:

"It appears by the public admissions of the Attorney General and otherwise that he has proceeded on the theory that such aliens are not entitled to the constitutional guarantee of due process of law. * * * It is inevitable that any system which confers upon administrative officers powers to restrain the liberty of individuals, without safeguards substantially like those which exist in criminal cases and without adequate authority for judicial review of the action of such administrative officers, will result in abuse of power and intolerable injustice and cruelty to individuals."

Challenged Bar on Personnel.

Dean Stone had previously earned a reputation for being just as outspoken on other matters. His annual reports as head of the Columbia Law School frequently contained scathing comment. In 1921 his report accused the legal profession of being apathetic toward improvement of its personnel.

"The American bar," he wrote, "has been content to leave the problems of legal education and the improvement of the bar to the ministration of the 125 or more law schools of the country, good, bad and indifferent, without the active interest and cooperation which ought to exist between an organized profession and the educational institutions which train its membership. A not unnatural result has been the growth in number of those who apply for admission to the bar with a wholly inadequate education, both general and professional."

Attorney General Stone was born in Chesterfield, N. H., in 1872. He was admitted to the New York bar in 1898 after completing his academic studies at Amherst and his professional studies at Columbia. The next year he became a Lecturer in Law, in 1903 a Professor, and in 1910 Dean. In 1899 he married Agnes Harvey of Chesterfield and they have two sons, one in the faculty at Harvard and the other a student.

During the twenty-five years that preceded his entering the Cabinet he was known as one who constantly carried on two men's work, his important duties as teacher and administrator at Columbia and active participation as a member of law firms of high standing. He has the physique to go with the description, being large and strong. At college he was "centre rush"—as it was then called—on the football team.

PINCHOT IS REBUFFED.

Pennsylvania Republicans Nominate Bluett for Speaker.

Special to The New York Times.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 6.—The Republican State organization tonight took a decisive step against Governor Pinchot when the Republican House members, by a vote of 133 to 58, nominated Thomas Bluett of Philadelphia for Speaker over C. Jay Goodnough of Cameron County, who was the Governor's choice.

The organization, less than ten days old, was formed to thwart the plans of Governor for the present Legislature. Its leaders are Joseph R. Grundy, head of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association; Congressman William S. Vare of Philadelphia, long an enemy of Grundy, and State Senator Max S. Leslie and George S. Oliver from the Western end of the State. Back of all four stands Secretary Mellon, whom the Governor has frequently charged with not sincerely enforcing the prohibition laws.

The organization has been helpless since the death of Senator Boies Penrose and because of this condition, in part, Governor Pinchot defeated it in 1922. The new coalition picked a wet candidate for Speaker and this resulted in the Governor bringing out Goodnough, a dry, who was elected Speaker in 1923.

Governor Pinchot is now counting upon some of the Democratic votes of the Legislature, which opens tomorrow at noon, to aid him with his dry measures, which include bills to permit State inspection of breweries and distilleries and for an appropriation of at least $250,000,000 for prohibition enforcement.

All three measures were defeated two years ago by a Legislature that was friendly to him in everything else. There are but fourteen Democrats in the House and eight in the Senate, and a large proportion of them are classed as wet.

CAREY GETS BROOKLYN POST

District Leader Named Superintendent of Public Buildings.

Peter A. Carey, Democratic leader of the Tenth Assembly District, Brooklyn, was appointed Superintendent of Public Buildings by Borough President Joseph A. Guider yesterday. Mr. Carey succeeds James J. Byrne, who was made Superintendent of Public Works when that office was made vacant by the election of Mr. Guider to the Borough Presidency last week.

Mr. Carey's former place as Transfer Tax Appraiser is expected to be filled by David F. Germain, formerly assistant to Borough President Riegelmann. Charles T. Minsterer, who was secretary to Mr. Guider, will become assistant to the Brough President, and John McManus, former Clerk in the Grand Avenue Court, will become secretary to the Superintendent of Public Works.

NOTE TELLS BERLIN OF COLOGNE STAND

Decision Not to Evacuate the Zone on Jan. 10 Is Communicated by Ambassadors.

DENOUNCED AS UNJUSTIFIED

German Officials Refuse to Comment Until They Receive Further Particulars of Charges.

LONDON GIVES OUT TEXT

BERLIN, Jan. 5 (Associated Press).—Germany was informed by the interallied Ambassadors here today in an identic note that the allied troops would not evacuate the Cologne bridgehead on Jan. 10. The note was the outcome of the recent decision of the Allied Council of Ambassadors that Germany had not fulfilled the obligations she had accepted as a condition of evacuation.

Official comment on the note was confined to a brief communiqué in which the German Government charges that the defaults cited as the basis for the allied refusal to vacate the Cologne zone are of such a general nature and so completely lacking in material foundation that discussion of them must be deferred until the allied Governments submit an amplifying note.

The German Government, however, the communiqué declares, believes itself warranted in asserting that the present state of the disarmament question affords no justification for the adoption of so grave a measure as the continuation of occupation of the Cologne bridgehead. Its attitude on this question will be communicated to the allied Governments in the near future.

Text of the Allied Note.

LONDON, Jan. 5 (Associated Press).—An unofficial translation of the Allied Ambassadors' note to Germany on the postponement of the Cologne evacuation is as follows:

Article 428 of the Treaty of Versailles of June 28, 1919, stipulates that German territory situated to the west of the Rhine, together with the bridgeheads, shall be occupied by troops of the allied and associated powers during a period of fifteen years, to run from the entry into force of the treaty, as a guarantee for the execution of said treaty by Germany.

By the terms of Article 429, if the conditions imposed by said treaty have been faithfully carried out by Germany the occupation foreseen in Article 428 shall successively be restricted at the expiration of the first five and then of the first ten years.

The allied Governments already are in position to inform the German Government, without awaiting Jan. 10, 1925, that they have obtained proof showing that Germany has not yet fulfilled, and cannot possibly have fulfilled by that date, the conditions laid down in Article 429 so as to enable her to benefit by the clause relating to a partial evacuation.

Thus, by merely referring to Part V. of the treaty, sufficient ground for the decision of the allied Governments is to be found in information collected by the Interallied Military Commission of Control, in spite of some obstruction in regard to the extent to which the military clauses have been carried out.

For example, to mention only some essential points among facts already known, the following facts have been ascertained:

In violation of Article 160, the Great General Staff of the (German) Army has been reconstituted in another form; in violation of Article 174, short service volunteers have been recruited and trained; contrary to Article 168, the transformation of factories for the manufacture of war materials is far from being complete; contrary to Articles 164 to 169, a surplus of every kind has been found to exist beyond the amounts of military material allowed, and considerable illicit stocks of war materials have been discovered; contrary to Article 162 and to the decision taken by the Boulogne Conference of June 6, 1920, the reorganization of the State police has not begun; contrary to Article 211, the German Government is far from having taken all the legislative and administrative measures demanded by the allied Governments in the note of Sept. 29, 1922.

The allied Governments, moreover, expect to receive a report of the Interallied Commission of Control giving the full results of the present general inspection. This report will enable them to determine what still remains to be done by Germany to carry out her obligations in military matters in the terms of Article 429.

A further communication will be addressed to the German Government on the subject.

RADICH IS ARRESTED IN A SECRET ROOM

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Jan. 5.—According to a dispatch from Belgrade, the Chief of the Croatian Republican Peasant Party, Stefan Radich, was arrested this morning in Agram by the police. Radich was hidden for many weeks in the house of his son-in-law, Deputy Kosutich, in a secret room constructed especially for him. In this room also secret archives were seized by the police.

Five other prominent leaders of the Croatian Party were arraigned this morning in the Agram District Court.

The Neue Freie Presse announces in a dispatch from Belgrade that the prisoners refused to testify because they had immunity as Deputies. There is great excitement among the Croatian people, who are ardent supporters of the famous peasants' chief.

Agram dispatches contend that the Prime Minister, Pachich, is making a dangerous gamble. The former Premier, Davidovich, declared at a meeting today that the measures taken by Pachich against the Radich party are unconstitutional and will endanger the unity and security of the Yugoslav State.

HUGHES AND MELLON STUDY FRENCH NOTE

LOUCHEUR BACKS HIS VIEW

Churchill, in Private Talks With Finance Ministers in Paris, May Suggest Debt Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The memorandum drawn by the French Minister of Finance, M. Clementel, relative to the payment of the French debt to the United States, which reached the State Department yesterday from Ambassador Herrick, was today transmitted by Secretary of State Hughes to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon for his information.

At the Treasury it was found to contain no proposition whatever for refunding the war debt.

Secretary Hughes was given to understand by Ambassador Herrick that the memorandum was intended to be treated as entirely confidential. Moreover the document itself states that it is to be regarded as "personal and confidential" and for that reason officials did not feel at liberty to make public its text or contents.

However, it was ascertained that the press reports generally from Paris relative to the statement indicating that France wants a ten-year moratorium desires to have payments spread over a period of eighty years and the suggestion relative to laying aside one-half of 1 per cent. annually for amortization are correct.

From Treasury sources it is learned that the memorandum contained nothing really new to them—nothing that had not been discussed between Secretary Mellon and Ambassador Jusserand in their informal conversations concerning the debt. It is understood to be rather an explanation of the Clementel budget statement and his personal point of view relative to the attitude of France toward the refunding of her debt to this country.

While there is nothing in the Clementel memorandum that even looks like a proposal, it is known to be the hope of Administration officials that this "private" memorandum will be followed up by something "official" which would furnish a basis for discussion, and there was an intimation in a reliable quarter today that official suggestions from France relative to a refunding program may follow in the wake of the unofficial communication.

Loucheur Backs Clementel's Views.

Copyright, 1925, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, Jan. 5.—Louis Loucheur, the richest man in France and a Minister in the Clemenceau, Briand and Poincaré Cabinets, in an exclusive interview today stated that he would support Finance Minister Clementel's proposals for liquidation of France's debt to the United States in the Chamber of Deputies if negotiated through to an agreement and presented to the French Parliament for ratification.

The help of M. Loucheur and the strong bloc of powerful men he controls in Parliament would insure the passage of this accord.

"I am acquainted with the terms of M. Clementel's plan as submitted to Ambassador Myron T. Herrick and transmitted to Washington," said M. Loucheur, "and I believe France can carry out the undertakings provided, of course, Germany executes her reparations obligations under the Dawes plan. I pledge myself to America to give solid support to such a plan if presented to Parliament, and I believe it certainly will be ratified."

M. Loucheur produced the official stenographic text of his speech at Lyons on Feb. 20, 1922, which erroneously reported him as declaring that France never would and never could pay her war debts.

"As the exact transcription of my speech proves, I said three years ago that France should not contest the legality of her obligations to America on the ground that the proceeds were expended on the purchase of war materials to fight a common enemy," he said. "I did point out the practical impossibility of France discharging her debt to the United States through the usual channels—trade balance, by flooding the American market with French manufactured goods and raw materials.

"First, the United States manufactures sufficient for the domestic market and the tariff protects against dumping. Second, the United States does not purchase raw materials in appreciable quantities from France, being well supplied at home."

Oppose Ten-Year Moratorium.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—The Westminster Gazette's diplomatic correspondent says the British view is that France can pay something on her debts in the immediate future and that the British Government agrees with the American Government in repudiating the French plan for a moratorium of ten years.

"But both ourselves and America," he continues, "are prepared to accept a very low rate of interest in the first years and to allow the debt to be funded with progressively increasing payments over a long term of years. We are willing that France should get better terms from Washington than ourselves, but we insist she should pay at the same rate on the British debt. Italy it is felt should be treated in the same way.

"What we do not accept is the French contention that whatever payments are made to Great Britain and America must come from Germany. We stand by the Balfour note in that the Allies should pay us at least the interest on our American debt. The American Government is in general accord with the British plan for a settlement of the whole problem.

The Daily Telegraph says editorially:

"The suggestion has been made on behalf of France that the interest on her debt to the United States should be paid at the rate of one-half of 1 per cent. How that proposal will be received by American opinion it is not for us to speculate on, but we must point out that a settlement with this country on that basis would lighten the burden borne by our taxpayers on account of France to a degree too small to be seriously considered.

"That burden, amounting to some seven pence in the pound per head, would be diminished by less than one penny. An 8 per cent. pari passu redemption is acceptable in principle on condition of the terms being such as could be commended to the British public as reasonably fair. Did the terms proposed fall short of this, no British Government, considering the sacrifices already made and the greater sacrifice which this country is ready to make, could venture to entertain them on the Nation's behalf."

May Suggest Debt Conference.

LONDON, Jan. 5 (Associated Press).—Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, will carry on private discussions on the subject of interallied debts with the various representatives at the conference of allied Finance Ministers in Paris Wednesday, it is understood here today.

The Cabinet, which met this morning, is said to have acquiesced in Mr. Churchill's suggestion that the debt problem be approached by informal discussions, instead of being brought up at the official sessions of the conference, because of the desire of the United States Government to avoid an open discussion of the subject.

In the private conversations, which are expected to take place, the British Chancellor of the Exchequer probably will present Great Britain's views and may even advance a plan for a future debt conference, if the outlook warrants it. It is understood, however, that Great Britain is not in a position to force the issue and will not take the initiative in calling a conference.

The Chancellor will leave for the French Capitol tomorrow, accompanied by Sir Otto Niemeyer, Controller of Finance in the British Treasury Department, who will act as his technical adviser.

WAR FINANCE BOARD QUITS.

Directors of Corporation Cancel $499,000,000 of Its Stock.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The War Finance Corporation took the initial step today toward winding up its affairs, canceling and retiring, with the approval of Secretary Mellon, $499,000,000 of its $500,000,000 capital stock.

The Corporation Directors and Secretary Mellon believe the outstanding $1,000,000 of capital stock, with available funds from repayment of loans, will be sufficient to take care of all pending requirements.

The power of the corporation to make new advances expired with the end of the year, and the reduction in the capital stock does not therefore involve any change in policy. All outstanding loans will be handled as heretofore, Managing Director Meyer announced.

USUAL COMMUNIST UPROAR

By T. R. YBARRA.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 5.—Germany's new Reichstag met this afternoon for the first time. Only formal business, such as the roll-call, was transacted, whereupon the session adjourned until Wednesday.

The Government benches were conspicuously empty, the Cabinet members doubtless feeling their position was so precarious that they had not sufficient nerve to display themselves. The session was presided over by the oldest Reichstag member, Herr Bock of the Socialists, aged 70.

It was decided to defer the election of a President until later. The next President will probably be the Socialist member Löbe, who presided over the body until superseded during the last Reichstag session by the Nationalist Herr Wallraf.

The usual Communist demonstration today was engineered without the help of two of the most vociferous Communists, Herr Katz and Frau Ruth Fischer. Both went to Vienna recently and got nabbed by the Austrian authorities. Katz is still in an Austrian jail, while Ruth Fischer, though released, did not arrive here in time to join the Communist catcall chorus in today's opening Reichstag session. Several other Communist members did not appear, preferring to wait until the Reichstag was formally constituted, since they feared the serving upon them of warrants now out against them. Another noted Communist member, Frau Clara Zetkin, is in Russia.

Meanwhile uncertainty as to the next Government continues. Several men are being mentioned as slated for the next Cabinet, but no confirmation is obtainable on any of them. One name mentioned as a possibility for the Ministry of Economics is Herr von Neuhaus, who is accused of having left his position as Director in the Prussian Ministry of Commerce in 1921 because he refused to take the oath of allegiance to the German Republic.

The situation in the Prussian Diet also is said to be complicated through the action of the German People's Party, which demands the disbanding of the present four-party coalition and the establishment of straight bourgois party government. This move is being opposed by the Socialists, Clericals and Democrats who, however, command only a meagre majority in the new Diet. Chancellor Marx may have to defer his negotiations looking to the formation of a new Cabinet until the crisis in Prussia is solved.

Strength of the Parties.

BERLIN, Jan. 5 (Associated Press).—The strength of the parties in the new Reichstag, as established by the official roll-call today, follows:

Socialists, 131; Nationalists, 111; Clericals, 69; People's Party, 51; Communists, 45; Democrats 32; Economic Union, 21; Bavarian People's Party, 19; National Socialists (Fascist), 14; total, 493.

German Communists in Austria.

VIENNA, Jan. 5.—Frau Ruth Fischer, Communist member of the German Reichstag, has been sentenced to a fine of 120,000 crowns and deportation from Austria on a charge of using a false passport.

Three other German Communists arrested are Iwan Kutz, Frau Elfriede Golke and Helna Neumann, who recently arrived here with false passports.

Katz and Frau Golke, members of the German Reichstag, lost their parliamentary immunity owing to dissolution of the Reichstag and left Germany to escape arrest for alleged high treason. Both have since been re-elected and thus presumably have regained their immunity. It is expected they will return to Germany at the expiration of their sentences here.

spondent of The United Press of America, but lately working for The Chicago Tribune. The charge against him is of having discredited Italy abroad by spreading false or misleading news. He is considered likely that other arrests will follow as soon as the police complete their evidence against some other individuals.

Italy is calm today, life having become normal after the explosion of Fascist joy Saturday night and yesterday over Premier Mussolini's strong speech in the Chamber. Fascismo appears to have soared high again in everybody's estimation since Signor Mussolini took his strong stand. Mussolini's office at Palazzo Chigi is literally snowed under by sheafs of telegrams from all parts of Italy applauding his counter-offensive against the opposition.

Various factors contribute to explain this situation. In the first place, the campaign of the opposition press against Fascismo and Mussolini had really shaken many people's confidence in them. On the other hand, the campaign was conducted with such violence and with such questionable methods that it had succeeded in thoroughly nauseating many other people. In the third place, Mussolini's inaction in the face of the opposition's campaign had disgusted a certain section of his followers.

The Premier's speech last Saturday has had the result of winning over to him again all three of these sections of the people. Those who had believed the accusations made by the opposition press have been forced to admit that Mussolini, by bravely taking upon himself the entire responsibility for what had occurred in Italy during the last two years, and by giving any one even outside Parliament leave to bring him before the high court of justice, certainly spoke like a man who knows that his hands are clean and whose conscience is at rest.

King Appoints Three Ministers.

ROME, Jan. 5 (Associated Press).—The King has appointed Alfredo Rocco, now President of the Chamber of Deputies, as Minister of Justice to replace Aldo Oviglio, who resigned from that post today; the Deputy Professor Fidele as Minister of Instruction and Deputy Giovanni Giuriati, now Minister without Portfolio, as Minister of Public Works. All three will take the oath of office tomorrow.

The expiration of the forty-eight hours in which Premier Mussolini promised the Chamber that the political situation would be cleared up has produced many important results.

If the situation has not been completely cleared up, as Mussolini promised, there are at least definite signs of clearing. The Aventine Opposition, comprising about 150 Deputies, who have refused to attend the proceedings in the Chamber since the Matteotti murder, is still in evidence, although some or those who listened to Mussolini's declarations before Parliament apparently interpreted his words as meaning the dissolution of this oppositional group within that stated period.

It is considered possible that the Aventine Opposition may remain inactive for some time, chiefly because, so long as the plan of seizing the Opposition papers continues, they would be at the disadvantage of not having a press to champion their cause.

Giovanni Amendola, leader of the Aventine Opposition, had a long interview today with Signor Giolitti with the object of inducing the former Premier to act in accord with the Amendola group, but Signor Giolitti declared that he desired to keep his own Opposition, and that of his friends, within constitutional parliamentary limits.

ASSAILED BY LLOYD GEORGE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—"There has been nothing worse in Italy since the atrocious days of King Bomba," declared Lloyd George, attacking the Fascisti in a speech last night before the Council of the London Young Liberal Federation. Bomba was the notorious King of Naples who made 40,000 political arrests and maintained a reign of terror until his death in 1856.

"Repression, intimidation, arson and murder are the instruments of the Government there," said Lloyd George. "A man who dares to express an opinion is lucky if his life is not taken away. A great friend of mine, a great Liberal statesman in Italy, dared to express an opinion in his newspaper. His villa was burned down, and he has been practically driven out of his native land. You saw what happened to that other Italian statesman. He was murdered.

"I got a letter from a distinguished Italian the other day to say that the full story has not been told here. Newspapers not only of Italian fame but of world fame ventured mildly, temperately and restrainedly to express disapproval of what the Government of the day was doing. They said they did not like murder—monstrous. They did not like the way that freedom of speech was stopped—treason. They did not like the way Parliament was superseded—sedition. They were suppressed.

"Luckily for Italy there is a revival of liberalism. All sections have come together at last, the Right, Centre and Left. Giolitti, Salandra, Orlando and Nitti, all great Liberal leaders, are beginning the new struggle for Italian freedom."

Lloyd George's speech was an appeal for unity among the Liberals. He urged that minorities, when well handled, well directed and are courageous, unafraid, full of fight and determination, can almost control the country when there are great questions at issue, and he cited the case of France.

For a moment, he said, the militarism of the Right, which meant conservatism, under the leadership of Poincaré, had plunged France into a course of action which, if it had been pursued, would have landed that country into another war. What happened, he said, was that Herriot's party, a party which in every respect corresponded to British Liberalism, won a dominant position at the polls and Liberalism saved France from disaster.

HUGHES UNYIELDING ON OUR WAR CLAIMS

worth plan over a large number of years, to include also the war damage awards.

It is now pointed out here that the Wadsworth agreement is not in reality effective. It was provided that it should come into force when ratified by all the contracting parties. Italy, Belgium and England have ratified, but France has not yet done so. Therefore, if the American case as presented by Ambassadors Kellogg and Herrick drifts into strict legality, it is thought possible that the Wadsworth agreement will be put in question.

However, this possibility is not considered a probability. The allied Governments time and time again have recognized the existence of the Wadsworth agreement, and there is no apparent disposition to question it at this time. There might be such a turn, it is pointed out, if the Americans attempted to use the argument that if their war damage claim was not granted they would insist on the full priority rights of the Wadsworth agreement, which would possibly eat up most of the cash that could be transferred by Germany in the first years of the Dawes plan. It is then that the Allies might observe that the Wadsworth agreement has not been ratified.

The French believe, however, that a compromise may be effected which will leave aside the thorny question of the legal value of the Berlin treaty, and that, acting on the basis of equity, the Allies may grant America's request. It is believed in the French capital that if the Washington Government obtains the share asked for the British Government will not go out of its way further to raise the issue relative to the value of treaties with Germany.

The American delegates expect an effort to avoid settlement of the American claim at the Finance Conference and will seek to have the American share set aside at the same time as the Allies allocate their parts of the Dawes annuities.

The British suggestion that the Allies proceed with their decision, leaving the Americans free to protect their position by reservation, does not please the American delegates, who recall that when the Allies met to divide the first 1,000,000,000 gold marks paid by Germany American reserves were made, but that the Allies got all the money, while nothing has yet been paid toward the cost of the American Army of Occupation except the $15,000,000 deposited by the Belgian Government out of its priorities and to be paid to the American Treasury only on united allied action.

That $15,000,000 stands rather as a monument to the relation of the Allied and Associated Powers, for the American claim to it exists by virtue of an agreement France has not ratified, and it came into possession of the Belgian Government by virtue of the German priority agreement made at the Paris Peace Conference and never ratified by the United States.

Possible British Contentions.

Unless the English make a quick change of front they are expected to present a whole series of arguments against the American demand. There are almost endless legal complications in contentions relating to the seizure of German shipping for the replacement of losses caused by German U-boats and the seizure of German property generally within the borders of the allied and association countries.

Washington rests on the position that legally the Versailles Treaty gave all the signatory powers the option to use or not to use this property as damage claims against the German Government. The English admit this legal point, but say that if one sticks to legality, the Berlin Treaty gives America no legal right to share in collections under the Versailles Treaty.

They add that if the case is put on the plane of equity, it is but equitable for the United States to act as did the Allies in using available German resources to meet their claims. The Allies used the greater part of seized German property to pay war damage awards. The American damage claims being $350,000,000 and the value of German sequestered property in America being nearly $300,000,000, the British suggest that the difference can fruitfully form a basis of discussion.

Case of the Leviathan.

The complexity of the problem may perhaps be illustrated by the case of the steamship Leviathan. Most Americans probably have supposed the Leviathan, flying the American flag for six or seven years, is American property. Not at all—at least not for the purposes of the present discussion. The Leviathan is German property temporarily sequestered by the American Government, the value of which may or may not be used to repay American shipping or other losses at the hands of Germany.

The British appear to think that if the American Government did not intend to use the Leviathan and other German property to "meet war debts the six years since the war ended has been a long time to think about it. If, on the other hand, the Leviathan is to be kept to meet war damages the Americans are wrong now to include her in the war damage claims items for American tonnage lost in the war.

The case of the Leviathan also serves to show that the diplomats do not entirely understand the American position. They say the Leviathan is held to replace 55,000 tons of American shipping losses. That is real payment, ton for ton payment of the kind England got. But if the American demand on the Allies is now granted the United States agrees to accept payment for lost tonnage over a period of twenty-five or forty years without interest, and it is presumed that if this claim is collected through the Dawes annuities America will not also hold the Leviathan for payment of the same bill.

What would then happen to the ship? Would she be turned back to Germany to be claimed by the Allies under the Treaty of Versailles and then probably fly the British flag? Or would America keep her and pay her value to the Reparation Commission, thus giving up the value of the ship to receive what would be the equivalent of one-third the amount?

The questions are being asked here, not that anybody has any designs on the Leviathan, but simply because her status illustrates the complexity of the problem.

Seized Ships Will Be Paid For.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—In regard to the case of the Leviathan cited in THE NEW YORK TIMES dispatch from Paris, it is explained here that the Leviathan and other German-owned ships then in American harbors were taken over by the United States Government soon after this country entered the World War under the terms of the Treaty of 1799 with Prussia, and later approved by the German Government in 1870.

Under this treaty a board was appointed and the value of the ships as of the date of seizure was appraised and this information was filed in the Navy Department. The treaty provides that payment of the appraised value of the ships shall eventually be made to Germany.

How this payment is to be made has not yet been determined, the supposition being that it would be deducted from the claims of the United States against Germany. The American Government has refused to pool these ships with others seized by the allied Governments during the war. The ships also have not been included in what is known as the sequestered German property in the hands of the Alien Property Custodian.

As far as could be learned here tonight, there has been no agreement with the allied countries concerning the manner in which the transactions involving the seizure of the Leviathan and the other German passenger ships by the United States shall be handled.

Task Before the Conference.

PARIS, Jan. 5 (Associated Press).—The famous Clock Room in the French Foreign Office, where Woodrow Wilson, Georges Clemenceau and their fellow peacemakers prepared the Treaty of Versailles, will assume the aspect of the treaty-making days on Wednesday of this week when the allied and American diplomats and Ministers meet there to settle some of the conflicts of the peace.

In view of the large attendance of allied Finance Ministers and experts, together with the representatives of the Washington Government, it is expected that the conference will decide to refer most of the questions on its agenda to committees, holding full sessions only when the details of the problems have been threshed out in committees.

A settlement of the accounts of the Ruhr occupation will take up considerable time, as the accounts by France and Belgium is complicated by a controversy with Great Britain over how much of the proceeds of that occupation should be applied toward paying its expenses. The British are willing that this cost should be met up to a certain limit from deliveries in kind, but they insist that no money be paid for that purpose and that allowances be limited to the excess of the occupation costs over the ordinary expenses of maintaining the same number of men in home garrisons. The French want the entire cost paid from the proceeds.

This question will be taken up in connection with a general revision of the lump sums fixed for the military occupation of the Rhineland. The French will ask that no limit be put upon the number of men maintained in this territory.

The conference will also be called upon to fix the costs of the various commissions operating under the Dawes plan as well as the Reparation Commission's expenses, which will be greatly reduced next year. It is thought a limit will be put on the allowances granted these commissions, so as to check any tendency later to swell the staffs and increase expenses.

One of the most delicate tasks of the conference will be to demand that some of the Allies refund amounts received on reparation accounts in excess of their shares. Italy and Yugoslavia, for example, are said to have had in kind products worth considerably more than the amounts due them. France will put in a claim for back pay, as her receipts have fallen somewhat below the percentage allotted her at the Spa conference.

The American delegation will be interested in the question whether the Dawes plan receipts can be applied to the extinction of pre-war debts. Some of the Allies have agreed among themselves to exclude such claims. James A. Logan, United States observer on the Reparation Commission, will demand, it is understood, that these obligations be treated on the same footing as the other claims.

If there is not too much friction, it is believed that the conference can complete its work in ten days or two weeks. Ambassadors Kellogg and Herrick, and Mr. Logan, who compose the American delegation, will have the assistance of Sheldon Whitehouse, counselor of the American Embassy here, and of two experts. The chairmanship goes to Ambassador Herrick by virtue of his seniority.

COOLIDGE UPHOLDS FARM COOPERATION

He Tells National Council of Farmers It Will Solve Most of Their Problems.

BUT DISAVOWS A PANACEA

BURDEN RESTS ON FARMERS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—President Coolidge in an address to the members of the National Council of Farmers' Cooperative Marketing Associations, who assembled in the White House today, expressed the opinion that cooperative movements ultimately would solve most of the problems of the farmers, but added that a cure-all for present-day troubles could not be provided overnight by legislative enactment.

Cooperation, President Coolidge said, must have its beginning in small and modest units, with the farmers doing the lion's share of the work in making the movement effective. There were some, he added, who wanted the movemnt to begin at the top, with the Govrnment and banks providing the machinery and the capital and the farmers doing nothing constructive at all, but he had "no such Aladdin-like project" to offer.

In emphasizing his point that while the Government was prepared to do all it wisely could accomplish in assisting the movement the farmers must gradually work out the major steps, Mr. Coolidge spoke of the growth of the United States Steel Corporation, which he described as a great cooperative industry built up out of small beginnings. He expressed confidence, however, that with the aid of the Government the farmers could and would work out their future on a basis which would remove present-day inequalities and give a new stability and prosperity to agriculture.

Regarded as Opposing Pending Bills.

The tenor of the President's address was accepted as an indication that the Administration would refuse support for legislation along the lines of the Norbeck-Burtness and McNary-Haugen bills which were sidetracked in the last session.

The President's special commission to prepare a program for farm relief legislation resumed its sessions today and is expected to make a report before the present Congress ends. It is now believed that its recommendations will deal largely with ways and means to improve existing agencies, rather than for the adoption of legislation along new and untried lines.

President Coolidge indicated in his address that he believed considerable progress was being made now by agricultural interests to bring about more effective cooperation in the marketing of their products, and in this he expressed satisfaction and accord. The belief is general in official circles that developments of the last few months have served to remove many of the worst ills from which the agricultural regions suffered, and that conditions in 1925 will be even more favorable for the development of the cooperative movement and continued prosperity.

President Coolidge's Address.

The text of President Coolidge's address follows:

In welcoming the members of your conference and wishing all success to your deliberations, I find myself disposed to refer to but one subject in order to enter a protest against some current misconceptions. I wish to urge consideration of some fundamentals that, if understood and appreciated, would, I believe, clear away some of the greatest obstacles to effective cooperation in agriculture.

There has been too much tendency to surround cooperative organization and processes with mystery. It has been announced solemnly and sepulchrally, from the hollow deeps of self-constituted oracles, that Americans are not the sort of people who possess the genius for cooperation. We have been assured that they are too individualistic, to loath to yield any part of their independence and initiative.

People who indulge in this kind of nonsense invariably assume that cooperation in a new and comparatively untried formula. Their whole treatment of it proves that they have not caught the idea. They have completely missed the forest because there were too many trees growing all about. They have overlooked the fact that all human society is a vast system of cooperations and cooperations. From its simplest to its most complex manifestations there is nothing to it but cooperation. It began with the discovery that two people could together roll a heavier stone or move a bigger log than could be done by one alone. That was the beginning of cooperation and of social organization. A long time later these aborigines made the further discovery that with the help of a lever they could handle a still greater weight. That was the beginning of tools, machinery, the factory methods.

All the way down from these earliest discoveries to the Ford achievement of a motor car every fifteen seconds the material advance of the race from savages to chauffeurs has been merely the development of cooperation and the adaptation of new tools for it to use.

Cooperation Man's Earliest Discovery.

The truth is, and it cannot be too often or earnestly emphasized, that cooperation is the earliest of man's social discoveries, the one that has served him beyond all others in making material progress. Doubtless its earliest application on a considerable scale was in making war. But all government, all systems of finance, money, banking, exchange, merchandising, division of labor, factory production systems of transportation—every one of these as we know them or as our ancestors have known them from long before history began to write its records, have been nothing more or less than cooperations.

There could be no civilization without cooperation. To charge that any particular people lacks in capacity for cooperation is to charge that it has not been civilized. To allege that against the American people is to deny all of the obvious facts about our country. It is to deny the existence of the States and their cooperation in the Federal Union. It is to reject all the manifest truths of every-day experience. America has accepted and adopted cooperation far in excess of any other nation.

But it is argued that farmers, somehow, are different; that their mode of life and work makes cooperation harder to effect. This is not the fact. Farmers in other countries cooperate successfully, as do many communities of them in our country. I undertake to say that a study of the successful agricultural cooperations in this country, and along with it an equally fair and inclusive examination of the numerous failures in the same field, will demonstrate that cooperation has just as good a chance in America as anywhere else.

In the past, it is true, there has been no such pressure for it here as in less favored countries. So long as the great majority of farmers were making a good living from their year-by-year production, and at the same time laying by fortunes in the increase of their land values, there was little need for experiments in cooperation. But, with the epoch of high taxes, the increase of wages and increased costs of living that came with the war, the increase of land values to unprecedented figures has become rather a liability than an asset.

Effect of the War.

If there had been no war, with its urge for increased production, we would by this time probably have quietly entered upon a new phase of our agricultural experience, wherein we would have become an importer rather than an exporter of most farm products. In that situation our farmers would have been able to increase their prices to a level commensurate with the scale of wages. Living costs and general economic conditions of the country. Whenever we become an agricultural importing country that will be the effect. But there will be a transition period, marked by alternations of exporting and importing, during which we may expect at times violent and wide fluctuations in prices.

In such a period it will be of especial advantage to the farmer to be able to hold his products for the most advantageous market. To be compelled to sell hurriedly will involve danger of serious losses; to be able to hold will be the best protection from such losses.

So it is particularly to be desired that our agricultural marketing organization be placed as soon as possible on a basis of the utmost stability and security. This, I am convinced, we shall best accomplish by developing the broadest and soundest programs of cooperative marketing.

Firmly as I believe in this procedure, and unqualified as is my confidence in the ability of our farming community to formulate and administer such a program, I want to make plain that I am no blind believer in any magical attributes of the cooperative proceedings. A good deal that is positively mischievous has been put about in this regard. There is a school of cooperators who seem to believe that the program can be started at the top and built downward. They want the Government, or the banks, or philanthropies, or Providence to lay out a scheme big enough to cover the country, set its machinery moving, guarantee it all needed capital, and then invite the farmers to sit in the places reserved for them and proceed to garner their profits.

Let me say that I offer no such Aladdinlike project. I want society as a whole to help; but I want the farmers to do their share, and I warn them that this will be the lion's share.

"Must Start From the Soil."

Cooperation must start from the soil. It must have its beginnings in small and modest units. It must train the people who are to use it to think cooperatively. That will be a process requiring time and attended with failures. As the people learn the lesson, their particular projects in cooperation will gain strength, will command increasing confidence, will expand the benefits of their members. The coordination of these local units will follow, bringing them at last with such a working articulation as experience shall prove practicable.

Let me illustrate by the analogy of a great industrial organization. The United States Steel Corporation could never have been started from the top and all at once. It had to be started in hundreds of places and forms and over many years. The industry had to come first, its consolidation afterward. Mr. Carnegie built one great section of it; other men in all parts of the country founded other sections of it. It is hardly conceivable that any of these men in the early and formative years could have visioned the enormous concentration to which their activities were tending. They were not thinking of that. They were founding the industry in all its branches and ramifications in all parts of the country in a vast variety of corporate forms. These widely scattered and seemingly unrelated units at last were brought together under a common control into a unity of management and policy. But, let it be emphasized again, the industry had to be founded before it could be federated. The units required creation before they could adopt combination.

It will be the same in the development of a great fabric of marketing cooperations. They must begin with small things and must have the sincere, courageous, determined support of their members. Granted that much, they can be quite safely relied on to take care of themselves. Their greatest danger is in too ambitious beginnings, too eager expectations, which breed early disappointments and discouragement. The record of failures in combination is larger than the record of successes. But so, for that matter, is the record of failures in nearly any other field. On the other side is the impressive showing of successes whereby industries, communities, regions have derived vast benefits from the development of cooperative efforts. It is not needful to enumerate these cases in this presence; the men and women are here who know them better than I, because they have contributed of their talent and courage to make these accomplishments possible.

Combination as a Principle.

To precisely such men and women as you who are gathered here we must turn for the kind of agricultural leadership the country needs. We want combination preached as a principle, not a panacea. It will not perform miracles. It will not accomplish the impossible. But it is a sound, tried, demonstrated principle that must be introduced at the basis of our agricultural establishment. It demands that the individual shall surrender some part of his complete independence for his own and for the general good. It means that a certain authority must be delegated, and when delegated it must be supported. There must be faith, good-will, patience. It must be understood that no very spectacular achievements will be wrought.

The cooperative association which establishes grades and standards, encourages the good and eliminates the poor varieties, increases the efficiency of production, provides a unified product adapted to its market, organizes its distribution, creates confidence in its products and its methods—that kind of an association is doing the best that cooperation can do. It will serve both the seller and the buyer. Under wise leadership it will succeed.

More than anything else, we need a generation of farmers trained to cooperation; and to get that we need able, courageous, determined leadership, and, most of all, leadership that will not desert the farmer but will stay by him.

Believing that you who are assembled here today are peculiarly the representatives of that leadership, I extend to you my greetings, and I commend to your most careful consideration the supremely important set of problems to which you have dedicated this occasion and dedicated your own experience and talents.

As a last word, let me assure you again of the profound sympathy which your Government feels for all your efforts, and its eager purpose to help in every practical way the achievement of the ends you are seeking.

Former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, a member of the Executive Committee of the National Council of Farmers' Cooperatives, declared today that, while this year's corn crop was 20 per cent. less in volume than last year, it would sell for something like $750,000,000 more than last year's bumper crop. This year's cotton crop is selling for $85,000,000 less than last year's crop, although it is 3,000,000 bales more in volume than last year. Similar conditions exist in other crops, according to Mr. Lowden.

"I have been studying this question of surplus," said Mr. Lowden, "and I have come to the conclusion that it exists mainly in the minds of those whose interest it is to depress prices."

BRINDELL DENIES GUILT.

Bail of $5,000 on Perjury Charge Is Continued.

Robert P. Brindell, the labor leader who was recently released from a State prison, pleaded not guilty yesterday before Federal Judge Winslow to an indictment charging perjury in having sworn falsely to his income tax return for 1920. His present bail of $5,000 was continued.

The indictment alleges that Brindell swore that his income for 1920 was $21,287 when it was $106,080. The tax paid by Brindell was $1,538.55. The amount he should have paid, the indictment states, was $30,300.

Arts Division Pledges Aid.

Representative architects, painters, sculptors, musicians and actors who form the Arts Division of the Citizens' Committee for Completing the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, met at a luncheon at the Hotel Astor yesterday and discussed plans for raising $150,000 to construct one of the bays in the nave. Professor Alfred D. F. Hamlin is Chairman of the division.

The luncheon brought together more than thirty prominent representatives of the five groups that make up the division. Committees now are being formed under the chairmanships of Thomas Hastings, for the architects; Walter Damrosch, for the musicians; Charles Keck, for the sculptors; Childe Hassam, for the painters, and Frank Gillmore, for the actors.

Mr. Hamlin, Professor of Architecture at Columbia University, said the nave was "the greatest single design in Gothic architecture since the Middle Ages." The Cathedral project, he declared, made three strong lines of appeal to the members of the arts.

"First, there is the fundamental appeal of universal Christianity," he said. "This Cathedral is to be a beacon light of the Christian religion and offers an opportunity to men and women to make their own faith a visible and tangible thing.

"Second, the movement has a great civic appeal. The City of New York should have in it the most conspicuous monument of religion in the United States—a monument of civic pride and civic interest.

"Third, there is the great artistic motive. We have here the opportunity to aid in the completion of the greatest artistic monument of modern times. It will be readily conceded that no such monument can be erected without a vast amount of thought and consecrated imagination as well as a great deal of labor."

The Rev. Canon H. Adye Prichard, acting dean of the Cathedral, referred to the completion of the Cathedral as "the greatest artistic task of the generation." He described the building up of the vast organization which will participate in the campaign opening Jan. 18. First, all the parishes in the diocese were enlisted. Next came the formation of the Committee on Community Cooperation, of which the arts group is one of ten divisions.

"This latter meant the arresting of the attention of the great City of New York," he added. "The response has been perfectly remarkable. Everybody, apparently, wants to help build the Cathedral."

He explained that it is planned to have every phase of the city's activity represented at the mammoth Madison Square Garden meeting, which will open the campaign Sunday evening, Jan. 18. The catholicity of the meeting is indicated, he said, by the program, which includes as speakers Franklin D. Roosevelt, who will preside; Elihu Root, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, George Arliss, the Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, Hugh Frayne, Edward F. Albee, Judge Edward R. Finch, Dr. Robert E. Speer, George W. Wickersham, Dr. John H. Finley and others.

Electus D. Litchfield, an architect, said the members of his profession had a great debt that they never could entirely repay to the builders of the great European cathedrals.

"This undertaking, therefore, has a peculiar appeal for the members of the fine arts," he said. "It offers us an opportunity to leave to posterity a monument such as those that have given us such joy and inspiration."

Representatives of the different groups who were present were:

Sculptors—Herbert Adams, Charles Keck, Charles L. Hinton and Enea Biaferra.

Painters—Will H. Low, Childe Hassam, Frank O. Du Mond and Reynolds Beal.

Dean Randolph Ray, rector of the Church of the Transfiguration, and the Rev. Robert Ellis Jones, D. D., canon bursar of the Cathedral, also were present.

Representatives of all ten divisions of the Citizens' Committee will meet in the board room of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company Jan. 12.

MRS. SCOTT TELLS OF DRINKING PARTIES

Special to The New York Times.

ALPENA, Mich., Jan. 5.—Mrs. Frank D. Scott, wife of Representative Scott, testified all day today in the trial of her husband's suit for divorce. She denied practically everything which Mr. Scott and his Secretary, Jane Kennedy, had sworn to in the early days of the trial. Names of members of Congress were mentioned in connection with drinking parties and gambling. Her examination was finished late today and Mr. Scott's attorneys began cross-examination.

During her testimony Mrs. Scott donned the kimona, which, according to Miss Kennedy, was burned by a cigarette in the hand of Captain "Jazbo" Sumner, an army officer, while he was visiting Mrs. Scott in her Washington apartments in 1922. She stood up while Judge Frank Emerick and I. S. Canfield, attorney for Representative Scott, looked for the hole which Miss Kennedy said had been burned in the kimona. Mrs. Scott had to come to their recue and point out a hole about the size of the end of a pencil, several inches below the waist line.

Mr. Canfield told the Court he did not believe this was the kimona which Miss Kennedy had referred to, and he objected to its being presented as an exhibit. Judge Emerick ruled that it should be admitted.

Descriptions of drinking, card playing an dthe presence of a roulette wheel in the home of a Representative was described by Mrs. Scott, who told of a visit she and her husband made at the home of Representative Allan Moore.

"Was there any drinking?" she was asked.

"Yes, the drinking was about the usual amount that might go on in any Congressman's home," was her answer.

Mrs. Scott testified that her husband won considerable money at cards during the visit, but did not tell her about it until Mr. Moore spoke of it. Then Mr. Scott divided with her, she said, and her half amounted to $250. Although she said the Moores had a roulette wheel, she testified that the gambling was confined to cards.

Mrs. Scott branded as "malicious lies" the testimony of Miss Kennedy last week concerning her conduct.

START BIG PROJECT TO CURE PLANT ILLS

TRELEASE TO HELP WORK

Louisville Professor Named to Chair of Botany at Columbia in Conjunction With Plan.

The Trustees of Columbia University announced yesterday that Dr. Samuel F. Trelease had been appointed Professor of Botany at Columbia and placed in charge of extensive researches which are to be carried out in connection with the New York Botanical Garden into causes of plant diseases, the effect of air pollution in American cities on plants, the effect of the automobile on vegetation and many similar subjects.

The Board of Managers of the New York Botanical Garden are seeking an increase of endowment of $7,000,000 in order to develop plans for increasing the usefulness of the Garden. Dr. Trelease is now Professor of Plant Physiology at the University of Louisville. He was formerly a member of the faculty of the University of the Philippines.

The program of scientific research planned at the New York Botanical Garden is a sweeping departure from methods which have been pursued for the last thirty years, according to a statement issued by Dr. Frederic S. Lee, President of the Board of Managers of the Garden and research professor of biology at Columbia.

Inquiry to Be Broad.

"Up to the present," he said, "the Garden's scientific researches have been confined chiefly to the field of systematic botany and less attention has been given to other fields of the vast science of plants.

"But the problems in these other fields are so timely, so promising and so immediately connected with the welfare of mankind that their solution should now be undertaken as additional contributions to knowledge. These problems have to do with the plant as a living organism—with its normal, healthy life-processes, its disease-processes and its processes of inheritance and the production of new and often better types.

"For example, the trees of our forests, our parks, our city streets and our suburban homes afford a wide range of problems. What are the chemical requirements in the soil of the various species of our forest and shade trees? If soils are deficient how may trees be profitably fed?

"The mere presence of an essential constituent in a soil does not mean that such a substance is available to the plant—how can it be made available? What are the physical requirements of the soil as to temperature, moisture and aeration?

Some More of the Problems.

"How can the growth of the roots of trees best be promoted? What are the exact relations to the nutrition and growth of their hosts, of the fungi that are attached to the roots of many of our common forest trees? To what extent is the fertility of the soil dependent upon the microscopic organisms that occur in it, the bacteria, the fungi and other organisms?

"There are, moreover, many fundamental problems of disease processes in living beings that can probably be studied more readily in plants than in animals or men. For all these problems here mentioned, and hosts of others that might be mentioned, the Garden possesses unusual facilities in its site and its large vegetation.

"They are problems that require the use of the experimental method, the method which more than any other has been instrumental in the phenomenal advance of science that has characterized recent years."

HIGHT BEGINS LIFE TERM.

Shows Himself to Gaping Crowds on Way to Prison.

MOUNT VERNON, Ill., Jan. 5.—Lawrence M. Hight, the former clergyman, who was convicted with Mrs. Elsie Sweetin of the poisoning of her husband Wilford, today began his term of life imprisonment at the Southern Illinois Penitentiary at Menard.

Mrs. Sweetin is to begin her thirty-five-year term tomorrow.

Sheriff Grant Holcomb, who accompanied Hight, said that crowds were assembled at every depot along the route. Several times Hight, who seemed to be enjoying the notice he was attracting, stood up to give the curious a better view of him.

FIRST WOMAN TAKES OFFICE AS GOVERNOR

a State for the first time, at the Constitutional Convention in Cheyenne. A. C. Campbell, another member of the historic convention, witnessed the ceremonies. Old and feeble, Campbell watched with interest the brief formalities in the Senate Chamber.

But the history of woman's rights in Wyoming antedates the constitutional convention by slightly more than twenty years. On Dec. 12, 1869, Territorial Governor Campbell affixed his signature to a measure that gave the women of Wyoming Territory the right to vote and hold office. The measure was not without its opposition when introduced, and a clique of pioneers, headed by Ben Sheck of South Pass, Wyo., bitterly opposed the attempt to enfranchise women.

Sheck, the only surviving member of the first territorial assembly, now a resident of the State of Washington, later regretted his action and during the fight in 1919 to ratify the Federal Suffrage Agendment, he telegraphed Dr. Grace R. Hebard, one of the suffrage pioneers of the State, that he had repented and had not only voted for the measure, but was working actively for its adoption.

Perhaps one of the most interested spectators at today's inauguration was Dr. Hebard, now Doctor of Philosophy at the University of Wyoming. Occupying a seat of honor, she smilingly declared that it was a red letter day for women. Dr. Hebard, together with Mrs. Amelia Post of Cheyenne, and Mrs. Hale, wife of a former territorial Governor, wrote the woman's suffrage clause that was later worked into the Constitution by Justice Potter and his associates. Both Mrs. Post and Mrs. Hale now are dead.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 5.—George W. P. Hunt, Democrat, this morning began his fifth term as Governor of Arizona. The inauguration ceremonies were simple and brief.

ONE SUSPECT HELD IN $25,000 HOLD-UP

Two Others Are Discharged, but Are Rearrested for Bronx Robbery.

MR. AND MRS. FOX IN COURT

Bandages Cover Her Wounds Where Robbers Bit Rings From Her Fingers.

Only one of the trio arrested last Saturday in connection with the $25,000 jewel hold-up of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Fox of 885 West End Avenue on New Year's morning was held yesterday for examination. The case came before Magistrate Charles Oberwager in the West Side Court. Failure of the chief witness to identify two of the men resulted in their discharge, but they were immediately rearrested on short affidavits on suspicion of grand larceny in connection with a robbery in the Bronx. James Meehan, 27 years old, of 71 Amsterdam Avenue was the man held for examination on Jan. 8, after he had been identified as one of the bandits by Abraham Egurin, elevator operator in the apartment house at 885 West End Avenue.

Egurin previously had failed to identify any of the trio in a line-up in the courtroom, and at the beginning of his testimony he also said that he could not make positive identification of Meehan or the other two, Charles Adcock, 32 years old, and Murray Friedman, 23, both of 1,047 Prospect Avenue, Brooklyn. At length, however, he said he recognized Meehan as being the man who was the ring-leader in the hold-up.

Mr. Fox, who is Vice President of the Bellas Hess Company, 95 Mortimer Street, testified that Detectives Sullivan and Thomas Sheehan of the Broadway Squad, who arrested the suspects, brought them to his apartment at one o'clock on the morning of Jan. 2. Both he and Mrs. Fox, he said, were unable positively to identify the suspects, although in height and general appearance they resembled the bandits.

Mrs. Fox, who then took the stand, appeared extremely nervous, concealing her face from photographers with a large leather purse. The fingers of her left hand were bandaged, where the robbers had used their teeth to wrench off her rings. Her right wrist also was in bandages. Mrs. Fox's testimony corresponded in all details with that of her husband. She said she was unable to make positive identification of the prisoners.

ROMANCES OF PRINCES LACK CONFIRMATION

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Official publication of the fact that Prince Henry is about to pay his fourth visit to the Duke and Duchess of Buccleuch in Scotland has given some substance to reports which have been current for some time that another of the royal Princes will follow the example of the Duke of York and marry a Scotch girl. Inquiries in well-informed quarters today, however, suggested that matters have not yet reached the point where any definite prediction of an engagement can be made judiciously.

That an engagement between Prince Henry and Lady Mary Scott would meet with the approval of the families on both sides can be stated on good authority, but for the rest the decision is entirely in the hands of the young people most concerned.

Other reports current as to the matrimonial designs of the King's fourth son, Prince George, and opposition of his family are declared to be at least grossly exaggerated if not entirely unfounded. Prince George is regarded by his father and mother as being entirely too young to know his own mind even if he should be passing through the stage of calf love incidental to his age. That he is affected in that fashion is flatly denied by people who have good opportunity of knowing his state of mind.

That he has been frequently partnered at dances by the girl whose name has been mentioned as the object of his matrimonial intentions is not held to be adequate grounds upon which to build up a story of romance. Prince George appears to have the happy faculty of enjoying himself with all his partners, and as he is about the best foxtrotter in the royal family he is greatly in demand in the younger smart set.

H. F. MACGRATH RETURNS.

Novelist's Brother Says His Wife to Syracuse Was Not Delivered.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 5.—An incorrect transcription of a telegram he sent home on his arrival in Chicago Saturday on an unexpected business mission was the cause of the furore over the sudden disappearance Friday of H. Faulder MacGrath. It was announced today after his return to the home of his brother, Harold MacGrath, the novelist.

MacGrath explained that he wired home from Chicago that he might be delayed a day or two. The message was returned to him, he said, having been sent out "McGrath."

MacGrath's return, as sudden as his departure, came in the midst of a search that within twenty-four hours had been extended throughout the country with the aid of the radio.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold MacGrath were confined to bed by injuries they suffered early this morning when they went to the H. F. MacGrath home believing they had heard footsteps of the missing brother. The author was injured when he fell a flight of stairs and his wife tore a ligament in her back when she attempted to assist him to the top of the landing.

Both were under the care of a physician and a nurse.

TONG TRIAL NEARLY OVER.

Justice Wasservogel Expects Murder Case to Go to Jury Tonight.

Detective Sergeant Henry Butts, testifying yesterday in the Bronx Supreme Court at the trial of Lee Har for his part in the shooting and killing of Gong Chong Foon last Thanksgiving Day in Gong's laundry at 1,419 Brook Avenue, swore that within the last few days he had discovered a bullet embedded in the counter in the laundry, which indicated that the shooting had been done from the entrance to the place.

This evidence was introduced by Assistant District Attorney Albert Henderson to refute the contention of Alexander A. Mayper, counsel for Lee, that Gong was alone while Lee and Mock Yick Tong, convicted in the same court last week for the killing, were struggling at close quarters with the laundryman and his son following a quarrel.

Justice Wasservogel announced that he expected the defense would close its case today and that the evidence would be placed in the hands of the jury by nightfall.

Dalton of Staten Island, a deputy city clerk for the last ten years, was elected yesterday a member of the Board of Aldermen by that body to fill the vacancy caused by the election of Alderman Edward J. Atwell as Sheriff of Richmond County. The election of Alderman Dalton occurred at a special called in compliance with charter provision which requires a meeting on the first Monday of each year.

MEANS IS ABSENT AS TRIAL IS CALLED

Sends Message From Concord, N. C., That He Is Too Ill to Face Conspiracy Indictment.

BENCH WARRANT IS ISSUED

Jarnecke Changes Plea From Not Guilty to Guilty—Court Assigns Counsel.

Gaston B. Means, the former Government agent, free under bail pending appeal from a conviction carrying a sentence of two years in the Atlanta Penitentiary and a $10,000 fine for violation of the National Prohibition Law, failed to appear in the Federal Court yesterday for trial on an indictment charging conspiracy to obstruct justice. Codefendants with Means are Elmer W. Jarnecke, one-time secrtary to Means, who was convicteld with him in the prohibition case and sentenced to two years imprisonment and fined $5,000, and Col. Thomas B. Felder, a lawyer.

Jarnecke appeared without counsel and changed his not guilty plea to one of guilty. He said that he was without funds enough to obtain an attorney. The Court assigned Ben A. Mathews to take care of his interests.

In explanation of the failure of Means to appear in court Col. Felder produced a telegram which stated that Means was very ill at his home in Concord, N. C., and was facing an operation for gall stones. The telegram was signed by Dr. Joe A. Hartsdell, and was an answer to a telegram sent to Means by Hiram C. Todd, the special assistant to the Attorney General appointed to prosecute the case against the three defendants.

Mr. Todd expressed doubt concerning the illness of Means, and told Federal Judge Lindley that Means was merely making another attempt to escape trial, and asked that a bench warrant be issued for his arrest. An effort to get Means's counsel in court failed, and then Judge Lindley directed that the agent of the bonding company who wrote the $10,000 bond for Means be sent for and adjourned the proceedings until later in the day, and then until to-day, when Mr. Todd said he expected to have some definite word concerning the condition of Means.

Word of the issuance of the bench warrant was telegraphed to Charlotte, N. C., where an agent of the Department of Justice was dispatched to the home of Means in Concord. Failure of Means to appear for trial if his condition permits it will be followed by a forfeiture of the bail, and the bonding company grew busy trying to find out just how ill Means is. It was said that a representative of the company had started for Concord.

Confined to Bed, Doctor Says.

CONCORD, N. C., Jan. 5.—Gaston B. Means is confined to his bed in his home here, according to his physician, Dr. Joe A. Hartsdell.

Means is suffering from gall stones, the physician stated. An operation has been advised, he added, but Means has not decided to have it performed.

'SAND HOGS' DEMAND SHORTER DAY OF CITY

Give Casualties From Caisson Disease as Their Reason—Are Referred to Albany.

Members of the "sand hogs," or Compressed Air Workers' Union, through their attorney, Frank J. Sullivan, served notice on Mayor Hylan and the members of the Board of Estimate yesterday that they would not work on the proposed freight and passenger tunnel to connect Brooklyn with Staten Island under the schedule of hours that obtained during the boring of the vehicular tunnel between New York and New Jersey.

Mr. Sullivan informed the city authorities that the men's reason for taking this stand was the excessive number of casualties among them resulting from the "bends," or caisson disease. In support of his plea for shorter hours the attorney brought with him and exhibited to the Board of Estimate ten crippled "sand hogs."

He requested that in the preparation of a contract for the new work a clause be inserted setting forth the specific number of hours the men shall work, the time being regulated according to the air pressure poundage.

The workers were advised by Mayor Hylan to seek relief from the State Legislature, as the working provision clauses of the tunnel contracts would be subject to the State Labor Law. Mr. Sullivan reminded the Mayor that an attempt to shorten he hours, in which effort Governor Smith and former State Industrial Commissioner Shientag had joined, had failed in the State Senate.

"Go back to the Legislature," insisted Mayor Hylan. "If they pass the law, we will pay the bill." Chief Engineer Tuttle told the Mayor that the shorter hours would add about $2,000,000 to the cost of the tunnel.

The presentation was made by Thaddeus Tahalanis, an official of Greece.

SEEKS DOOLEY ALIMONY.

Comedian's Former Wife Asks $18 a Week and $2,000 Overdue.

CAMDEN, N. J., Jan. 5.—With Johnny Dooley, comedian, formerly of Camden, N. J., in Minnesota his former wife, now Mrs. Florence Harris of East Pensauken, Camden County, sought in the Court of Chancery today an order requiring him to pay $18 a week alimony. She also wants arrearages amounting to approximately $2,000.

Mrs. Dooley, who divorced the comedian in 1920, asks the alimony mainly for the support and education of their son Robert, 14 years old. Dooley was arrested in New York ten weeks ago. Subsequently he agreed to pay $5 a week. He gave $50 in cash and left. His counsel told Vice Chancellor Leaming Dooley was under the impression that when his wife remarried he was not expected to continue with the alimony.

Bus Line Petition Is Denied.

COOLIDGE MEN LOSE FIRST POSTAL TEST

today's vote. Senator Edge opened the debate with an hour's speech in which he urged rejection of the veto as well as defeat of the motion to recommit. The New Jersey Senator said that if the bill was recommitted it would mean, in his opinion, that there would be no postal salary increases for at least eight months. To sustain the veto, he added, would mean the same thing. He declared it was cowardly for a Senator to dodge the issue at this time.

Senator Willis of Ohio, who replied for the Administration, was one of three Senators who voted against the bill in the last session. He declared himself in favor of raising postal salaries, but argued that it was a senseless thing to do without first providing the money to pay the increase, and until that was done, he said, he would continue to vote against the proposition.

Several times while Senator Willis held the floor Senator Fess, his colleague, interrupted to announce his support of the arguments made by Mr. Willis.

The only speech on the Democratic side was made by Senator George of Georgia, who charged that the President was inconsistent. In vetoing the bill the President, Mr. George said, has based his action on the ground that the postal employes are not entitled to the increase. Now, he added, the President said he favored the increase if the money to pay it was provided.

"Yet," continued Senator George, "a bill now comes to us with exactly the same salary increases, and also carrying provisions for raising the postal rates. Not a Senator will stand in his place on the floor and say that bill can pass at this session. And no one believes if the veto is sustained that there will be any postal pay legislation this session."

Senator McCormick Calls Bill Unfair.

Senator McCormick, who is voting with the Administration, argued that the bill which has been introduced as a substitute was not fair to the small daily newspapers.

"It is estimated, he said, "that the large city dailies now send only about 10 per cent. of their total circulation through the mails, whereas the smaller dailies send from 25 to 30 per cent. of their circulation through the mails. The large city dailies have a wider circulation than the smaller dailies.

"The small papers' mail circulation is confined almost wholly to the first two zones, which are 150 miles in radius from the office of publication. In New York State alone the average haul of the smaller dailies is about thirty-five miles. With increases in postage provided only in the first four zones, it will thus be seen that the burden will fall almost wholly on the smaller daily newspapers, with no compensating effects from the reduction in postage in the further zones."

The debate was closed by Senator Norris, who kept both sides laughing while he sarcastically referred to the activities of some of his colleagues. He said it was worthy of comment that most of the "lame ducks" were voting to sustain the Administration.

COMMISSION FUNDS REFUSED TO COOLIDGE

Madden Challenges President's Authority to Appoint Waterway and Agriculture Boards.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The legal right of President Coolidge to appoint a commission unless Congress authorizes it has been sharply challenged by Martin Madden, Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, which has rejected White House requests for $275,000 to pay the expenses of the St. Lawrence Commission, and $50,000 for the Agricultural Commission.

When a deficiency bill was reported to the House today, the Appropriations Committee announced that it was unable to approve these two recommendations because they were "propositions of major importance for which there is apparently not sufficient substantive law to bring them within the jurisdiction of the committee."

Mr. Madden's attitude toward the St. Lawrence Commission appropriation was indicated when Brig. Gen. Edgar Jadwin, Assistant to the Chief of Engineers, appeared before a subcommittee of the Appropriations Committee. The General started out to read a memorandum showing that the President had appointed the commission, headed by Secretary Hoover, when Mr. Madden interrupted, saying:

"What authority granted the right to appoint the commission on which Mr. Hoover served?"

"The President appointed it," General Jadwin replied.

"Where was the law?" countered Mr. Madden.

Later Mr. Madden stated that the only legal authorization for funds to study the St. Lawrence waterway was under the International Joint Commission, "and that report must be made to the Congress of the United States—not to Hoover and not to anybody outside."

"The President has addressed this letter to the Speaker of the House—" began General Jadwin.

"Yes, but that is not the law," answered Mr. Madden.

General Jadwin suggested that as the senior American engineer on the commission he reported to Mr. Hoover, who, in turn, reported to the President.

"But the President has not any legal authority to appoint a commission unless Congress authorizes it," insisted Mr. Madden.

In his letter asking $50,000 for the Agricultural Commission, Mr. Coolidge stated that though the members had agreed to work for nothing, he felt that "as the services they are rendering the Government are in the interest of the whole people of this nation, the Government should pay their expenses while engaged on this task." Mr. Coolidge added that the men had already incurred personal expenses.

Robert D. Carey, one of the nine members of the commission, told the committee it had been suggested that they receive $15 daily. He also said that as two members lived in California, two in Minnesota, two in Wyoming, two in Pennsylvania, one in New York and one in Kansas, every time they came to Washington and returned about $1,000 in railroad fares would be used up.

Travel and per diem was estimated at $27,000 and the rest of the $50,000 would have been made up by charges for typewriters, stationery and telegrams.

Naturally we welcome the revival of formal evening dress which seems to be coming fast.

We're proud of our dress coats and we admit we'd rather sell two evening suits than one.

Not that we'll admit having done anything special to revive tail coats.

The mother who complained to us the other day because her son at college was demanding a full dress coat musn't blame it on us.

But if the young man wants to keep up with the crowd these days, he apparently must have a full dress coat as well as a dinner jacket.

Coming to business after pleasure, we'll add that there are interesting price revisions now on several thousand business suits.

AVIATION SINCE WAR COST $433,000,000

FULL ACCOUNTING SOUGHT

Representative Reid Charges That All the Money Has Not Gone Into the Air Services or Industry.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The select committee investigating the operations of the air services of the United States reached what is declared by members to be the most important point of its investigation today, when Representative Reid of Illinois caused to be introduced into the record figures showing that since the war the sum of more than $433,000,000 has been spent on aviation.

The data submitted showed that in the five fiscal years, 1920 to 1924, the War, Navy and Post Office Departments and the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics had spent a grand total of $433,383,237.21 on aviation.

Major Gen. Mason M. Patrick, Chief of the Army Air Service, the only witness today, in response to questions from Representative Reid, stated his conviction that the next war would be decided in the air, that it was the policy of the War Department to maintain only a framework of aviation which could in time of necessity be expanded from commercial aviation, that the existence of a civil aircraft industry was imperative and that the War Department was endeavoring in every way to encourage the development of the industry and of commercial flying.

Demands Accounting of Expenditures.

Representative Reid has been making an intensive study of the aviation situation since Spring, with particular reference to recurrent allegations of graft in expenditures. After introducing into the committee record his statement concerning aviation expenditures, he said:

"This is the real 'aircraft scandal' of which we have heard so much. In the past the charges have been of graft and industrial deficiency and concerned mainly the strictly war-time period ended June 30, 1919. Now we find that in the post-war period, or from July 1, 1919, to date, our aviation expenditures have actually been greater than during the war.

"I do not intimate graft, but I do intend to try to find out how this money has been spent, where it has gone, and what we have to show for it.

"Certainly it has not gone into the industry, which has long been in a state of collapse. Certainly it is not gone into the services themselves. To ascertain what is the trouble and then recommend means for correction is the aim of the inquiry, as I interpret it.

"The figures are official, having been prepared by the Army Air Service and brought before the committee at my request. They include not only the amounts specifically appropriated for air activities but also sums obtained from other sources which do not appear on the surface and probably would not have been made public for some time had they not been dug out by this committee."

The data introduced by Mr. Reid today showed that in the five years, 1920 to 1924, inclusive, the total for the War Department was $246,310,209.51; for the Navy Department, $117,923,966.38; for the Air Mail Service, $3,067,052.46, and for the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, $1,082,126.86. These sums include moneys obtained from sums other than those actually appropriated, including pay of personnel, &c., but all constituting a direct charge on the Government for aviation.

Recalls Criticism of Congress.

"For five years—practically since the armistice—Congress has been criticized for failure to appropriate enough money for aviation," said Mr. Reid.

"The decline of the industry, the woeful state of our air defenses and the prolonged delay in the appearance of commercial flying are continually laid at the door of Congress, until we ourselves have almost begun to believe it is true.

"The War and Navy Departments each year have come to Congress and have asked for appropriations largely on the plea that commercial aviation and civil aircraft industry are vital to our air defenses. But here we are, with no commercial flying except the air mail, and with a fragment of an aircraft industry, yet confronted with the certainty that air transport in time of peace and air power in time of war are the great potential factors in our life in the near future.

"While we are taking a national aviation inventory I am going to urge the committee to follow through to its ultimate conclusion the inquiry into the expenditure of these $433,000,000."

FIRE IN HARLEM'S BUSINESS DISTRICT

Burns Out Three Stores in 125th Street Building—Crowds Watch Blaze.

The heart of the business district of Harlem, centreing on 125th Street between Seventh and Eighth Avenues was menaced by fire early this morning when the two-story building at 226-228 West 125th Street caught fire from an undetermined cause. The building is occupied by three firms, dealers in hosiery, lingerie and women's wearing apparel. When the firemen arrived on the first alarm they found that the flames had swept the ground floor and were shooting rapidly through the second floor.

The firemen concentrated their efforts on preventing the fire from spreading to Blumstein's Department Store on the west side of the burning building and to a row of shops adjoining on the east side.

A second alarm turned in on the arrival of the battalion chief brought additional apparatus and the police reserves from the West 123d Street Station. A tremendous throng of persons gathered in the street to watch the blaze and police lines were formed at Seventh and Eighth Avenues to prevent the crowd from impeding the work of the firemen.

The blaze was brought under control after a third alarm had been sent in. Trolley traffic was suspended in 125th Street for some time.

The stores are occupied by the Cameo Apparel Shop, the Lerner Lingerie Shop and the Galileo Company. The interior of the building is a total loss.

BIG NEWS!

Macy's Spectacular January Sale of 2338 MEN'S & YOUNG MEN'S High-Grade OVERCOATS

Here Is The Story

Every year, in January, we have given Macy's customers a remarkable value in men's overcoats. But, this year we determined to make this event an even greater success—greater than Macy's ever made it before!

A Big Assignment

So this time we sent our clothing experts even farther afield. "We want to give New York men the very finest value that the market affords. We want to make this sale a sensation!"

Our Buyers Searched The Entire Market

Macy's merchandise experts scoured the market. They went through the stocks of several cities. They examined countless swatches of cloth, a vast number of stocks, the products of many celebrated makers.

One Maker Was Chosen

After a careful search—while New Yorkers were busy thinking about Christmas gifts—our merchandise men selected one celebrated manufacturer from whom to purchase this large quantity of overcoats.

The Kind of Coats They Are

They are not "job lots"—overcoats that were merely waiting to be bought up in a group for special sales. They were made, in every detail, to Macy's exacting specifications.

An Enormous Variety of Models

All of these coats are absolutely up-to-the-minute in style. Large ulsters—some of them with quilted silk yokes—town ulsters, great coats, single and double breasted box coats, and a number of the new, fashionable "tubular" coats now worn by London men-about-town.

A Wonderful Selection of Fabrics

Close-napped chinchillas, with plaid and plain backs, foreign and domestic fleeces, vicunas, scotch lovatts, cheviots, in blues and ebony, and a large group of melton and kerseys. A full size range, of course.

Real winter is still ahead. But remember, too, that these coats are so finely tailored, and made of such fine materials, that they will no doubt be doing service next winter, and after.

$404,871,672 PAID IN INCOME REFUNDS

277,543 ARE NOW PENDING

Federal Income Tax Receipts in Eight Years Have Been More Than $30,000,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—In the eight years the income tax law has been in operation $404,871,672 has been returned to taxpayers in refunds. The sum of $27,590,431,245 was collected, to which should be added $2,539,336,147 through additional assessments.

These facts were revealed today when it became known that the House Appropriations Committee had recommended $150,000,000 for further tax refunds in the year 1925, to cover payments of claims extending back through the war years.

The committee reported that the Bureau of Internal Revenue now has on hand a waiting payment of 7,471 approved claims for $7,641,498, but that there is only $947,004 remaining from a former appropriation.

Testimony before the committee shows that the bureau may have to apply later for more money, but it is difficult to ascertain the sum in advance. For instance, claims now pending in the courts may reach $100,000,000. Again, legislation removing the statute of limitations on filing claims has resulted in 35,000 new ones affecting 1917 and 1918, which have come in since last January.

Already in the first five months of the fiscal year 1925, 41,324 refunds have been made, exclusive of 2,576,664 others which concerned only the 25 per cent. reduction allowed under the new Revenue act. During the fiscal year 1923, 253,320 refunds were made, and in the fiscal year 1924 there were 192,252 refunds.

By years the refunds were:

1918	2,088,565.46
1919	5,654,171.21
1920	14,127,060.00
1921	29,656,357.95
1922	48,124,127.63
1923	123,992,820.04
1924	137,006,225.65
Total, 8 years	$363,546,494.98
First quarter 1925	41,325,177.74
Total	$404,871,672.72

1917	$809,863,640.44
1919	5,850,150,078.56
1920	5,407,580,281.51
1921	4,594,357,061.95
1922	3,19[illegible],451,983.00
1923	2,621,745,227.57
1924	2,796,179,257.05
Total, 8 years	$28,976,812,421.32
First quarter 1925	622,818,824.24
Total	$27,599,431,245.56

Besides these receipts, $2,539,336,147 was collected through additional assessments, $40,745,853 of this in the first quarter of 1925.

Although the Appropriations Committee recommended $150,000,000 as the necessary amount to cover refunds during 1925, Charles N. Nash, the Assistant Commissioner of Revenue, asked for $154,403,000, stating that up to Nov. 30, $17,484,675 of this requested sum had been paid to 2,576,664 taxpayers on account of the 25 per cent. reduction. Mr. Nash said that $150,000,000 would be collected from back taxes in the year.

Mr. Nash said that this is a revision of a former estimate of $250,000,000. In 1924 $577,000,000 was collected on back taxes.

Testimony of this witness given to the Appropriations Committee shows that the bureau has a heavy task before it in passing on back claims. Cases pending before the bureau affecting 1917-20 claims inclusive totaled 213,104 on Dec. 31, 1925, but in the twelve months just ended 64,439 new ones came in, making a total of 277,543. The cases received in the calendar year 1924 were: 1917, 9,946; 1918, 26,252; 1919, 10,245; 1920, 17,996.

These claims are going through an intensive audit and if nothing unforeseen comes up, Mr. Nash hopes they can all be cleaned up in twenty-eight months.

During his appearance before the committee, Mr. Nash submitted the following details of how he expects the $150,000,000 to be refunded in the fiscal year 1925:

Estate	8,621,671.78
Capital stock	619,096.15
Child labor	113.09
Sales	6,354,240.65
Tobacco	14,538.13
Miscellaneous	1,880,905.19
Prohibition	121,304.12
Total	$154,403,628.35

Refunds made to taxpayers in recent years were given by Mr. Nash as follows:

1923, $253,320; 1924, $192,252; first five months of 1925, $2,267,988, including $2,576,664 for the 25 per cent. refund.

Something About Surveys

A man's deed gives him title to a certain piece of land so many feet from some corner or monument and so many feet wide and deep.

His house must be built on this. It cannot project over into the street and he must not encroach on his neighbor's land.

You cannot measure this with an ordinary tape line. It requires the expert measurements of a trained surveyor with his transit and his steel tape and if he makes a mistake you may buy an unmarketable title. Surveys cost from $25 up, depending on the size of the property.

BULLARD BELITTLES GAS RAID ON CITY

HIS FAREWELL INTERVIEW

Declares Sherman's Methods Influenced Him More Than Any Other General.

Major Gen. Robert Lee Bullard, commanding the Second Corps Area, with headquarters at Governors Island, gave his last interview to newspaper men yesterday afternoon before his retirement on Jan. 15 on account of the age limit. He said he was not apprehensive of the fate of New York and other great American cities in the event of such a gas attack as recently has been described on the lecture platform.

"For every method of attack that man has designed, whether it is by guns, gas, from the air or otherwise, man has found and will continue to devise methods of defense," said General Bullard.

Asked who was his ideal American General, he replied:

"Sherman was the most effective Federal General, and his methods influenced me more than any other General."

Discussing the methods of Sherman, General Bullard said he did not wish to be understood as saying Sherman was his "ideal."

General Will Go Right to Work.

Regarding his future plans, General Bullard said it was his intention "to go right to work at the most advantageous place and time." He is considering offers of employment, and favors those of an executive or administrative nature. Some one asked him why he did not wish to become inactive when he retired.

"Well, if I did that I'd die, and that's the last thing I want to do," said General Bullard. The General is a polo enthusiast, and is almost as much interested in golf.

General Bullard was asked where all the army and navy supply stores replenished their stocks eight years after the European war, and he replied:

"When I was at West Point in 1881 they used powder left over from the War of the Rebellion to fire the reveille gun. There is undoubtedly much material still left from the World War, because we bought equipment for an army of 4,000,000 men."

In the course of his interview General Bullard disclosed that he had written his "memories of the war," but had stacked them in a storeroom on Governors Island. He also said he had left a plan for the development of Governors Island as "the approach to the most unique city and the greatest port in the world, and as the most important military command in the United States." When asked if the United States Army was sufficient to meet an emergency, he pointed out that by virtue of its recent experience in the war with Germany, it could be whipped into shape more readily.

Reminiscence of the War.

General Bullard said that he faced his most critical situation in France about July 15, 1918, when the enemy had forced a crossing of the Marne on an 11 kilometer front.

"In the morning in my corps headquarters," he said, "I looked at the position of the enemy and took a sketch off the big map, showing the points of the enemy in the shape of a bulldog's nose pointing straight toward Paris. It was very startling. My corps was ordered to report to the army, and it was right there on the nose of the bulldog."

"What happened then?" asked several reporters at once.

"My corps was ordered changed. Instead of waiting for the enemy to strike on the nose I was ordered to go up to Soissons, which proved to be the turning point in the war as far as we were concerned."

General Bullard's military activities have kept him moving around the world so rapidly in the last forty-three years that he never got a chance to vote until in the last Presidential election. He described his first experience with the ballot like this:

"Don't ask me whom I voted for. The two men I voted for were elected."

General Bullard in all his military engagements has never been wounded although he has had some close brushes with death. Once a bolo split the crown of his campaign hat, and at another time a knife dashed his pistol from his hand and bent the barrel of the pistol.

Friends of General Bullard will give a farewell dinner to him at the Hotel Astor on Jan. 14 on the eve of his retirement. Judge Elbert H. Gary, Dwight W. Morrow of J. P. Morgan & Co., Judge George A. Carden, a boyhood friend, and Major Gen. Summerall will be among the speakers.

PUTS BLAME ON TAXICABS.

The fairness of "10 per cent. of the people" having the convenience of taxicab service when it means "a tremendous burden to thousands of other people who never use taxicabs" was questioned last night at the annual meeting of the West End Association in the Hotel Ansonia by Judge Alfred E. Ommen, its President.

"Is it a fair deal for 10 per cent. of the people to have a convenience which is a source of danger and restrains the liberty, comfort and convenience of all the people?" he asked, after declaring that the traffic problem here comes more from the superabundance of taxicabs than from all other causes combined.

"The situation has grown so intense that in our city today there are many people who are afraid to go on the streets because of this constant danger," he said. "The opportunity for children to play has been wholly eliminated. In the City of New York, particularly in the Borough of Manhattan, it is not enough to have an agile mind, but you must also have an agile body. In fact, you need almost the traits of an antelope.

"Probably one reason for the increase in the number of taxicabs is that the average pedestrian feels that it is safer to get into a taxicab and be able to ruthlessly and inconsiderately go where he will at any speed he likes for a small sum of money, than to travel on foot."

BAKER'S COURSE DEFERRED.

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 5.—It was learned definitely tonight that Professor George Pierce Baker, who resigned from the Harvard Faculty a month ago to assume the chairmanship of the new dramatic arts course at Yale University, will not open the course to students until the beginning of the college year next Fall.

In the meantime plans are being formulated by the Yale authorities for the construction of a theatre and classroom building for the new department, made possible by the gift of $1,000,000 a month ago by Edward S. Harkness of New York.

HUDSON

World's Greatest Buy

Everyone Says It—Sales Prove It

Being the world's largest builders of six-cylinder closed cars permits Hudson to give values beyond all comparison.

Economies in manufacture and the experience gained in three years' concentration on closed cars have resulted in the best cars and the lowest prices of our history.

Despite the fact that Hudson has alone offered closed car comforts at open car price, its real appeal has been the brilliant character of its performance.

With the Famous Super-Six

Hudson has the famous Super-Six chassis. Its motor solved the problem of smooth performance. It increased motor and car life to the extent that thousands of cars have service records exceeding a hundred thousand miles. The Super-Six was created by Hudson, is patented and belongs exclusively to Hudson.

Note the prices at which Hudson and Essex closed cars are sold. Think of their values in good looks, in the way they retain their attractions and the little attention and cost required to keep them in first class appearance and condition.

They have reduced closed car costs for thousands. They afford advantages to be found only in costlier cars, and yet their cost is but little more than cars whose sole appeal is price.

WRITES 600 WORDS ON POSTAGE STAMP

SURPASSES PROF. DURSO

Wesley Taylor of 405 West 115th Street, a graduate student at Columbia University, laid claim yesterday to the world's small-writing championship. Mr. Taylor said that he had excelled the microscopic writing feat of Professor Nicola Durso of Lecce University, Italy, who inscribed the history of Montenegro and other lengthy matters on the back of a postal card and sent it to Queen Elena.

The Italian professor succeeded in crowding a total of 11,000 words on the postal card. Thereupon the world's small-writing championship was claimed on his behalf. It had previously been held for more than 300 years by one of Shakespeare's contemporaries.

Mr. Taylor's small-writing masterpiece was accomplished on a small part of the back of a postage stamp. On reading in THE NEW YORK TIMES of the dispatch from Italy, Mr. Taylor made this statement:

"Sometimes I wonder whether there is not something in telepathy, for coincidences in the doing of things seldom or never done before have occurred time and again, as every one knows, and may be surprising if it is not almost uncanny.

Excels Professor Durso's Feat.

"It happens that I have just completed a piece of miniature writing which appears to surpass Professor Durso's in smallness. America has every other kind of championship; it ought to have this one, too. In quantity the Professor's is greater than mine; but per unit of space, if the newspaper reports are correct, mine contains considerably more writing.

"I have written two of Abraham Lincoln's complete speeches, totalling six hundred words, on the back of an ordinary postage stamp.

"The newspaper account does not state the size of Professor Durso's postcard. Assuming, however, that it is 3½ by 5½ inches, the usual size of post cards, we see that he has written 11,000 words in nineteen and a quarter square inches. Now, my writing on the postage stamp measures a tiny fraction less than twenty-seven thirty-seconds of an inch by thirty-one thirty-seconds of an inch, or at a rate that would mean 14,129 words in the same space in which Professor Durso has written 11,000.

"Or, to figure it another way, he has written at the rate of 575 words in a square inch and I at 734 words a square inch."

Mr. Taylor said that he did his work entirely freehand and without the use of a magnifying glass. He used a fine steel pen used in engraving.

Done With Pen and Ink.

"It is only fair to say," he continued, "that, while writing with a stylus on glass or metal, with a microscope or special pantograph, has been frequently and finely done, attempts at miniature writing done with pen and ink, on paper, are extremely rare, and have always been so, though such attempts as have been made have been felt worthy of not a little eulogy on the valuable pages of history.

"From all I have been able to learn, I judge that until the present time the championship has belonged to Peter Bales, an interesting Englishman of many activities, who died in 1610. I have been through all the literature on the subject that I could find in the Library of Congress. The late John Phin, the editor and author, had a wide acquaintance with this kind of art, but unfortunately he died in 1913, having written only a small fraction of what he knew about it."

D. & H. ROAD LOSES ITS VALUATION CASE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—A decision upholding tentative valuations of railroad property made by the Interstate Commerce Commission, by authority of the Esch-Cummins act, was handed down today by the Supreme Court in an opinion read by Justice McReynolds.

The opinion was in the case of the Delaware & Hudson, the Albany & Susquehanna and the Rensselaer & Saratoga Railroad Companies, appellants, against the Government and the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The roads comprise the system operated by the Delaware & Hudson Company. More than a year ago the commission made a tentative valuation of the properties owned by the system on June 30, 1916.

The roads protested the commission's valuation, but before the protests could be acted upon they filed a suit to block the action of the commission in the District Court of the Southern District of New York. The plea was made that in arriving at its valuation, the commission refused to investigate, ascertain and report many facts in relation to values required by the law.

In its opinion today the Supreme Court held that there is nothing to indicate "that the commission wilfully disregarded the law as honestly interpreted, or failed to proceed in an orderly manner, or that it will not consider all the matters set up in the protest."

Justice McReynolds pointed out that there must be further proceedings before the tentative valuation becomes final and that the roads "must pursue the remedy provided by the statute and give the commission opportunity to take final action before they can properly ask interposition by the courts."

Under the McReynolds opinion, it is held here, the Court gives notice that it will not interfere with the tentative valuations of railroad property fixed by the commission until protests of the road have been given consideration by the commission, and the commission itself has made final decisions in the matter of valuations.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, by authority of the Esch-Cummins act of 1920, fixes valuations on which the railroads are allowed a net income of 5½ per cent. as a fair return. This valuation was made of the Delaware & Hudson Co. on March 28, 1923, and led to the appeal.

Despite the decision against the Delaware & Hudson, railway executives declared yesterday that other cases would be pressed.

One official said that the case of the Delaware & Hudson was against the tentative valuation while many cases started by the railroads since have been against the final valuation. All of these will be carried on, as it is declared that each railroad has a different problem.

KISSEL 8

It is the Eight of all Eights—an out-and-out revelation, a startling sensation, a triumphant achievement in the development of the "Straight Eight" type of motor. It is an Eight only as Kissel, and Kissel alone, could build.

You have never in all your motoring career encountered anything like the soft pliancy, nimble acceleration, flashing speed and masterful power of this great Eight. To drive it is to experience an entirely new and stimulating delight in every thrilling mile.

In it are incorporated all of the Latest Advance Engineered Kissel features, including high pressure oiling system, light weight reciprocating parts, new type of aluminum oil basin and thermostatic control. Its bore and stroke is 3 1/16 x 4½—larger than that of most Eights.

Being a Kissel, you will naturally expect much in body beauty. You will not be disappointed, for of all the beautiful Kissels that have been built, this new Eight surpasses them in artistry of design and regal elegance. Kissel did not enter the Eight class until it could build the "class" of the Eights.

All models have that long, low-hung gracefulness which has always marked Kissel as the most distinctive of fine cars. All models have unusually roomy interiors, and this new Sedan has four wide 32-inch doors instead of the usual 28-inch doors of most cars. Note particularly the extra long windows which give clearer vision.

All models have these famous and exclusive Kissel features: Specially designed frame with "kick-up" in front; spring side-play adjustment which prevents all side-play in springs; hand-fitted bronze graphited bearings which eliminate rattles and squeaks; automatic chassis lubrication system under Sidney Dawson patents.

In presenting this Eight in various models and in striking color combinations, Kissel blazes a new trail and sets a new standard of style and performance for the automobile industry.

Hydraulic 4-wheel brakes and balloon tires standard on all models without extra cost

'QUEEN AG,' BY DYING, ELUDES CHARITY AID

Poormaster Finds Once Rich Woman Dead When He Comes to Take Her.

HER KIN TO BURY HER

All arrangements had been made yesterday for Mrs. Agatha Sennett, known as "Queen Ag" in the days when Guttenberg track in Jersey was making racing history, to die as a charity patient in St. Mary's Hospital, North Bergen. But at the eleventh hour she escaped this final humiliation. When Poormaster Henry Zuelch of North Bergen, accompanied by a policeman, called at her home yesterday to take her to the hospital, they found that "Queen Ag" had died during the night. Later, a sister-in-law got in touch with Zuelch and arranged for the funeral.

Thirty years ago when "they're off at Guttenberg" was the rallying cry for the spectacular plungers of the racing horse's heyday, James Sennett and his wife ran the Eclipse Hotel. In a way, the hotel was as famous as Guttenberg, while Mrs. Sennett as "Queen Ag" was known to every bookie and every bettor. During the season, when the day's final race was run, devotees of the races would adjourn to the Eclipse to "re-run" the day's card.

Was a Keen Judge of Horses.

At these gatherings "Queen Ag" was the leader. She was as keen a judge of a horse's merits as any layer of odds, and she was usually the arbiter in any dispute. Her costumes were striking medleys of color, and her diamonds were the only rivals of those of the late "Diamond Jim" Brady. In those days Jim Sennett was rated one of the wealthiest men in Hudson County.

In addition to the hotel, he owned large tracts of land throughout the country and was the owner of many horses. Then the New Jersey State Legislature forbade racing and Guttenberg passed out of existence. So did the Eclipse. After several feeble attempts to hold its prestige the hotel closed down.

Sennett then turned his attention to the turf as owner of a string of thoroughbreds. This took some of his money. A streak of hard luck at the outset took more. Then he produced a consistent performer in Dr. Williams and developed another in Eclipse. His best horse, however, was Our Johnnie, reputed to have flashed under the wire one day when his owner had wagers down that yielded $80,000.

A period of varying luck followed, and the Summer of 1914 found Sennett and Queen Ag at Saratoga. Sennett lost and lost and lost. When he left Saratoga he was heavily in debt. All of his holdings except three houses went to square his losses. Two years later Sennett died. "Queen Ag," her glory gone, sold the three houses and for a time managed to live fairly well.

Moved Into a Little Room.

Two years ago, suffering from a complication of diseases and with her funds low, she rented a small room from a family named Romonda. In the periods when her illness permitted she would boast of the "old days." Gradually the sickness gained on her. Last Sunday night she grew suddenly worse and became delirious.

Raving, she thought she had slipped back thirty years. The fever gave strength to her weakened body and she again saw the horses sweeping into the homestretch and straining down to the stand. Again she would talk to racing figures dead and forgotten years ago. Those with whom she lived arranged for her removal to the hospital, where she might get good care, but her death yesterday forestalled their plans.

Banton Names J. G. Schurman Jr.

Jacob Gould Schurman Jr., son of the former President of Cornell University, was appointed a Deputy Assistant District Attorney yesterday by District Attorney Joab H. Banton. The new prosecutor is 30 years old. He was graduated from Cornell in 1917. Since his subsequent graduation from Harvard Law School the Deputy Assistant District Attorney, who is a Republican, had been associated with the law firm of Rounds, Schurman & Dwight.

EYE-WITNESSES TELL OF PRISON FLOGGINGS

DENVER, Col., Jan. 5.—Warden Thomas J. Tynan today continued his absence from the State Penitentiary at Canon City and the State Civil Service Commission prepared a second formal notice to him, detailing the charges made against the Warden by Governor William E. Sweet.

The charges of incompetency and cruelty to prisoners were based on affidavits of prison employes and others and on the report of Thomas Mott Osborne, who conducted an investigation last Summer.

Today new disclosures on conditions at the penitentiary were made in the affidavits filed before the commission in support of the charges against the Warden and his deputy.

In addition to the sworn statements upon the flogging of prisoners, the charge also was made that convicts were taken to the Tynan ranch to work for the Warden.

His affidavit said that he saw and personally examined the body of one Simmons, an inmate of the penitentiary, after Simmons had been flogged; that it was about six months before the sores and wounds on the body of Simmons were fully healed; that after the flogging Simmons was subject to severe heart attacks, gradually became a physical wreck, and now is an inmate of the insane ward.

Two years before this incident, the deponent declared, three prisoners, Hubbard, Rucker and one whose name he did not know, were flogged on charges of stealing some necklaces, and were later found to have been innocent.

"I examined his body, and from the middle of his back down to the middle of his thigh the flesh was practically raw.

"During the latter part of 1923 a complaint was made against a Mexican inmate of Cellhouse 2, and aptain Frank A. Watt, who was then on duty, ordered me to unlock the dark cell in Cellhouse 1 for the purpose of confining said prisoner therein.

"I saw the prisoner as he came out of Cellhouse 2. He had a deep scalp wound from which he was bleeding freely and he appeared to be in a dazed condition. Captain Watt began kicking the prisoner and kicked him all the way across the dining room to Cellhouse 1.

"Although this prisoner had a bad wound on his head from which the blood was flowing freely he was locked up in said dark cell and was not given any medical attention or treatment until the next day."

SAVES SICK MAN BY PHONE.

Operator Sends Help as He Calls and Drops Receiver.

Miss May Carrick, a telephone operator in the Bergen Exchange in Jersey City, was seated at the switchboard shortly after 10 o'clock last night when the telephone at 284 Duncan Avenue flashed and she heard a man exclaim: "For God's sake, send a doctor; I'm dying!"

The girl sent an ambulance and rang Police Headquarters. A policeman went to the house, and the operator hearing him, over the telephone, rapping on the door, again telephoned to Police Headquarters to send word to the policeman to break down the door.

"I can hear the man gasping," the girl said. "Listen in and you will hear him."

Police Operator Gross sent four detectives in automobiles. He and Miss Carrick heard the blows of the detectives on the door, and then heard the ambulance surgeon tell them that the man was in too serious a condition from heart disease to be taken to the hospital.

One of the detectives then noticed the telephone receiver hanging where it had slipped from the sick man's grasp. When he started to speak he found both Gross and Miss Carrick on the wire. He told them that the sick man was Patrick J. Colcoran. Mrs. Corcoran returned as he was speaking and explained that her husband was a victim of asthma. He had sent their son, in her absence, for a priest when he felt the attack coming, and had collapsed immediately after. His condition late last night was said not to be serious.

Knitting Mills Have a Jubilee.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the New York Knitting Mills was celebrated last night with a dinner and entertainment at the Hotel McAlpin. The mills, located in West New York, N. J., had as guests 300 buyers of department stores of the city. A comic opera, "A Roaming Romeo," was presented by the Talismar troup of the Little Theatre, Brooklyn. Albert Geiser, Superintendent of the factories, welcomed the guests.

GEN. FRIES DEFENDS CHLORINE TREATMENT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Officials of the New York Department of Health, who minimized the chlorine treatment for colds and pneumonia, were answered here tonight by General Amos A. Fries, chief of the Army Chemical Warfare Service in an address to Army Reserve officers and the Washington Section of the American Chemical Society at the Raleigh Hotel.

Among other statements the General declared that in a room in the Capitol near the Senate Appropriations Committee headquarters, the chlorine treatment was given to twenty-three Senators and 168 Congressmen, and that the clerical assistants and friends of the legislators brought this group of patients up to somewhere near 1,000.

"Inasmuch as no accurate record was kept of these cases," said General Fries, "the percentage cannot be given, but from the nearly unanimous approval of the treatment I am perfectly sure the record of cures and improved cases was the same as among the 1,970 treated in a room of the office of the chief of the Chemical Warfare Service."

General Fries had stated earlier in his address that of the 1,970 patients to whom he referred, 87 per cent. had reported themselves improved or cured.

BANK DEPOSITS SEIZED.

Receiver for Missing New York Merchant Seeks $30,000.

Federal Judge Rellstab in Newark yesterday directed seizure of $30,000 deposited in three banks in Asbury Park by Samuel Ehrenzweig, former proprietor of a cloak and suit establishment at 28 West Twenty-seventh Street, New York, who disappeared after an involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed against him.

Creditors said Ehrenzweig's liabilities were $100,000 and his assets $1,000. Counsel for the ancillary receiver asked that the money in the Asbury Park banks be seized and turned over to him to be apportioned among the creditors.

NOBODY yet knows just what a vitamin is. It's an unidentified, but essential, something in our food. Yet Science knows many different things the different vitamins do. Science knows that one vitamin, say A, will not serve for either B or C. Yet all are equally important.

It is further important for you to know that not many foods contain all three vitamins—that some of your foods contain none!

HIGH COURT UPHOLDS LAKE DRAINAGE BAR

COMPLIANCE IN SIXTY DAYS

Injunction Cuts Flow Into Sanitary Canal From 10,000 Feet a Second to 4,167.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The Federal Government, the State of New York and other Commonwealths bordering on the Great Lakes won a notable victory today when the United States Supreme Court upheld their fight to prevent the City of Chicago from diverting enormous quantities of water from Lake Michigan for purposes of drainage and sanitation.

In an opinion prepared by Associate Justice Holmes and read by Chief Justice Taft the Court decreed that the injunction limiting the Chicago Sanitary District to a water flow from the lake of 4,167 cubic feet per second, originally granted by Federal Judge Carpenter, should become effective within sixty days.

The Chicago Sanitary District is now, and has been for several years, withdrawing 10,000 cubic feet per second from Lake Michigan, despite the issuance of a permit by the Secretary of War limiting the diversion to 4,167 cubic feet per second.

The Federal Government accordingly entered suit to enforce the terms of the permit of the Secretary of War, and an injunction was issued by the Federal Court for the Northern District of Illinois. The sanitary district took an appeal to the Supreme Court, which today upheld the injunction granted by the lower Court.

In the appeal to the Supreme Court, the States of New York, Michigan, Minnesota, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin and the Lake Carriers' Association joined the Government in contending that the Chicago diversion tended to lower lake levels and therefore was prejudicial to the interests of navigation as well as the development of power.

All Contentions Sustained.

Today's decision sustained the contention of the Federal and State Governments in all particulars, the Court declaring the case to be one of gravity and importance.

The only loophole left to Chicago in its fight to continue to use 10,000 cubic feet per second for sanitation purposes was contained in the last clause of the decree, which stipulated that the decision should be "without prejudice to any permit that may be issued by the Secretary of War in accordance to law."

Ultimately Congress will be asked to enact legislation legalizing the 10,000-foot water flow. Bills to this effect are now pending with the endorsement of the Illinois delegation in Congress. After the decision was announced, members of Congress conferred in the situation were called to meet in the office of Chairman Madden of the House Appropriations Committee.

"This case concerns the expenditure of great sums and the welfare of millions of men," Justice Holmes said in the opinion.

"But cost and importance, while they add to the solemnity of our duty, do not increase the difficulty of decisions except as they induce argument upon matters that with less mighty interests no one would venture to dispute. The law is clear and when it is known the material facts are few."

Referring to the fact that the lower Court, over which Judge Kenesaw M. Landis presided, withheld a decision in the controversy for about six years, Justice Holmes observed that "no valid excuse was offered for the delay."

Treaty Obligation Emphasized.

The Court ruled that as the law stands the injunction prayed for must be granted.

"Probably the dangers to which the citizens of Chicago will be subjected, if the decree is carried out, are exaggerated," said Justice Holmes, "but in any event we are not at liberty to consider them here as against the edict of a paramount power."

"The United States is asserting its sovereign power to regulate commerce and to control the navigable waters within its jurisdiction. It has a standing in this suit, not only to remove obstruction to interstate and foreign commerce, the main ground, but also to carry out treaty obligations to a foreign power bordering upon some of the lakes concerned, and it may be also on the footing of an ultimate sovereign interest in the lakes."

It was pointed out that the 1909 treaty with Great Britain expressly provides against uses affecting the natural level or flow of boundary waters without the authority of the United States or the Dominion of Canada, within their respective jurisdictions and the approval of the international joint commission agreed upon therein.

Federal Authority Held Superior.

"The main ground is the authority of the United States to remove obstructions to interstate and foreign commerce," the opinion continued. "There is no question that this power is superior to that of the States to provide for the welfare or necessities of their inhabitants. In matters where the States may act, the action of Congress overrides what they have done.

"Evidence is sufficient, if evidence is necessary, to show that a withdrawal of water on the scale directed by the statute of Illinois threatens and will affect the level of the lakes, and that it is a matter which cannot be done without the consent of the United States even were there no international covenant in the case."

The Court held the Government is not estopped, as Chicago alleged, from enjoining the withdrawal. Further, it held that the withdrawal, such as has been in progress, is prohibited by Congress, except so far as it may be authorized by the Secretary of War.

With regard to alleged rights of States bordering the Mississippi, including Missouri, Tennessee and Louisiana, and the complaint of the City of Chicago that it is threatened with a loss of $100,000,000, the Court said:

"The interest that the river States have in increasing the artificial flow from Lake Michigan is not a right but merely a consideration that they may address to Congress, if they see fit, to induce a modification of the law that now forbids that increase unless approved as prescribed. The investment of property in the canal and the accompanying works took the risk that Congress might render it valueless by the exercise of paramount powers."

To Confer on Chicago Emergency.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—Energetic measures will be taken at once to protect the Chicago area from a probable increase in disease, which it is expected would result from the reduction of the flow of Lake Michigan water through the Chicago sewage system as ordered by the Supreme Court today.

These steps will be outlined at an emergency meeting called for next Saturday, it was decided by the Sanitary District Trustees late today. Mayor William E. Dever, the Aldermen and all public officials of this city and of villages in the Sanitary District, as well as commercial, industrial and civic leaders, will be present to consider the emergency.

The Sanitary Trustees and Major Rufus W. Putnam, Regional Army Engineers, considered applying to the Secretary of War for a permit to continue the present flow until new steps had been taken to dispose of Chicago's sewage. A move to ask Congress to enact a law making the present flow of 10,000 cubic feet of water per second legal, was also started.

BRUSH SISTERS FILE PLEA.

Ask Court to Lift Restrictions on Release From Hospital.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 5.—The Misses Ada Madison and Phoebe K. Brush, aged sisters who recently obtained a verdict, which was set aside, of $10,000 each against Dr. Walter Gibson and Dr. William Lindsay of Huntington, L. I., for alleged false commitment to the Kings Park Hospital, applied today to Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins, through their attorney, Clarence Alexander of Yonkers, for an amendment to their order of discharge from the institution.

The attorney said that there was no reason for the provision made by Justice Tompkins at the time of their release on March 18, 1920, that they be placed in the custody of Mrs. Helen Ferguson of Elmsford. The stipulation also provided that they should not visit Huntington, where they formerly resided.

Mr. Alexander said that the women had been declared sane and that there was no reason for further stipulations.

Count Michael Karolyi, whose property in Hungary was ordered confiscated after he had been charged with high treason, will arrive here on the President Roosevelt of the United States Lines late tomorrow or early Thursday. It was said at the hospital last night that the Countess was progressing favorably.

KOSHER LAW UPHELD BY SUPREME COURT

TWO ATTACKS ANSWERED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—In an opinion read from the bench today by Assistant Justice Sutherland, the United States Supreme Court sustained the constitutional validity of the New York State laws which make it a misdemeanor to sell any meat or meat products falsely represented to be "kosher" as sanctioned by orthodox Jewish religious regulation.

The validity of the New York "kosher" laws, which are similar to statutes enacted in other States, was attacked on various grounds, it being alleged, among other things, that it was difficult to determine with certainty just what is kosher according to rabbinical law and custom. It also was alleged that the laws were in violation of the commerce clause of the Federal Constitution.

The case came to the Supreme Court on an appeal from a decision by the District Court for the Southern District of New York, which upheld the State enactments and dismissed an injunction that sought to restrain enforcement by the local officials.

The suit was brought by the Hygrade Provision Company, Inc., E. A. Greenbaum, Inc., and Guggenheim & Hess, Inc. They asserted broadly that enforcement of the kosher laws would result in irreparable injury to their business, property, good-will and reputation.

Replying to the contention that it was difficult to determine what is kosher, the Court held that the appellees, by engaging in the business of selling kosher products, in effect, asserted an honest purpose to distinguish to the best of their ability what is kosher and what is not kosher.

"The statutes require no more," said the Court. "Furthermore, the evidence, while conflicting, warrants the conclusion that the term 'kosher' has a meaning well enough defined to enable one engaging in the trade to apply it correctly, at least as a general thing."

Referring to the practice of the appellees, which conduct a general provision business, including the sale and shipment of original packages into and within the State of New York, the Court said:

"It is enough to say that the statutes now assailed are not aimed at interstate commerce, are fairly within the range of the police power of the State, bear a reasonable relation to the legitimate purpose of the enactments, and do not conflict with any Congressional legislation. Under these circumstances they are not invalid because they may incidentally affect interstate commerce."

TEARLE SUED FOR DOG BITE.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 5.—Depositions of two child witnesses were filed in the office of County Clerk Louis N. Elirodt, at White Plains, today in a $25,000 damage suit against Conway Tearle, movie star, and his wife, Adele Rowland, the actress, brought by Jacques Weinberg, a woolen merchant of Chappaqua in behalf of his son, Max.

It is alleged that Max was attacked and severely injured by Happy, a bulldog owned by the Tearles while they were living on an adjoining estate at Chappaqua in the Winter of 1920. The depositions were made by David, 9, and Barbara, 10, children of Frank P. Fairbanks, a professor at the American Academy in Rome. Both of them testified before Elton Gaze, American Vice Consul at Rome, that David had also been attacked by the dog the same Winter.

The case has not yet been set down for trial. It is said that the Tearles are now in Hollywood.

FORBES'S CONTRACT DEFENDED IN COURT

CHICAGO, Jan. 5 (Associated Press).—A detailed statement of the circumstances under which the Pontiac Construction Company received the contract for the Northampton (Mass.) Veterans' Hospital foundation—the act on which the Government bases charges of conspiracy against former Director Charles R. Forbes, and others—was offered by the defense today in the Forbes-Thompson conspiracy trial.

J. W. Thompson, wealthy St. Louis contractor, and partner in the Pontiac Company, is co-defendant with Forbes, charged with having obtained the Northampton job as a result of the alleged conspiracy.

Colonel E. F. Walton, former executive officer of the construction service of the Quartermaster General's Department, who was in general charge of the Veterans' Hospital construction program in the army, affirmed that the first recommendation of the military engineers was against the Pontiac bid, but that some two weeks later they had been won over by the argument of Director Forbes that in the interest of speed the contract should go to that firm.

The army supervisors recommended on July 13, 1922, the witness said, that the contract go to the Northeastern Construction Company, New York, on a bid of $133,00, work to be completed in 120 days.

When Forbes returned to Washington from his Pacific Coast inspection trip on July 19, the witness continued, the Director recommended that the Northeastern bid be rejected in favor of that of the Pontiac Company, which was for $160,000, work to be completed in sixty days.

"Colonel Forbes argued that in view of the approaching Winter the sixty days' saving in time would more than offset the money difference of $27,000," Colonel Walton said.

"We did not believe that any one could do the job in sixty days, but it was finally agreed that the overtime penalty should be increased from $150 a day to $450 and that, under these circumstances, the award would go to the Pontiac Company."

Move Declared Not Unprecedented.

James S. Easby-Smith, counsel for Forbes, then established through technical questions that it was not unprecedented in the handling of War Department contracts to award work to a firm bidding higher in money but lower in time than the low bidder in money alone.

The Government introduced in evidence today a document offered to support the prosecution allegation that Elias H. Mortimer, the chief Government witness, had been given an interest in a Colombia (South America) railroad, oil and mining concession syndicate in return for his influence with former President Harding.

E. G. Dahlberg, a member of the syndicate in which Thompson and his partner, J. W. Black, were interested, testified last week that Mortimer had offered on April 7, 1922, to have President Harding invite the President-elect of Colombia, who then was in New York, to a White House luncheon, and to have President Harding speak in complimentary terms of the syndicate members. It later became apparent to his associates, Dahlberg continued, that they had been "taken in by Mortimer's line."

In connection with this testimony, the Government today introduced a letter, dated May 8, 1922, from Black to W. D. Pratt of Kansas City, Mo., another member of the syndicate, in which reference was made to an anticipated meeting between President Harding and the President-elect of Colombia.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Jan. 5.—Dr. Norman White, Director of the League of Nations Bureau of Epidemics, will leave here this week for Singapore to preside over a conference of fifteen sanitary representatives of nations of the Far East.

The occasion is the opening of the new Ethnological Bureau in Singapore, which was decided upon by the Council of the League, to study the fight against cholera and smallpox. The Rockefeller Foundation donated to the institution £25,000 for five years, on condition that not more than £2,000 should be spent the first year.

The new bureau will be in constant wireless communication with the League headquarters here, which will broadcast the reports to all interested sanitary authorities in the world and also to ships visiting Far East, thereby greatly simplifying the sanitary formalities in ports.

ACTION ON PARK DEFERRED.

Connolly Opposes City's Buying Ground Used as Dump.

The opposition of Borough President Maurice Connolly of Queens caused the Board of Estimate yesterday to postpone action on a project sponsored by the Elmhurst Community Council for acquiring 240 acres of meadowland in the Second Ward of Queens, now used as a refuse dump, for park and playground purposes. Arthur S. Tuttle, Chief Engineer, and Peter J. McGowan, Secretary of the Board of Estimate, were instructed to investigate the merits of the project. The question will be brought up again in two months.

"I am opposed to converting a defunct garbage dump into a park or playground," said Mr. Connolly. "That spot could not be made a park in twenty-five years, as it would take that time for the present refuse there to settle."

BISHOP BRENT URGES LEAGUE AND COURT

PUZZLED BY HESITANCY

Appeals in Philadelphia Address That Senate Act on Court as Both Parties Advocate.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 5.—Making a plea for the entrance of the United States into the League of Nations and the World Court, the Right Rev. Charles H. Brent, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Western New York, declared in an address before the Philadelphia Forum tonight that the World Court was the pinnacle of human effort in the direction of peace and order. Without it, he said, no association of nations could function normally.

"In all relationships of life," Bishop Brent said, "there must be some final arbiter. On this principle is built everything that is precious to civilization, whether in religion, science or politics. Whatever difference of opinion there may be as to what or who this final arbiter shall be, a final arbiter there must be."

Asserting that the Permanent Court of International Justice was essentially American statesmen of more than one generation," Bishop Brent said it was a puzzle to him why it should be treated as it is by America.

"It was presented to the country by the party in power as a measure of major importance in response to a demand of the people for a definite and constructive foreign policy," said the speaker. "It was endorsed by the opposition. Yet nearly two years have elapsed without official action, and it is in peril of death from neglect on the part of its own parents. I appeal to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in behalf of the American people, in the interests of Democratic Government and of common fairness that the matter be reported to the Senate for action before March 4.

Declaring that a multitude of Americans advocated orderly processes as a reasonable and practicable substitute for war, Bishop Brent said they looked "expectantly to Congress for leadership in the shape of concrete proposals."

"The public is not ignorant of the limitations of the permanent court," he added. "They know that all it can hope to be is a new agency making for peace and decreasing the likelihood of war, the best practical measure in sight. It is not a perfect or final instrument. Behind its advocacy is the hope and expectation that it will hasten the day when reason and sentiment, law and order, common sense and a sense of humor will reign in international policy, displacing war by a supreme court with final jurisdiction."

BULLARD'S SON SUED.

Former Wife Asks $10,000 Under an Alleged Agreement.

Robert Lee Bullard Jr., son of Major Gen. Robert Lee Bullard, retiring Commander of the Department of the East, was sued in the Supreme Court yesterday by his former wife, Mrs. Mary Porter Bullard, for $10,000 under an agreement alleged to have been made with her on Aug. 16, 1923.

The complaint alleges that on Aug. 16, 1923, an account was stated between her and her husband for loans made by her, and he executed a note for $10,000, "payable after date as contracted to her."

Mrs. Bullard divorced her husband in Detroit last April, when she testified that she had lent him $10,000 and he lost it in speculation. A letter from his father expressing doubt that his son could "make good" was put in evidence.

FUNSTON OUTLINES SCHENECTADY PLANS

SAYS CITY IS "NOT SO BAD"

Question Arises Over His Status If He Should Accept Salary There.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Jan. 5.—Captain William H. Funston of the New York City Police Department walked into Police Headquarters here today and made himself at home, where he is to direct police activities, reorganize the department and bring about certain enforcement of law and maintenance of order.

The new Director of Police met the sergeants, the detectives and the men. He talked with committees from the Chamber of Commerce and the Ministerial Association. He opened upward of 300 letters and telegrams of congratulation. He laughed at threats of violence against his life. At the end of the day he apparently had won the unanimous approval of both the Police Department he had come to reorganize and the city he had come to protect.

At odd times the new Director took occasion to explain he found conditions in Schenectady "weren't so bad" and that he felt the "application of New York methods would bring New York results." He declared he planned no sweeping reorganizations; said they were unnecessary. The men on the force were sound, he declared, and while ways of doing things might be a bit antiquated it required only more modern training and a little time to put the department on an efficient basis.

While Captain Funston was getting acquainted, Mayor William W. Campbell and Police Justice Charles G. Fryer, were in New York City trying to unsnarl a technical tangle which might prevent the Captain from drawing his $650 a month pay while in this city, or result in severing his connection with the New York department.

It was explained that New York ordinances provide that any salaried man of the metropolitan forces who accepts compensation for work in another city automatically forfeits connection with the department. As a consequence Captain Funston was not sworn in when he began his duties here, nor did he take the oath of office.

HOMICIDE COURT OPENED.

Magistrate McCloskey Installed in Brooklyn's New Tribunal.

Brooklyn's new Homicide Court, located in the old Town Hall of Flatbush, was opened yesterday with elaborate ceremonies, and Magistrate Francis A. McCloskey was installed. It is expected that a Traffic Court will soon be established in the Town Hall, and with the accomplishment of this hope, Flatbush will have a court centre all its own, for the Police Court and the Sixth District Municipal Court occupy a new building adjoining the Town Hall.

Delegations of civic organizations and sixty motorcycle police met at the court at noon and escorted Magistrate McCloskey to Oetjen's on Church Avenue, where a luncheon was given in his honor. Joseph N. Neef, President of the Flatbush Chamber of Commerce, presided. The speakers were Chief City Magistrate William McAdoo, Chief Clerk William Delaney of the Brooklyn Magistrate's Courts, District Attorney Charles J. Dodd, and Deputy Police Commissioner John A. Leach. Magistrate McCloskey made a reply. He was the recipient of an ivory gavel and other gifts.

The new court's staff includes Thomas Higgins as Chief Clerk, Edgar J. McNerney as Complaint Clerk, and Joseph F. Dunn as Warrant Officer.

Court Has a Woman Attendant.

The first woman attendant in the Magistrates' Courts of Manhattan took up her duties yesterday at Washington Heights Court. She is Mrs. Helen Galvin of 3,375 Broadway, mother of three children and widow of M. O'Neill Galvin, an attorney. Before she passed the court examination she was in charge of the final claims adjustment section of the State Income Tax Bureau. Her coat yesterday was similar to a policewoman's, with a military collar, but had a narrow waist. A long blue skirt matched the coat.

RECORD CROWD VIEWS CARS

Never before in the history of national automobile shows in New York City has there been so large a Monday attendance as was seen yesterday in the 258th Field Artillery Armory in the Bronx, where the Silver Jubilee show of the motor car industry will be in progress throughout the week. The large crowd at the formal public opening on Saturday night indicated strikingly the interest of the motor-using public in the 1925 models.

In conjunction with the show, a series of luncheons, conventions and various dealer meetings began yesterday. John N. Willys was host at a luncheon at the Hotel Biltmore, at which he announced that beginning today a reduction ranging from $35 to $135 would go into effect on the Overland four-cylinder models. The largest reduction is on the steel body sedan, which is reduced from $850 to $715. The new coupé price is $635, while the roadster and touring car are reduced from $530 to $495.

New Six-Cylinder Models.

In the armory the new six-cylinder models of both the Overland and the larger Willys-Knight cars are being shown for the first time. The six-cylinder Overland has a chassis wheelbase of 112¾ inches, long enough for beauty and easy riding and short enough for easy handling and parking. It is being made for the present in two models, a standard sedan and a de luxe sedan.

In the new Willys-Knight sixes the sedan and brougham have low set bodies of sweeping lines. The roadster has a permanently built solid top. In the rear deck is an auxiliary seat for two.

The four-cylinder Willys-Knight models have been altered in body design, the radiator and hood now conforming to the six-cylinder cars. Foot brakes operate on the rear wheel brake drums, but the hand brake is operated on a seven-inch drum at the rear end of the transmission.

The National Automobile Dealers' Association opened its annual convention in the Hotel Commodore and C. A. Vane, the general manager, told about the improved conditions attending the selling of used cars which have been taken by dealers in partial exchange for new machines.

Charles D. Hastings, President of the Hupp Motor Car Company, presided at a luncheon in the Commodore attended by about five hundred representatives of the factory and dealer organizations. The merits of the new eight-cylinder Hupmobile car exhibited this week for the first time were discussed. The popular four-cylinder Hupmobiles will be continued with many improvements.

An Eight-Cylinder Line.

Among the many interesting cars at the show are the five closed models and the Playboy roadster displayed in the Jordan booth. They are all mounted on the new eight-cylinder chassis. Balloon tires, hydraulic four-wheel brakes, dash clocks and automatic windshield cleaners are standard equipment.

The latest addition to the Cleveland models is the coach premier. It is characterized by low graceful lines. The body is Fisher built of hardwood with panels of steel. All contours have been achieved by curves instead of angular corners. The equipment includes an automatic dash controlled window wiper, leather covered sun visor, cowl lamps and full width foot rail.

The Rickenbacker straight eight-motor types make an attractive display with the earlier six-cylinder Rickenbackers. The latter models have been materially improved, the motor being more powerful and the cylinder heads detachable. The roadster is a snappy model, and is made only on special order. In the eight-cylinder Rickenbackers the four-door brougham is a new model. The sport phaeton carries a trunk at the rear.

Shows Eleven New Models.

Marmon is presenting its new line of eleven models. In addition to three standard four-door closed cars at only slightly more than the open models, there are five de luxe models and three open body styles. All are mounted on the standard Marmon chassis of 136-inch wheel base with the Marmon six-cylinder engine.

The Motor and Accessory Manufacturers' Association, with other organizations, is sponsoring a foreign trade meeting to be held in the assembly hall of the armory today.

Charles W. Nash, President of Nash Motors, will speak today at a luncheon of the Nash dealers given by the Warren-Nash Company of this city at the Hotel Pennsylvania. There also will be a luncheon of the Rollin dealers at the Hotel Commodore, and in the evening the annual dinner of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce at the Commodore.

CAR ASSEMBLING DISPLAY.

Group of Ford Workmen Makes Autos in Window.

A part of the Ford Motor Company's assembly plant at Kearny, N. J., has been moved to the Ford Building at Broadway and Fifty-fourth Street, and every day this week Ford workmen are showing the speed with which a fully equipped Ford touring car is put together.

The car assembly is shown in all of its consecutive stages from the fitting of the rear axle to the frame to the placing of the motor and the clamping down of the hood when the finished car is run from its platform rail into the street and driven away.

This impromptu assembly plant is on the main salesroom floor facing Broadway. It continues from 11 o'clock in the morning to 11 o'clock at night and several thousand spectators witnessed the work yesterday. Thirty-six cars are assembled every day by about twenty of the most efficient men in the Kearny plant.

When the body frame is set up and the rear axles fitted the building of the car starts on the conveyor platform, parts being added as it moves along. The motor is swung into place from an overhung hoist and then the body is lowered and quickly bolted to the frame. Four cars are in process of assembly all the time. One car is completely assembled and ready to be driven away for immediate delivery every twenty minutes.

SHOW TRAVEL JAMS ROADS.

Railways Add Extra Sections to Handle Incoming Traffic.

All railroads running into New York reported heavy passenger traffic and some even broke all records because of the opening yesterday of the automobile show. The New York Central ran seventeen extra sections of its various through trains, bringing visitors from the West, and also was called upon to haul heavy extras from the Adirondack region, bringing Winter sport enthusiasts home after the holidays. Most notable in connection with the augmented service was the operation of the Twentieth Century Limited in ten sections.

The Pennsylvania ran extra sections of some of its crack trains to bring a host from the South and the West, and it put extra cars on many others.

The New York, New Haven & Hartford reported extraordinarily heavy bookings from Boston and other New England points, so that it needed extra cars on virtually all trains.

BOXING BOUTS AID CHARITY.

Fifteen hundred salesmen, many of them just starting on the Spring selling trip, met last evening in the Grand Ballroom of the Hotel Astor, enjoyed a "prosperity smoker" and witnessed some boxing bouts and a vaudeville program. The tickets gave no inkling as to who sponsored the entertainment, which was without admission price.

After several boxing exhibitions, Max D. Steuer made an appeal for assistance for the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies. He was followed by the Rev. Stephen S. Wise.

As a result of that appeal membership blanks were signed by a majority of those in the audience. Each signature was a pledge for $10 and it was announced at the close of the evening that about 500 new members had been signed up and an equal number of old members had renewed their subscriptions.

TO PROTECT BRIDGE POLICE.

Five Traffic Towers Will Be Erected on the Manhattan Span.

William Wirt Mills, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, wrote Police Commissioner Enright yesterday that his department is fabricating in the Brooklyn Bridge shops steel for the erection of five traffic towers on the main roadway of the Manhattan Bridge.

"These towers," said Mr. Mills, "will be supported over the main roadway on trusses thrown across the roadway so as not to offer obstruction to traffic, the trusses being high enough to be cleared by the highest vehicles."

The men assigned to Manhattan Bridge police duty have been injured by automobiles at the rate of one a month, and Patrolman Thomas Gaffney lost his life.

GASOLINE OUTPUT SETS NEW RECORD

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Records were broken in the production and consumption of gasoline during November, according to the survey made by the Department of the Interior, and stocks of gasoline at the end of November were the lowest recorded since Jan. 1, 1924.

Production of gasoline in the United States in November was maintained at the rate of 25,400,000 gallons per day, the highest daily average output ever recorded. The month's production figure of 762,046,475 gallons was an increase of 1,500,000 gallons over the production figures for October. November being one of the shortest months, the total production figures fell 17,000,000 gallons below the high record production figures for May, 1924.

Domestic demand or consumption of gasoline during November amounted to 695,359,199 gallons, a daily average of 23,200,000 gallons, and an increase of 29.1 per cent. in daily consumption over the November, 1923, period.

This represents a decrease in the rate of consumption of gasoline from the previous month of approximately 1,000,000 gallons per day, or 4.4 per cent. The figure compares with a drop of 12.9 per cent. during the corresponding period a year ago, and indicates a more sustained use of motor vehicles in the Winter months of 1924 than in those of 1923.

Eighteen Days' Supply on Hand.

Stocks of gasoline on hand at refineries in Dec. 1 amounted to 1,133,163,556 gallons, a decline of 19,000,000 gallons during November. This is the lowest gasoline stock figure recorded since Jan. 1, 1924. These stocks represent eighteen days' supply at the current rate of domestic demand, comparing with fifty-five days' supply on hand a year previous and forty-seven days' supply as of Nov. 1, 1924.

The production of kerosene in November was reported to the Bureau of Mines as 234,000,000 gallons, a daily average of 7,800,000 gallons and an increase of 4 per cent. over the daily production of the previous month. Stocks increased 29,000,000 gallons to a high figure for the year of 337,000,000 gallons. This increase in stocks was due to the falling off in exports from 90,000,000 gallons in October to 67,000,000 gallons in November.

Lubricants' Demand Grows.

The production of lubricants during November was 95,000,000 gallons. Stocks on hand Dec. 1 were 242,000,000 gallons, the lowest for the year and a decrease from the previous month of 6,000,000 gallons. Domestic demand increased 8,000,000 gallons during the month, to 70,000,000. This represents a daily average of 2,230,000 gallons, the highest for the year and an increase of 17 per cent over the daily average consumption for the previous month.

The production of paraffin wax during November was 43,000,000 pounds, an increase of 2,000,000 pounds over the production of the previous month. Exports and domestic demand both dropped off and stocks were increased for the first time in over two years. Stocks on hand Dec. 1 stood at 92,700,000 pounds.

During November the Bureau of Mines received reports from 280 refineries, with an aggregate daily crude oil capacity of 2,318,627 barrels, running to stills a daily average of 1,834,306 barrels of both foreign and domestic crude oil, or 79.3 per cent. of their daily operating capacity. This represents an increase of 1.5 per cent. over the refinery operations of the previous month and an increase of 0.3 per cent. over the operation of November, 1923.

GAS KILLS TWO.

Salesman and His Housekeeper Are Found Dead.

John W. Musgrave and his housekeeper, Mae Feeney, were found dead from gas poisoning in Musgrave's rooms at 264 West Nineteenth Street last night. They evidently had been accidentally overcome Saturday night. Two burners of the gas stove and a light jet were open, and all the windows were shut tight. The two victims were found by the landlord.

Musgrave, according to the landlord, was a salesman for a laundry company. He had lived in the rooms for seven years, and was divorced. The woman, the landlord said, was at one time a member of a vaudeville team known as the Brown Sisters and after she left the stage she had used the name instead of her own. He said that he understood that her home was in Massachussetts.

GIBBS AND COHN INSTALLED.

Louis D. Gibbs was installed as a Supreme Court Justice yesterday. Among those present were I. Gainsburg, Harold H. Knoeppel, Nathan Stern, Paul Morris, former Assistant District Attorney Joseph D. Edelson and Mrs. Ella O'Gorman Stanton.

The other speakers included District Attorney John E. McGeehan of the Bronx, Charles B. McLaughlin, who represented the Bronx County Bar Association, and Supreme Court Justice Peter A. Hatting.

TRY RUSSIAN CANCER 'CURE'

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 5.—A cancer cure is reported to have been discovered at Moscow by the noted physician, Dr. Molotkov, according to the Pravda, a Bolshevik newspaper there. It is further asserted that Dr. Moltokov's cure has been successfully applied in Moscow hospitals by Dr. Grekov, a well-known Russian surgeon.

The reported cure is especially efficacious for throat cancer, it is declared, but great hopes are also held out of its efficacy against stomach cancer.

Facts you should know about Bendix Mechanical 4-Wheel Brakes

You find in the Bendix 3-Shoe Self-Energizing Brake the most important improvement in brake design since motor cars were first built.

335 degrees, or 93%, of brake lining area, and all of it in actual braking contact with drum. Compare that with the 227 degrees of brake lining area in the conventional type of internal brake, and not all of it in effective braking contact.

Because your foot pressure is distributed over so much larger a braking surface, a number of exceedingly important advantages are yours with Bendix Brakes. Motor Car engineers recognize these advantages.

1. More power—Your brakes are much more powerful; several times as powerful as brakes of the ordinary type. The greater area, plus the self-energizing action of the 3 shoes, multiplies tremendously a gentle foot pressure into a smoothly powerful braking force.
2. Longer life—Your brakes last longer. Obviously there is less wear, because pressure is more widely distributed. Therefore adjustment is necessary only at long intervals.
3. Safer brakes—An easy foot pressure on the pedal steadies the car; brings it quickly to a smooth, comfortable stop.
4. Perfect equalization, automatic—Bendix Brakes equalize automatically. It is difficult to "unequalize" them. A high spot on any one brake shoe will wear down first, until there is equal braking force on all brakes at once—a vitally important feature.

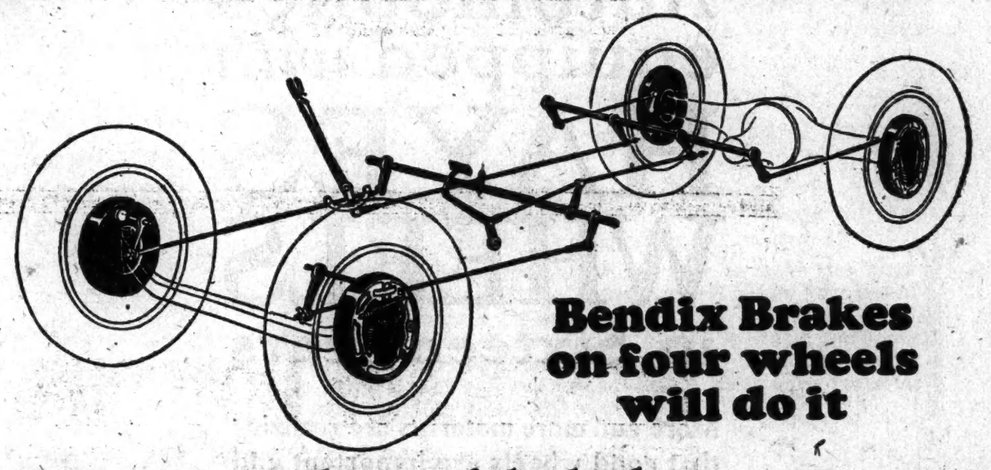
These remarkable brakes have few parts, all sturdily made. There's nothing mysterious about them. They're easy to understand and adjust; every part accessible.

They are fully enclosed; protected from dust, mud, slush of the road. They apply instantly; and release instantly.

They operate on the simplest of all mechanical principles and they're better brakes for that reason. There is nothing to get out of order. A spring may be broken; your axle distorted; three out of four brake connections broken; or even all three conditions at once—your car is still under braking control.

Bendix Brakes are an improved, Americanized development of the famous Perrot Mechanical 4-wheel Braking Systems. To show how widely Perrot Systems dominate European design and practice, read this from "Autocar's" (London) report of the Paris Salon: "In brakes, the Perrot System has improved its position, and is found on probably 75% of the chassis in the Grand Palais. There is no other single system having such a following . . . The hydraulic has lost ground, for Rolland-Pilain, its leading supporter in France, has taken up the Perrot type."

Bendix Brakes have been developed and perfected by Mr. Vincent Bendix; widely known in the automotive industry as the originator of the famous Bendix Drive, in use on the self starters of about 90% of automobiles.



Bendix Brakes on four wheels will do it

You want two things of the brakes on your car—

You want them to stop the car—quickly, perhaps; and comfortably.

And you want them simple and reliable; so that you can understand and depend on them.

You want Bendix Mechanical 4-Wheel Brakes. You'll recognize that you want them when you know the facts about them; see how safe and dependable they are—and how simply they work.

ASKS $275,000 MORE TO FIGHT PLAGUE RATS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Fears of the bubonic plague at New Orleans and in California impelled Surgeon General Cumming of the Public Health Service to ask Congress on Dec. 31 for $275,000 in addition to the $332,910 already approved for fighting this and other diseases, it was revealed today when the Appropriations Committee recommended to the House that the $275,000 should be allowed.

So far, the disease in New Orleans is confined to rats, but it is feared that an outbreak may be caused among the people by the fleas which leave the infected rats.

The rats, which come in on ships, are at present confined to two places where there are wooden wharves, Dr. Cumming said, adding that since a former outbreak New Orleans had done excellent work by rebuilding five miles of old docks with concrete.

Amplifying this testimony Dr. Cumming said that eight infected rats had been found in Oakland, Ca., and that Oakland, Alameda and Berkeley had asked the Government to take hold of the situation there.

Hearings in the $82,000,000 accounting suit of the Jay Gould estate were resumed yesterday before Referee James A. O'Gorman in the office of Taylor, Knowles & Hack, 165 Broadway, with the introduction of documentary and financial evidence taking up all of the day's session.

George A. Taylor, personal representative in this country of Frank J. Gould; Schuyler Neilsen Rice, who was confidential secretary to the late George J. Gould, and William M. Meredith of the investment staff of the United States Trust Company were witnesses.

Action on a proposal to send a commission to France to hear testimony from Frank J. Gould is expected on Friday, when the hearings will be resumed at 10:30 A. M.

Murcote's beauty is convincing—a soft velvety glow—deep in tone—smooth as glass. The new Auburn is the most beautifully finished car at the show.

The 49th State

What every car manufacturer should know about The 49th State and its capital, St. Louis

You are attending the Automobile Show this week to see cars. To display yours, perhaps. To see what other manufacturers are doing. . . . But here are interesting and enlightening facts about a market for cars.

The 49th State stands out as one of America's most promising automobile markets in the year just begun. An area in the very heart of the rich, prospering Mississippi Valley. Radius 150 miles, surrounding St. Louis, its capital.

Here in this compact, naturally concentrated market with more than 4½ million people—more than 1,100,000 families—there are bright prospects ahead for the sale of motor cars in 1925.

In the words of the Babson Statistical Organization:

> "One of the most pronounced business improvements in the last five months has been made in the agricultural regions of which The 49th State is a focal point. As the crop money reaches the city markets this section should show even greater business activity . . . . It is significant . . . . that the amount of business in representative cities is running from 3% to 25% ahead of the same period last year. Favorable agricultural conditions . . . . and the outlook for increased industrial activity . . . . make the outlook for 1925 distinctly favorable."

Economic factors which have made The 49th State a market of remarkable stability during periods of national depression are making it one of the first to feel the effects of business improvement and prosperity.

In Metropolitan St. Louis, where the percentage of families owning passenger cars (48%) ranks high among the country's largest cities, the number of car owners has increased from 110,000 to approximately 135,000 during the past twelve months.

The business is here. The 49th State has the buyers—and they have greater car-purchasing power than they have ever had before.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat, the newspaper of The 49th State, strongly emphasizes the importance of intensive sales effort in this receptive territory. As further expressed by the Babson organization:

"Salesmanagers should take a definitely optimistic position and for the next few months should push advertising and sales as in the good old days."

The results of a thorough investigation show that the Daily Globe-Democrat has greater circulation among St. Louis automobile owners than any other St. Louis newspaper. On Sunday the big influence of this great newspaper among automobile owners is also apparent. Ward by ward and in the suburbs the Sunday circulation closely parallels automobile ownership.

The Globe-Democrat is the car owner's guide throughout the entire 49th State—no other paper even claims to cover this market. The Globe-Democrat regularly carries the big volume of automobile display advertising. Led the second St. Louis paper in 1923 in passenger car and truck display advertising by 69,584 lines. And in 1924 increased this lead to 103,919 lines more than were placed in the second paper. A total of 593,904 lines during 1924.

Our representative nearest you, the Service and Promotion Department, or the Research Division of the Globe-Democrat will be glad to supply any information you desire regarding The 49th State and St. Louis' Largest Daily.

Special St. Louis Automobile Show Number of the Globe-Democrat—Sunday, February 22

The St. Louis Automobile Show will be held the week of February 21 to 28. The big Annual Show Number of the Globe-Democrat will be February 22. Then, as at no other time of the year in The 49th State, the spotlight of pubic interest will be focused upon the motor car and motor accessories. Space should be reserved early for this dominant special issue.

The Eurasian.

EAST OF SUEZ, with Pola Negri, Edmund Lowe, Rockliffe Fellowes, Noah Beery, Sojim Kamiyama, Mrs. Wing Wong, Florence Regnert, Charles Requa and E. H. Calvert; adapted from the play by W. Somerset Maugham, directed by Raoul Walsh; "Franz Liszt," one of the "Music Master" series; Miriam Lax and Adrian da Silva in special prologue; "The Dance of the Rising Sun," from the Eastman Theatre, Rochester. At the Rivoli.

In the film version of W. Somerset Maugham's play, "East of Suez," the industrious Pola Negri appears as a captivating Eurasian with a new and severe coiffure, relieved in some scenes by a becoming white turban, which conceals all but a narrow strip of her jet black hair. She has given an Oriental slant to her eyebrows, and her face, as usual, is a bloodless white. Miss Negri wears several costly gowns that are long and clinging, set off with countless glistening beads.

The Polish star gives an interesting performance in this weak and improbable melodrama, which is not widely different from a number of other Chinese stories. The play is said to have been modified before presentation, and now that it has gone through the scenario mill it has probably suffered to the extent that it would hardly be recognized by Mr. Maugham. His effort, we understand, was a far stronger story, really dealing with the question of the half-castes.

The direction of this effort cannot stand comparison with the brilliant work done by Ernst Lubitsch on "Forbidden Paradise," Miss Negri's previous picture. Raoul Walsh, the director of "The Thief of Bagdad," is responsible for this photoplay, the chief feature of which are the colorful Chinese settings.

Mr. Walsh does not appear to have lost a single opportunity to show that Lee Tai, the forbidding yellow scoundrel whose Chinese heart beats strongly for Daisy Forbes (Miss Negri), has long finger nails covered with chased gold. Lee craftily keeps drugs in the nail coverings, and he is constantly watching for a chance to poison somebody, enlisting the assistance of Daisy's maid in his plotting. And the maid is eventually disclosed as the girl's mother.

The heroic role falls to Edmund Lowe, who, except for a few theatric poses, does very well as George Conway, who is desperately infatuated with Daisy. Conway's uncle, the British Consul, does his utmost to point out to the young man that he will be ostracized if he marries the Eurasian girl, and to a certain extent he succeeds. In everyday life Conway would have abandoned all hope of making Daisy his bride, seeing that she makes the best of a bad bargain and marries Anderson, a scamp who cares naught for society.

In one of the ultra-melodramatic bits of action Conway in a motor boat chases the Chinese craft aboard which Lee has taken the heroine. Conway finally plunges into the water and rescues Daisy.

When Daisy becomes Mrs. Anderson she is told by her husband that Conway must not be seen in his house again. One would imagine that the girl would have been just a little careful, but having, perhaps, a premonition as to what might eventually happen, dines in the open with the man she really loves.

Mr. Walsh delights in showing Lee Tai moving ivory chess pieces resembling the characters. How he can enjoy this game is a mystery, as he appears to be playing the game of life on a chess board. When his servant fails in a murderous mission Lee takes the proffered dagger from the menial and promptly stabs him through the heart. In the end there is a nasty time for Lee Tai, as he is put into a sort of stocks and his neck is broken when the bricks on which he is standing are knocked away.

Mr. Lowe is almost too immaculate as the hero, and Noah Beery, as the uncle, ought to have had a haircut. Sojim Kamiyama is splendid as the soft-footed, sleek Lee Tai.

Du Maurier's Play.

THE DANCERS, with George O'Brien, Alma Rubens, Madge Bellamy, Templar Saxe, Joan Standing, Alice Hollister, Freeman Wood, Walter McGrail and others, adapted from the play by Gerald Du Maurier and Viola Tree, directed by Emmett Flynn; "Grief in Bagdad," a monkey comedy; "Hell Roaring Range," an educational. At the Central.

While "The Dancers," which was translated to the screen from the play of that name by Gerald Du Maurier and Viola Tree, has some entertaining stretches, it winds up as an unconvincing and disappointing story. Certainly better acting in the part of the heroine and real subtlety in the direction might have made it a strong photoplay but Madge Bellamy evidently found the rôle of Una too much for her, and Emmett Flynn adopted heavy tactics in handling important passages.

The producers decided to present part of the production in a South American locale instead of the Western part of the Northern continent. This idea perhaps added to the atmospheric color in that section of the narrative.

George O'Brien, who has been seen recently in several of William Fox's productions, including "The Iron Horse," has a decidedly prepossessing appearance, and in this current effort he displays more knowledge of pantomimics before the camera than he has done before. Under a director who demanded originality and feeling he might easily have given a still better performance. He officiates as Tony, the young Englishman who leaves England and runs a saloon in South America. Although there are signs of his nationality in a blazer he wears, it is rather straining the point to have him wear a native sash and loose linen trousers.

Mr. Flynn's close-ups outdo anything we have seen. There are in this film two of the largest heads ever thrown on the screen, and a deal of slow movements and lovelorn poses.

The plot is spun around a boy and girl love affair. The boy, Tony, years afterward in Argentina, learns that he has inherited a title and £1,000,000. It has always been his idea to return to London and marry Una, but the girl has made several great mistakes. It is arranged they shall be married, but on the morning the ceremony is to take place Una confesses her past indiscretions. Tony is willing to overlook everything, but the girl suddenly drinks poison and dies.

Miss Bellamy's attempt to express hysterics or emotionalism, as it is understood, is utterly unsuccessful. She seems to scream through the scenes with her mouth wide open. In her quiescent periods she is attractive, but she loses this good point when she tries to go beyond her ordinary screen efforts.

By far the best performance in this picture is that of Alma Rubens, who seems to be ahead of everybody in her appreciation of what the situations demand. With a curl of hair over her right eye, she makes a bewitching Argentinian dancer.

A parody on the "Thief of Bagdad," called "Grief in Bagdad," is also shown at the Central. This comedy is chiefly acted by monkeys, who are uncanny in their cleverness. There are a number of photographic tricks, such as the magic carpet and the charmed rope, which are singularly well done.

Columbia Theatre Celebrates.

The celebration of the fifteenth anniversary of the Columbia Theatre, the burlesque house at Seventh Avenue and Forty-seventh Street, began last night, when Fannie Brice and Clark and McCullough made brief appearances at the performance of the "Red Pepper Revue," this week's attraction at the theatre. Will Rogers of the Ziegfeld Follies and George White of White's "Scandals" will appear at a special midnight performance Wednesday.

IGOR STRAVINSKY NOT A 'MODERNIST'

'MODERNIST RUINED WORD'

Guest Conductor of the Philharmonic Declares He Studies Bach in His Own Manuscripts.

Igor Stravinsky put in his first full day in America yesterday by holding a morning rehearsal of his music with the Philharmonic Orchestra in Carnegie Hall, glimpsing the newer skyscrapers of Fifth Avenue from snowbound taxicabs between there and the Hotel Langdon in East Fifty-sixth Street, telling a dozen interviewers his plans on tour here and going at evening to dine and to hear on its native heath the dance music that the Old World has called American jazz.

The Russian composer's abiding impressions of America will be clearer to himself when he sails early in March from here to Spain. After leading three Philharmonic concerts this week, he is to appear afield as soloist with the Boston Symphony and thereafter as conductor or pianist also with the Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Cincinnati and Philadelphia orchestras.

Returning to New York, he is to play his piano concerto Feb. 5 and 6 with the Philharmonic under Mengelberg. A revival of his ballet "Petrushka," at the Metropolitan, planned some time in March, may be even put forward in time to be witnessed by the composer before his departure.

Asked yesterday if he was to be tagged a "modernist" in music, the arch-radical, whose works have stirred violent emotions in audiences for some seasons, replied emphatically in the negative. "Modernism" was already slow for him.

"C'est un mot compromise," he exclaimed, continuing in a Gatling-gun volley of alternate French and German, short, pithy phrases, on the subject of his art.

"It's a ruined word, 'modernism.' The modernists set out to shock the bourgeoisie, and they only succeeded in pleasing the Bolsheviki. My music is neither 'futurist' nor 'passe-ist,' only the music of today."

His "Histoire d'un Soldat," the composer added, was written for the somewhat novel group of instruments now known as a jazz orchestra. He mentioned, too, a "Piano Rag" as a homage to jazz.

The "Symphonies d Instruments du Vent," meaning symphonies in a sense of blended sounds merely, was designed as a tribute on the death of Debussy. The work was, he said, designed as a grand chant, an objective cry of wind instruments, in place of the warm "human" tone of violins.

"Les Noces," likewise a cantata for small chamber-chorus, wind and percussion players, he had written as wedding music of a sort neither religious nor on the other hand, profane. "Octet" is of simpler composition he hoped to present on Jan. 25 at Aeolian Hall.

Among his ballets, he spoke first of the "Sacre du Printemps," lately repeated here by Koussevitsky. In Paris, they had given two versions, one a marvelous creation by Nijinsky, the other equally a "chose ravissant" by Massine.

"The ballets are also effective in concert," he declared. "'Petrushka,' for example, might be compared to a sonata, with its succession of movements, allegro, adagio, scherzo. The music as danced loses in two respects: for the author it is an alien medium, while for the public it diverts attention from the ear to the easier impressions of the eye.

"No, I do not write in quarter-tones," he flashed in reply to another query. "I am richer than an African or Papuan. I was born under the Wohltemperiertes Clavier and I peck my new effects with our familiar 'tempered scale.' I study Bach in his own manuscripts, discovered a century after him, for he was to his contemporaries a man unknown.

"Can you fancy the 'Matthaeus Passion' as Bach made it for wind instruments, organ and männerchor? We hear it today with the voices and orchestra of a Wagner, so to speak, all the harmonies softened and made agreeable to the ears of our own musical contemporaries."

Mr. Strevinsky, monocle in one eye, heavy gold bands on both wrists for a watch, and other matters, stood as he talked by an open piano, on which lay his musical scores. He was dressed for action in a brown-and-rose sweater, which replaced the colorful orange shirt and scarf and black ulster in which he landed from the liner Paris on Sunday.

"We had a great storm," he said of the voyage; "not so much sun as a 20-franc piece," with a gesture of ringed fingers skyward. A box of flowers being brought to his door, he exclaimed, "I hope not my immortal crown."

As to which of his works the composer preferred, he said: "Naturally the one I am at work on at the time. I am not composing now; it requires concentration. But while in America I am making entirely new versions of my works for your mechanical reproducing instruments, forty-four pieces in all.

"Not a 'photograph' of my playing," he explained, "as Paderewski has made of his superb interpretations, but rather a 'lithograph,' a full and permanent record of some combinations quite beyond my ten poor fingers to perform; in effect, a new orchestration for the whole piano keyboard."

CENTURY THEATRE BEING REMODELED

New Equipment Throughout and 408 Seats Added for Opening of 'The Love Song.'

The Century Theatre, which recently housed "The Miracle," is being completely remodeled and re-equipped in preparation for the opening next Monday of "The Love Song," an operetta based upon the life and music of Offenbach.

New chairs and new equipment have been installed throughout and the seating capacity of the theatre has been increased by the addition of four boxes on each side of the orchestra floor, the enlargement of the original boxes on the mezzanine floor to seat sixteen persons each instead of six, and the addition of five rows on the orchestra and first balcony floors. In all, 408 seats have been added, bringing the seating capacity of the Century to more than 3,100, or a larger number of seats than any other New York theatre except the Capitol and Metropolitan Opera House.

New electrical and hydraulic equipment has been installed backstage, including six bridges, which are raised or lowered from a switchboard and upon which thirty operators will be stationed. In addition, the huge revolving stage, which has been in disuse for some years, has been overhauled and will be utilized for a spectacular setting showing the ballroom of the Tuileries in the second act of "The Love Song."

PLANS MUSICIANS' FUND.

Albert M. Bagby Hopes to Establish Endowment for Aged.

The establishment of an endowment fund for pensioning aged and needy musicians was announced yesterday by Albert M. Bagby at the 297th musical morning in the Grand Ball Room of the Waldorf-Astoria.

The income from the fund will be applied to pensions approved by a governing body. Steps have been taken, Mr. Bagby said, to organize a representative advisory board and the Bankers Trust Company, 501 Fifth Avenue, will act as custodian of the funds with one of its officers as treasurer.

Mr. Bagby said that while this was the initial move, he hoped to be able to interest persons of musical inclinations and ultimately to provide a substantial endowment.

THE PLAY

By STARK YOUNG.

A Fresh Family Comedy.

Ellen	Augusta Heyland
Philip Partridge	Edward Emery Jr.
Delight Partridge	Sylvia Field
Stephen Applegate	Charles Waldron
Maisie Partridge	Blanche Bates
Katherine Everitt	Ruth Gordon
Sydney Armistead	Elliot Cabot
Charles Ludlow	C. Haviland Chappell
Clementine	Elaine Ivans
Miss Hamilton	Virginia Chauvenet
Pete	William Worthington
Sam	Edwin Morse

After the first ten minutes last night at the Belmont, when matters seemed to be choosing whether they would be very boring or would get a happy evening under way, "Mrs. Partridge Presents," offered by a new team of dramatists, turned out to be a jolly comedy, sweet-tempered and laughable, and not without some meat to it. To top off these virtues "Mrs. Partridge Presents" was, except for one or two smaller parts, the son in particular, well cast and in general well played.

The pleasant variety of content in this play arose from a twist given to the parental motif. It was not in this case a mother whose youth had been hard and who was resolved that her children should lack nothing in this world. This mother had dreamed of being an artist, an actress who should have the world at her feet. A respectable love match had thrown her into an honored, gloomy house, in which the fear of God had been put upon her by the kin when she had painted an heirloom red. Two children were born. The husband after six years died. The mother took the children with her and went to dressmaking. Her vow was that they should be free to follow what they most desired. She desired for them the life in art which had been denied her. With this in mind she has slaved and prospered. But in the end it appears that her children all along have wanted other lives; they will take their own freedom in their own way, as conventional, regular people.

That shading of the more or less familiar theme manages to give a good slant to the sentiment of the situation in "Mrs. Partridge Presents." The struggle is carried off by the authors with an easy, rippling method pretty well sustained all through and the story is greatly cheered and refreshed by not having to depend on some stock character, some family freak, some wayward spirit or old reliable eccentric to keep it going. It develops through a pleasant interchange of personalities and the combination and clash of personal affairs.

Blanche Bates, somewhat nervous last night, though quite needlessly so, since she had the meaning of her part well enough in hand, portrayed the right mingling of vision, narrowness, hard practicality and honesty that the rôle of the mother demanded. Sylvia Field played prettily the daughter pushed into an artistic career and in love with the most respectable of rich young men. Elliot Cabot Armistead, Elliot Cabot enacted with a very distinct success. Ruth Gordon played capitally a friend of the daughter's and an unremovable visitor to the Partridge home. Whether the girl had design in her vague dullness or was in essence a rather inclusive simpleton was not always easy to say. But Ruth Gordon could be said to have played often last night to a roaring admiration on the part of the audience.

ALL THE NEWS IN LATIN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—A discussion advocating the restoration of Latin as an international language has been going on by correspondence in the columns of The London Times. The latest contribution comes from Professor T. R. Glover, a well-known Latin scholar, who expresses his views entirely in Latin.

While admitting the difficulty of adapting Latin to the uses of the present times with its technical language concerning modern inventions, Professor Glover proceeds to demonstrate it is not impossible. Taking some of the news items which appeared in yesterday's London Times he writes as follows:

"Illud velim dicere, nihil esse inter tot miracula quae tu quotidie nobis effundis quod non possit Latine reddi. Exempli gratia, in pagina tua nona, lego cibum nostrum adulterari, nasci muscas, halucinari fossores, potum gerlum deesse; in Gallia fremere Gallos ne solvant, Americanos ne non solvatur. Non-quivis homini, ut nemini, contingit audire Chicago; tripudiare tauros gaudio, recedere ursos."

Need Not Use Latest Devices.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—In the opinion of the Supreme Court, railroads are required by the Federal Boiler Inspection act to adopt efficient safety appliances, but need not use the latest devices on the market. The Court so held today in upholding an appeal by the Baltimore & Ohio from a judgment of the District Court for Northern Ohio awarding damages to Freda Groegar, who lost her husband, an engineer, in a boiler explosion near Proctor, W. Va.

'IS ZAT SO?' BROADLY FUNNY

IS ZAT SO? A comedy in three acts by James Gleason and Richard Taber. At the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre.

Eddie "Chick" Cowan	Robert Armstrong
A. E. "Nap" Hurley	James Gleason
Sir Clinton Blackburn	Sydney Ricen
Susan Blackburn Parker	Marie Chambers
Major Fitz-Stanley	Victor Morley
Florence Hanley	Jo Wallace
Robert Parker	John C. King
Marie Mestrelli	Marjorie Cressland
Master Parker	Tom Brown
Grace Hobart	Eleanor Parker
Fred Hobart	Duncan Penwarden
John Duffy	Jack Ferry
"Angie" Van Alsten	Carole Farson
Smith	William London

There is much that is broadly amusing in the rough-and-ready comedy called "Is Zat So?" Thanks to the characterizations of its two leading rôles and to the playing of one of them by James Gleason, co-author of the play, the first-night audience at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre was not infrequently in gales of merriment. It is a play written entirely for the exploitation of these two characters, and to that extent successful. Those parts of the play that do not affect these two—and, indeed, a few of the parts that do—might be described as pretty bad. So, too, is some of the accessory acting.

Mr. Gleason's companion in the fashioning of "Is Zat So?" is Richard Taber—like Mr. Gleason not uncelebrated as a player. Between them they thought of the idea of taking a prizefighter and his manager as characters and then went a little further and decided to deposit them in rich and fashionable surroundings. The two playwrights have written racily and presumably accurately in setting down their two principals, but they have been a little at sea when it came to sketching high society. It was a slightly incredible household that was pictured.

In spite of this, however, and despite the further fact that the play has a mechanical and lifeless plot, the evening was almost continuously amusing. Probably no other actor in the land could have handled the rôle of the fight manager as well as did Mr. Gleason. In the main his slang was the slang of yesterday, but the actor caught the accent of life and visualized a complete character. It was a rich rôle, theatrically, but the performance was even richer.

Robert Armstrong was likewise extremely effective, and now and then even subtle, as a fighter. Jo Wallace, too, was pleasing as one of the inevitable mates that the household provided for the invading pair. (In the inevitability of its pattern the play is markedly of the old school; there is the last-act pairing off, and a sneering exit for the balked villain.) Most of the other players are cast in higher realms of society, and the writing of these parts of the play make genuine performances somewhat difficult.

YOLANDA MERO PLAYS.

Pianist Warmly Applauded in a Chopin and Liszt Program.

Instead of distributing her program over three centuries, Mme. Yolanda Méro at Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon focused her attention on two of the most brilliant executants and composers of a particularly brilliant period, Chopin and Liszt. It requires a pianist who can span a large arc to give due significance to the feminism of the one and the masculinity of the other. In the first Chopin group Mme. Méro interpreted the two sides of the composer's individuality with an abundance of technique for his heroic phases and a velvety tone for the passages of sentiment. The greatest applause of the afternoon, however, was reserved for one of the études and the scherzo in C sharp.

In Liszt's composition Mme. Méro presented a harder musical surface for music less imaginative and less original than Chopin's. The music had, however, a driving force which has not yet lost its momentum, and this force was reflected in the performance.

Mme. Méro throughout the concert was greeted with warm applause, flowers, recalls, and at the end of the concert had to satisfy her admirers with four or more encores.

MUSIC

By GLIN DOWNES.

Percy Grainger.

That entertaining pianist Percy Grainger gave his first New York concert of the season last night in Carnegie Hall. The program was of the type that Mr. Grainger has made familiar in past appearances and it was manifest that it met with the approval of the audience.

The Bach-Liszt G minor fantasy and fugue was followed by three novelties of the English composer, Balfour Gardner: the Brahms-Handel variations; a cowboy "Break-down," transcribed by David Guion; "Sheep and Goat Walkin' to the Pasture," David Guion; a prelude in D for the left hand alone, Marion Bauer; Cradle-Song, Brahms-Grainger, and Grainger's paraphrase on Tchaikowsky's "Valse des Fleurs."

Long ago Mr. Grainger made himself popular as a concert pianist through the virtuosity and youthful spirit of his playing. It had what is known as a "breezy" quality, nor was the personal aspect of the pianist the least of his assets with a part of the audience. Sometimes Mr. Grainger rose above his customary level, which was that of a pianist of a special facility and musical gift. He has played Bach as a poet, and there have been occasions when the climax of the G minor fugue would have been, with the same pianist, less noisy and more noble than it was last night.

As for virtuosity, Mr. Grainger was never lacking. When speed, force, excitement were wanted, he had them at command. Observing his unusual talent as pianist and composer, too, and bearing in mind indications of a certain thing deeper than the talent that immediately excited applause, one applauded and waited for Mr. Grainger to grow up.

So far as last night's recital showed, Mr. Grainger had not yet grown up. He repeated familiar effects. He introduced some new music of a rather superficial and pretty nature, which was redemanded by the audience. He played transcripitions with all the fluency and more than the charm of a pianola, and still one waited for the big moment which did not come. There was the admirable clarity and singing quality of tone, the same supple wrists and finger mechanism, the same clear understanding and sure delivery of the passages that went over the footlights. There was, too, a perfectly sane and proper performance of the Brahms variations—with their inner greatness lacking. The towering grandeur, the deep pathos, that might have been given Bach were not felt; the melancholy, the tenderness, at times the bardic utterance of Brahms in the amazing variations that he wove about the bare and unadorned theme of Handel had somehow, somewhere evaporated. The shell was there. There was a perfectly proper dress, tonally and technically, for the musical ideas. The performances were very glib, very plausible, and there interpretation ended.

It is the praiseworthy habit of this pianist to introduce fresh music, particularly when it is based upon folk-songs, in his programs. The three pieces by Balfour Gardiner were announced, respectively, as "Shenandoah," "Adagio non troppo" and "Michaelchurch." Of these the first made the best impression. It is not, as Mr. Grainger explained, a transcription of the famous sailor's chanty, "Shenandoah," but it has nautical flavor and intention. Mr. Grainger sees in the piece an old sailor telling a tale of the Spanish main. The music, at any rate, is unpretentious and pleasing, with a jingle and a swing. The two other compositions run much to sentimentality.

If we are not mistaken it was Mr. Grainger who was principally instrumental in bringing to the attention of American audiences the capital paraphrase made by David Guyon of "Turkey in the Straw," one of the best pieces of this kind, one of the liveliest American tunes, that we know. The paraphrase heard last night, "Sheep and Goat Walkin' to the Pasture," has not for the writer the ingenuity, invention and artistic value of the earlier one. But the piece found favor with the audience and was repeated. The left-hand study of Marion Bauer is fluently written and has a certain mood.

The audience made Mr. Grainger very welcome indeed. He repeated several of his performances and materially extended the program.

CLAIRE DUX CHARMS.

The program presented by Claire Dux last night in Aeolian Hall had unusual novelty and modernity to commend it. The advanced character of certain groups was balanced by Mozart's "Ridenti la Calma" and "Deh Vieni" and the "Prayer," in the older style, by Gordigiani. Thereafter the singer adventured in many fields. "The Ways of the World" is a charming Breton folksong, admirably arranged by Deems Taylor, who appeared as creative artist in another well-composed song, "The Rivals," with text from James Stephens's "Songs From the Clay." John Alden Carpenter chose verse eminently musical and suggestive in quality when he set Oscar Wilde's "Silhouettes."

There followed "The Piper of Love," by Molly Carew; "Liebesbriefchen," Erich Korngold; "Amor and Psyche," Eugene d'Albert; "Wiegenlied" from "Der Schatzgraber," Franz Schrecker; "Mein Auge" and "Schlechtes Wetter," Richard Strauss; "Spring Dropped a Song" and "I Wonder," Beatrice Fenner; "Beyond," Albert Barnett; "The Drummer Boy," Franco Leoni.

Throughout this program Miss Dux displayed her sound knowledge of the principles of her art, her sense of rhythm, her good taste as an interpreter. She was at her best in songs of a fanciful or piquant style, which she sang with charm and style, with a clear if relatively small tone, and the manner of a musician. A large audience filled the hall and showed its enthusiasm.

KARIN BRANZELL RETURNS.

Mme. Jeritza's third appearance in the quaint Czechoslovak opera, "Jenufa," by her compatriot, Leos Janacek, was made notable last evening at the Metropolitan by three or more new artists in the principal associated rôles. Chief among these was the Swedish contralto, Karin Branzell, who returned for the season and whose giant stature and dramatic strength were well displayed in replacing Mme. Matzenauer's recent powerful portrayal of the heroine's foster-mother, figuring largely in the tragic plot of humble peasant lives.

Miss Bourskaya took Miss Howard's rôle also as the grandmother and Mr. Meader that of Oehman as the gentler of the two adopted brothers, rivals in love for Jenufa. Mr. Laubenthal and others reappeared and Mr. Bodanzky conducted the vivid choral and dancing ensembles to a brilliant audience of the Monday opera subscription.

THE STONE NOMINATION.

The expected retirement of Justice MCKENNA from the Supreme Court found the President ready at once to fill the vacancy. There will be natural regret that Attorney General STONE is so soon to be taken away from the work of the Department of Justice, but his eminent fitness for the Bench is unquestioned. To a generation of law students and practitioners he has demonstrated not only that he is a master of law, but that he possesses a "legal mind" and has many of the marks of a great Judge. The sacrifice which he makes in giving up a leading position at the bar, which was his before going to the Department of Justice and might be his again any day he wished it, is one measure of the regard which he has for the highest honor of his profession.

Mr. COOLIDGE will be hard put to it to get an Attorney General so hard working, so independent, so fearless and so successful as Mr. STONE has been, but in nominating him as an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court no mistake has been made. Praise is also due to the President for the promptness with which he moved to fill this high judicial office. All such appointments ought to be freed from suspicion of political motive, and one good way to assure this is to act so quickly that politicians will not have time to devise their little schemes to apply "pressure" to the appointing power.

THIRD PARTY PHILOSOPHERS.

Senator LA FOLLETTE has been refreshingly taciturn in Washington since the election, but in the last number of his Magazine he tells us all about it. It appears that though the Progressives "went to the people in the 1924 campaign" on the issue of monopoly, the election did not turn on it. The reason was that a "conspiracy of falsehood succeeded":

> The little group of men who dictate the prices the people shall pay for all the necessaries of life, and who control transportation and credit, likewise possess the power to control public opinion through their dominant influence over the press, the moving picture, the radio and every other medium for the molding of public sentiment. It was easy to distort facts and to twist truth. * * * Millions of good citizens were induced to vote their fears and their prejudices, without regard for their interests and their liberties. But the issue raised by the Progressives survives. It must become increasingly acute until it is squarely met and rightly settled. Ultimately the American people will see that clearly.

This seems hoping against hope. If the people are so ignorant and stupid, so easily misled, why fancy that 1928 or 1932 would tell a story different from that of 1924? The wicked and lying conspirators will be active against Senator LA FOLLETTE as long as he lives. He may again announce his lofty purpose to "bring the Government back to the people," but if they are so gullible, such a ready prey to deceivers, so given to panic, that they don't know their own Government when they see it, why keep up the unavailing struggle?

From the eyes of some of the La Follette supporters in the West the scales are falling. Mr. C. A. SORENSEN of Nebraska writes to The New Republic that a large proportion of the La Follette voters in the Middle West have made up their minds to have nothing to do with a national third party. They have discovered, he declares, that "a third party is all right" for educational purposes, but it is "not a workable method by which to elect men to office." The arguments by which he maintains this view are admitted by The New Republic itself to be "unanswerable" from the standpoint of practical politicians. However, practical politics "does not consist merely in winning "the next election." There is something higher, nobler, more far-reaching. Yet The New Republic, which so strongly desires "the creation of a partisan instrument of progressivism," sorrowfully concedes that the "kind "of politicians who operate the existing party machinery, no matter "whether they are progressive or "conservative, will never have the "patience and the faith to organize a "third party." It is a sure thing that they will not if they are given to understand that the third party is intended merely to hold up shining ideals in an educational way and never to get a hand on the offices.

It is plain that the nearer the day approaches for organizing a third party the more overwhelming is the evidence that none of an effective sort will be organized. The very nourishers and philosophers of the movement waft back to their broken and dispirited followers messages of despair.

THE PARIS FINANCE CONFERENCE.

The principal purpose of the conference of Finance Ministers tomorrow in Paris is to discuss the apportionment among the Allies of Germany's payments under the Dawes plan. At the Spa Conference in 1920 it was agreed that France should receive 52 per cent. of Germany's payments, England 22 per cent. and the other Allies smaller amounts. No mention was made of America's share, inasmuch as America had no claims for reparations, and the Allies had not at that time failed to hand over to America her portion of Germany's payments for the armies of occupation. It is more than probable that these percentages will now be changed, if for no other reason than that America's share of the occupation costs and the settlements made by the mixed commission will this time be presented for inclusion in the total. It is the American contention that these claims against Germany can be handled with least embarrassment to all concerned if provision is made for them in the distribution of the Dawes plan payments.

Despite the fact that France, Italy and Belgium have admitted the moral right of the United States to participation in the Dawes payments, the British have denied that any legal right exists. Secretary HUGHES wishes to establish a formal recognition of these claims, but has no intention of demanding payment on terms that would embarrass the rights of the Allies. He is apparently even willing to forego absolute equality of treatment, and to accept payment over a longer term of years than that fixed for the Allies. The correspondence which he has exchanged with the British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs has not yet been made public, but it is clear from what has leaked out on both sides of the Atlantic that he has made a strong brief for the legality of the American position.

There is no denying the fact that America's three representatives, Ambassadors HERRICK and KELLOGG and Colonel LOGAN, will not find themselves in a friendly atmosphere. America's claims, whether against Germany or the Allies, have always been resented in Europe. Owing to the recent bitterness about the inter-allied debts, it is not to be expected that America's present demands will be well received. On only one point do all Europeans unite, and for the moment forget their mutual jealousies—that America, as the richest nation that participated in the war, should be the last to be paid.

SMALL AND STERLING.

Governor SMALL of Illinois used to be State Treasurer. The present Lieutenant Governor STERLING followed him in that office. The State sued SMALL and STERLING for an accounting of moneys by them received as interest on public funds. The Master in Chancery to whom the Small case was referred finds that SMALL had made no sufficient report of interest on State funds in the Treasurer's hands. By means of a fictitious bank large amounts of such funds, transferred to an agent, were loaned at steep rates of interest. Certain Chicago packers seem to have been the main customers. The suit was pending during the campaign. The substantial facts had long been known. A Circuit Judge has just held that Governor SMALL is accountable for all the interest that came to him as State Treasurer.

To the Master in Chancery, whose report has been sustained, has now been given the duty of ascertaining exactly SMALL'S indebtedness to the State. The Assistant Attorney General estimates that it is "considerably more than $1,000,000." It is worth mentioning as evidence of the spirit of Republican good fellowship in Illinois that the Attorney General just elected doesn't share in the severity of the present Attorney General, but "pledged himself" in his canvass to dismiss the suit. The State Constitution prohibits any person indebted to the State from holding public office. The Illinois voters were notified of the fact again and again during the campaign. Governor SMALL has his appeal to the State Supreme Court. The case against STERLING is said to be substantially the same as the case against SMALL. If the facts are as the Master in Chancery and Circuit Court hold, both officials are disqualified.

The meeting of the Legislature on Jan. 12 promises to be interesting. If the State Supreme Court sustains the decision of the Circuit Court, what becomes of SMALL and STERLING, assuming that the fate of the latter is the fate of the former? Constitutionally, the yet to be elected President of the State Senate would become Governor. Governor SMALL, however, is a man of infinite resources. He can be depended upon to give a spirited performance. If he has done anything technically irregular, haven't the voters amply "condoned" it?

THE CONCILIATION COURT.

On the first day's calendar of the Court of Conciliation there were fifty cases. One was settled. The Court of Conciliation was set up by Justices LAUER and DAVIES on behalf of the forty-eight Justices of the Municipal Court to save themselves in their hopeless struggles with their crowded calendars. Their thought was that by calling the calendar informally some cases might be got out of the way of other cases in which trials could not be avoided. A sop was thrown to the lawyers in the form of a requirement that only in cases represented by lawyers on both sides should conciliation be attempted. Settlement by agreement is better than an award whether by arbitration or by litigation. In a lawsuit there are so many appeals that a litigant may be impoverished before he finally wins or loses. The defect of arbitration is that there is no appeal and that both sides have a feeling of submitting to injustice.

There are Courts of Conciliation in several foreign countries. The Supreme Court of North Dakota upheld the constitutionality of a law permitting litigation only after a formal attempt at conciliation. The New York attempt to establish a Court of Conciliation would remain merely good advice to those contemplating litigation until the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court should approve the calendar rules of the Municipal Court. In it the Judge makes the move for conciliation because such an overture might be thought a confession of weakness when made by either side. When conciliation fails the trial is to be before another Judge, and even the failure has its uses in revealing the issues and reaching agreement for a trial date. Despite the ingenuity shown in establishing all sorts of courts, and substitutes for courts, the biblical advice to agree with your adversary quickly outranks all other methods.

SCIENCE'S GREATEST ASSEMBLY.

The meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in Washington was the largest gathering of scientists ever held in America. Over four thousand persons were registered as in attendance. Yet this total did not include all who were present at the meetings of the forty-six national societies that met in affiliation with the association. It is a hopeful augury that so many men and women, most of whom have moderate or meagre incomes, should at their own expense come from all the corners of the United States to take part in considering and recording what the many grand divisions and departments of science have to contribute toward the advancement of science as a whole. What this means, as Dr. CHARLES D. WALCOTT said, is the physical, mental and moral advancement of the human race and the conservation of many forms of life not predatory or inimical to the welfare of humanity—a scope as broad as the whole realm of creation.

This powerful organization, which had its beginnings in the association of a few fearless souls who had penetrated the mists that concealed the unknown from others, now embraces not only those who make the researches, but also those who, reviewing the mass of technical information which the researchers bring back, are able to tell the scientific story in simple and clear language. The great mass of men, as Dr. WALCOTT says, have yet to be educated in the scientific method of thought and action.

Science is advanced not only by those who bring back from beyond the verges of last year's scientific knowledge new fragments of truth, whether as astronomers, physicists, chemists, psychologists or biologists, but also by those who make these new acquisitions known to the public. It is here that the press has a still greater service to give. "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof" was written at a time when man knew little about his environment and less about the laws of life. Today the earth, with all its fullness, is increasingly becoming the scientists'. But the people generally ought to be able to share in this vast possession.

There is a happy significance in the election of Dr. MICHAEL PUPIN as the next President. Born in Serbia, coming to America in his youth, finding here the opportunity for a higher education, he has become one of the world's scientific precursors. But in him the poet tents with the man of science. He has been able not only to add something to the store of his own physical science and make a contribution of great practical value, but also to enrich the literature of his adopted land and carry to the lay mind of America something of the rapture of his own enjoyment of creation from the stars to the atoms. He is also one of Secretary HUGHES'S illustrations of nature's indifference to nationality in the selection of her votaries. A Serbian herdboy has become President of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

COLLEGE COMMONS.

The passing of Memorial Hall, or rather of the Harvard commons so long dispensed in it, is no mere local event. It may well be pondered by institutions of liberal education throughout the land. If criticism could have killed it, Memorial Hall would have perished long ago. Sometimes it has been derided for the scantiness of the fare, as when The Lampoon wrote years ago:

> Am I thin? Quite correct you conjecture.
> Memorial Hall is the place
> We breakfast on architecture;
> For luncheon we simply say grace.

Oftener it has been scorned for its superabundance of food tastelessly cooked, hastily and sloppily served. Guests were taken to the gallery "to see the animals feed," or perhaps were introduced with a line of JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL'S to view

> A distant, as GRAY would say, prospect of eating.

But for decades Memorial was thronged. The more fortunate organized themselves in "club tables," where each had his own seat. Others perforce ate at "hotel tables," where the appetite of newcomers—two or three relays of them—was tempered by seeing remains of a predecessor's voracity. That was before the war. Latterly, we are told, the diners have dwindled from well above a thousand to three hundred. It takes five hundred to pay expenses. The loss last year was some $25,000.

President LOWELL, who expresses deep regret at the passing of Memorial, attributes it to an increasing habit of "eating about" at quick-lunch counters, cafeterias and the like. This is one of those explanations that need explaining. If it is true that civilized man cannot live without dining, it is doubly true that the hours of prandial relaxation have a peculiar value in undergraduate life. Dr. LOWELL speaks of Memorial as a place where "men could meet together constantly, have club tables and get "the advantage that comes in college "life from association with a group "of comrades around a common "table." But if it had really afforded those advantages, would it have dwindled and passed? Undergraduates may be deaf to the call of the Muses, but they have a thirst unquenchable for college life and comradeship. Nowhere in America do the commons perform the function of "Hall" in an English college. The real fault with our system is that the commons are not truly commons. Those who, in local opinion, constitute the socially elect dine in club or fraternity houses. At Harvard they number about one-third of each class, and the proportion is said to be increasing. What should be a common meeting ground of all elements in college life is a mere round-up of waifs and strays.

For upward of a quarter of a century educators have realized that college life can be effectively organized and college traditions adequately inculcated only when the student body is split up into subordinate units. That was the basic idea of the "Quads" which WOODROW WILSON planned for Princeton. President LOWELL was himself once a convert to some such idea. But throughout the land educators have continued to lavish money upon laboratory training and research, upon technical and business schools—and to shed copiously sentimental tears over each new evidence of the decline in the true spirit of college life.

FLOREAT BIER!

In a world that looks backward enviously to METHUSELAH and forward hopefully to Mr. SHAW'S revival and continuation of that hardy old perennial, the celebration by Mr. KUPPER BIER of Hoboken of the 105th anniversary of his birth should be registered thankfully. Crabbed infidels like the late W. J. THOMS sniffed at every centenarian and even threw mud on the credentials of Old PARR. But the recording of vital statistics has reached a point where skepticism barks its shins against hard facts. Centenarians abound. The modern competition is for the best record in the matter of a second century. There was a mere centenarian in Plymouth of the Rock a generation ago who picked three quarts of huckleberries and climbed a tree on the day that completed his century. He wouldn't attract any attention now. He was only an amateur.

He disported himself. He was on the retired list. Mr. BIER is doing business as a butcher at the old stand. It is his belief that he is the oldest man in active business in the United States. The competition among members of the Second-Century Club is keen. If the honor be not his—and as yet there is no evidence that it isn't—may he live to establish it abundantly and irrefutably; live as long as he wants! It is a good deal to be four years older than the Monroe Doctrine; and even in Hoboken life may be lived well. To be brisk, sound, in full enjoyment of the play at 105 is an achievement or fortune to be proud of. It is the herald of wiser times when no company can afford to issue an annuity; when perhaps the average age at marriage will again be 65, as Sir THOMAS BROWNE computed it for the patriarchs.

Mr. BIER'S family is reasonably patriarchal. The age of his fourteen children runs from 23 to 70. He has 142 descendants. He has done his duty to society and the tax collectors. President COOLIDGE has asked this representative of the Era of Good Feeling to come to his inauguration. If March is capable of decency, may he come in like a lamb! Mr. BIER is a model for the practitioners of longevity. He has no "system." He gives no advice and directions. He eats a big dinner. He smokes a black cigar. He chuckles to remember that he survived the doctor who warned him that he wouldn't live if he didn't give up smoking. Will physicians ever learn their lesson? This is the almost invariable result of such pernicious advice, given by bullying doctors, their upper waistcoat pockets bulging with Coronas, to their unfortunate victims. Of drink Mr. BIER says no word. Perhaps he is surprised and grateful that the Anti-Saloon League has permitted him to keep his surname in this pure age.

Though Mr. BIER is free of didactic intention, any word of a pioneer of reasonable length of days is worth hearing:

> I've taken care of myself. I have gotten up every morning at 6. I've worked hard, but just the same I've always done just what I wanted to do and have never worried.

Not for a life policy of 500 years would some of us get up at 6 every morning. There are softer varieties of hard work. There may be persons who have never worried. Perhaps Mr. BIER is sole among mortal men in always doing what he wants.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Warden of the Old School.

A report and filing of charges do not constitute a conviction, and Warden THOMAS J. TYNAN of the Colorado State Penitentiary may demand a suspension of judgment until he has had his "day in court." The report on conditions in that institution, however, was made by the National Society of Penal Information after a careful investigation by THOMAS MOTT OSBORNE, and on this the charges filed by Governor SWEET with the State Civil Service Commission against the Warden are based, after what must have been equally careful consideration.

As described, the prison, in the sixteen years of the Tynan management, has become a place of nothing less than horror, with all the old evils and abuses of an age supposed to be passed practiced as settled policy and fixed routine. The Warden evidently is one of those who, with the familiar excuse that he does not "believe in coddling convicts," has treated them with the cruelty common in almost all prisons much later than the Middle Ages. Floggings, prolonged solitary confinement on bread and water in dark, unventilated cells, the dragging of heavy iron balls at the end of short chains fastened about the ankles, and minor disgraces like half-shaven heads and striped garments—all these things have existed at Canon City. It is the way a prison ought to be run, the Warden declares, and he resented and protested against the arrival and presence in his domain of the investigators who brought to bear on him and his customs the ideas and standards of a new and better penology.

There are some incidental charges of corruption, gross favoritism in the selection of "trusties," and the like, but these are small matters in comparison with the archaic tortures by which what was called discipline was maintained. And everything in the report is well documented by affidavits from prison employes of various ranks. That is not the best of evidence, perhaps, and it will need to be scanned minutely.

Sunday night all the radio receiving instruments in this part of the country suddenly became silent. Reception stopped in the very middle of a word or a note, and for more than an hour nothing was heard except an occasional bubbling of "static."

Experienced listeners suspected the real reason of the suspension, but to others there came the fear that their instruments somehow or other had broken down. Immediately there was an inspection of aerials, a testing and tightening of holding screws, a lifting of vacuum tubes, and an energetic dusting of accessible elements of the sets. All this being of no use, there was much telephoning to friends' houses, to inquire if their sets were working, and the first reassurance for these anxious ones came in the shape of information that the interruption was general.

Broadcasting had ceased because there had come in from the Atlantic the never-to-be-ignored S O S, which means a ship in danger and asking for help. So it was all right that all radio activities except those connected with this appeal should come to an end for so long as might be needful. Nobody would have minded the suspension—indeed, everybody would have approved of it cordially—if only just a word of explanation had been given. That could have been done adequately in less than a second, or in not more than one, and there is no obvious reason why that amount of consideration should not be given to the army of listeners-in when these emergencies arise. The announcement would not reach any except those who happened to have their machines in operation at the time, but the news quickly would have spread to the others.

All This Taught Long Ago.

Our municipal health authorities, properly enough, have issued a special caution to all and sundry as to the need at this season not to run avoidable risks of contracting colds and like maladies. The advice given is excellent, though it only repeats what everybody knows as to the danger incidental to sitting in wet clothing and shoes, of dressing otherwise than in accord with the weather—in short what every mother tells her children and most wives their husbands, when the weather is cold or rainy.

However, the best of all precautions against colds is the maintenance of a general condition as near to perfect health as possible. With that goes immunity to infections of many kinds, including those to which we all the time are exposed if we must traverse city streets and ride in public vehicles. The microbes and bacilli of the commoner maladies are everywhere and always—except in the Arctic and on the open sea—but they cannot gain entrance except when resisting powers are somehow weakened. Drafts and wet feet are but the indirect causes of colds and the other respiratory diseases, but it is not true, as the doctors sometimes say, that such things have nothing at all to do with them. Those of us who know from sad experience what the result of sitting in a draft that chills only part of the body is sure to be, are apt to resent such denials.

A Guarding of Morals in Florida.

Censorship has reached the very limit of absurdity down at Palm Beach. That pleasing marge of a Summer sea is not noted for an excessive cultivation of quite all the virtues, but they draw the line there, it seems, on the wearing of white or "flesh-colored" stockings by feminine bathers!

So the custodians of Palm Beach morals, having made some sad mistakes in deciding just what color "flesh-colored" is, have been provided with tinted charts showing the range of color which covers that phrase and with it they compare what they see as the bathers cross the sands. Some they drive away in disgrace and the rest they allow to enter the water.

The particular viciousness of the rather indeterminate shade mentioned is not explained, or just what harm its presentation to view does to anybody. This doubtless is clear enough to such powerful minds as censors of all kinds possess, but to common folk it ever will remain a deep mystery why even no stockings at all on anybody would not be compatible with both innocence and innocuousness.

A Protest Against Cubist Music.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish to protest against the inclusion of too much cubist music in our concert programs. Music, like love, speaks all languages—or nearly all; it is a kind of emotional Esperanto which many can understand and appreciate. Foreign languages we have not mastered sound like a conference of noises; but we may enjoy new or foreign music without an effort, provided only it appeals to our sense of beauty. Music hath charms to soothe the savage beast; but this does not apply to a bedlam capable of scaring a three-toed sloth into a frenzied flight. There may be some who understand, or think they understand, the agonizing orchestra din; but they are more noisy than numerous—and the "music" itself furnishes overmuch Noise. De gustibus non est disputandum. Our musical audiences have a taste sufficiently catholic to enjoy, musically speaking, corned beef and the drama. And when such an audience laughs out loud at the conclusion of a musical "novelty" (the conductor laughted, too) it is time for those who have the responsibility for fixing our musical menus to realize that it is unjust to include such nauseating messes when the poor guests have to swallow them. A musical composition is not worthy of public presentation simply because it is different and new. Some semblance of artistic beauty is at least an essential. Let the lovers of musical Choctaw hire a hall of their own (a very small one will do) and leave us to the tender mercies of Beethoven, Mozart—but why mention names? JEROME ALEXANDER.

The Name of Cecil.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At the dinner, at the Hotel Astor, at which Viscount Cecil received the medal and check of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation for his pre-eminent services to the cause of peace based on justice, the distinguished guest was introduced as Lord Robert Cecil—his former (and inferior) title—the name being pronounced as if spelt Cessil. Sometimes, in America, one hears the pronunciation Ceesil, though the other is much commoner. Both, in fact, are incorrect—so far, at least, as the family of which the Marquis of Salisbury is the titular head is concerned. The proper pronunciation of the word is Cissil. If Lord Cecil, who for his public services has been permitted to drop his honorary title and assume a title of his own, is to visit this country often (as all will wish who have had the privilege of meeting him here or hearing him speak), it may be just as well to pronounce his name, when he is among us, as he is accustomed to hearing it pronounced at home. We may feel very sure, though, that the matter is not one over which a man of his calibre is apt to lose much sleep. In passing, it may be noted that an American family, in the South, writes its name Cissel—an evident adaptation of the spelling to the old and correct pronunciation. J. B. G.

3,072 Tons of Gold.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On the front page of THE TIMES of today is a statement of the volume of bank clearings handled yesterday by the New York Clearing House, $1,655,000,000. It may interest many of your readers to know that that sum in gold coin would weigh about 3,072 tons and would require the equivalent of 1,024 three-ton trucks to handle it. Which goes to prove the necessity for bank clearing houses as adjuncts to modern business methods. W. DE L. BENEDICT.

SNOW.

There's something terrible about
Falling snow.
It is soft and merciless,
Strong and slow.
It will cover anything
And not care.
It drifts and falls easily
Anywhere.

Black water swallows it,
But at last
You'll see a white cloak
Has been cast
Where the hungry water was,
Shore to shore,
And the water does not struggle
Any more.

The meadow and the garden
Are one hue,
White as Chinese porcelain,
And if you
Care to follow you will see
A small track
Where a little rabbit doubled
And ran back.

Perhaps he saw a circling hawk.
It may be
He heard a waking owl stir
Sleepily.
But now the snow is kind and wavering,
Drifts and glides,
Safely covering the burrow
Where he hides.

I will go where four walls keep
Snow from me,
And I'll watch it flake on flake,
Steadily,
Piling its white depth on depth,
Conquering.
Keep my hand, I am afraid
Of the thing!

RADIO AND THE THEATRE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The delight that radio owners had in the broadcasting of McCormack and Bori through Station WEAF on Jan. 1 may have this anticipated pleasure for the future suddenly stopped for the reason that there is no fund to compensate artists of their ability and renown.

There is no reason why the broadcasting stations should pay artists, and the public, of course, won't. As a consequence some public-spirited citizen, or a group of them, would have to come forward and endow funds for this particular purpose.

The interest that has been displayed through the first concert of McCormack and Bori has necessarily stimulated active buying for radio manufacturers and will continue to stimulate this buying so long as artistic programs of this nature are rendered. Therefore, it would seem that the ones who are being benefited most in dollars and cents are the manufacturers of radio, radio parts and equipment.

Right here let me suggest that if a fund were created by the setting apart of 1 per cent. of net earnings of all manufacturers of radios, parts and equipment there would be a sufficient amount to secure the best talent obtainable, so that prominent stations throughout the United States could have at certain intervals the addition of new and artistic broadcasting talent.

An association of the manufacturers could be easily formed that would be empowered judiciously to expend this fund and thereby keep stimulated the interest for all time.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was much interested—and perhaps a little bit amused—at the protest by Mr. Brady and the theatrical world in general against the iniquity of radio, because a goodly portion of the theatre-going public preferred an evening with McCormack and Bori in their own homes to the attractions of Broadway.

I had anticipated exactly such an outcry in an article preconsidering this historic broadcasting, published last week. The writer expressed his opinion that should every actor in the city find himself elbowed out of a job by radio it would be quite justifiable, and the only thing left for him to do would be to adapt himself to the new conditions.

No other thing in all the world arouses so much antagonism as progress—whether it be religious, scientific, artistic, economic or just plain mechanical. The steamer put a terrible crimp in the sailing vessel business, and those interested in the latter doubtless protested. The automobile put a million honest men who were better blacksmiths than many stage-strutters are, actors out of work. Machinery took bread from still more millions of mouths—and the echo of their protesting wails has not quite died away. And so on—progress is cruel, but it is inexorable.

The broadcasting of the world's greatest talent is here to stay, regardless of how the present experiment turns out from the Victor Company's point of view. It is inevitable. Two years from now will find it supported by a sound economic system, emancipated from the caprice and shackles of phonograph or similar contracts. The theatre will suffer—most assuredly—and thereby gain. Again, as always, we shall have the survival of the fittest. Five years from now will find footlights glowing in only the best of our present theatres. On their stages will be performed fewer and better plays. The rest will have gone with the horse-car and the apeman. ZEH BOUCK.

The Price of Theatre Tickets.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"The greatest crisis in the history of the New York theatre" is not to come from radio, as Mr. Brady laments. Neither radio nor phonograph could yield one-hundredth share of the pleasure one derives from seeing the living, pulsating Mimi in "Bohème" in the person of Miss Bori, or her vivacious, droll rôle of the servant in "Così fan Tutte." The real crisis, if it is to come, will come from within the theatre itself.

Not so long ago a well-known theatre opened with a new production. Reading the favorable comments in the press the morning following the first performance, I immediately went to procure tickets. But I was told by the ticket seller that no tickets at less than $3.30 could be had for six weeks in advance. Now, it is perfectly evident that these lower-priced tickets could not have been sold over the counter for six weeks in advance in the course of a few hours or even a few days.

This is by no means an isolated example. Unless one is ready to be bled by the ticket speculators and their conniving friends within the theatre wickets, the mass of New York theatregoers will have to give up all desirable plays on and about Broadway.

I am sure that tens of thousands of our citizens have had experiences similar to mine. In fact, my own acquaintances were rather surprised that it took me so long to discover this vicious gouging conspiracy. We, the folks who do not come from Main Street, are utterly disgusted with these methods and shall hail with delight any real crisis that will befall the New York theatre. The greedy, unprincipled managements will then learn a long-needed lesson—perhaps.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Somebody please hint to W. A. Brady, who is quoted as blaming the radio for slack business at the theatres, that we residents of Hylanville are not, all of us, wallpaperers and plasterers; that many of us who don't much care for radio are driven to it by those figures that look so trifling to theatrical managers—$6.60 to $11 for a couple of seats. Radio Sets for the Bed-Ridden.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you be kind enough to bring to the attention of your readers the fact that the Fraternity for Friendly Service will be glad to receive used radio sets which they may be planning to replace with new ones? We know of many cripples confined to wheel chairs or their beds, aged persons and those suffering from cardiac or nerve condition, to whom a chance to "listen in" would change life from a dreary, hopeless existence to one of anticipation of a pleasure to be enjoyed each tomorrow.

VOTE MACHINE LAW SCORED BY VOORHIS

INSTALLATION UP TO STATE

Attorney General's Demand for Light on City's Plans to Be Answered by Board's Records.

Signalizing his re-election to the Presidency of the local Board of Elections in his ninety-sixth year, John R. Voorhis, Grand Sachem of Tammany Hall, yesterday attacked the voting machine law as one of the most flagrant attempts ever made against the home rule prerogative of the city. He declared that New York had been singled out for this attack, as it had been for similar assaults against its autonomy.

Mr. Voorhis further declared that, so far from being infallible in its accuracy, as its supporters maintain, the voting machine has been known actually to record a larger number of voters than had either voted or registered.

The re-elected Board of Elections, after having organized with Commissioner Charles E. Heydt as its Secretary, instructed its chief clerk, S. Howard Cohen, to prepare and present at the next meeting a statement of the board's actions during the last four years with reference to voting machines. This, for the moment, is the reply of the board to the State Attorney General's demand that it inform him immediately of such action as it proposes to take in the matter.

As interpreted by one official who has followed closely the board's position on the issue, this means that the bi-partisan board is prepared to take the position that since 1922, when the voting machine law was passed, the responsibility of installing the machines has rested continuously upon the State and not upon the City of New York. The section of the Election Law which, it is held, will justify this contention is to the effect that, if the local Board of Elections fails to take action within ten days after notice by the Attorney General, the latter shall authorize the Secretary of State to designate a voting machine and see that it is installed.

Under this procedure by the then Secretary of State, John E. Lyons, a certain number of the machines are said to have been actually installed in this city during the administration of Governor Miller, and a contract was offered to a Jamestown manufacturing concern, which, however, rejected it because it could see no guarantee that the city would pay the bill.

Since the State officials have thus initiated the installation here, it is argued, it is "up to" the Attorney General and the Secretary of State, and not to the local Board of Elections, to see to the installation of the remaining quotas, which called for 40 per cent. in 1923 and the remainder in 1924.

"The Democratic Party of this city, of which I am a member," said Mr. Voorhis, "never has taken either affirmative or negative action on the question of voting machines for this city. In that respect it is unlike the Republican party in this county, which has gone on record as favoring the machines.

"If it could be proved that the voting machine could be relied upon as furnishing an accurate record of the intent of the voter, or if an error could be seen and rectified, the machine would be worth while. But it has been proved that the machines cannot at all times be relied upon. When a record is received from a machine, that result must be accepted blindly and there is no way of proving whether the machine has worked correctly.

"Where paper ballots are used one has something to work with. They can be re-examined and the work of the Board of Canvassers is so thorough and so well known that it is not necessary for me to explain it."

It was said that while it is generally known that President Voorhis and Commissioner Kane, Democratic members of the Board of Elections, are against voting machines, Secretary Heydt favors them, and Commissioner Jacob A. Livingston, who is Republican leader of Kings County, has been described as "undetermined."

The Board of Elections yesterday made public the total registration and enrolment of voters in all five boroughs of the city for 1924.

The total enrolment was 1,339,938, including those marked as blank, defective or missing. Of the total 868,544 were men and 491,424 women. The total registration in the five boroughs was 1,500,006, compared with a total registration in 1923 of 1,105,016.

The total enrolment by political parties as compared with the party enrolment of 1923 was as follows:

	Dem.	Repub.	Soc.	Blank, Defective and Missing.

WALSH DENIES PARTY MADE RADICAL DEALS

DEFENDS PARTY ON TAXES

BRUCE EXPLAINS COURSE

Says He Opposed Senator Smith for Chairmanship as Having La Follette's Support.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Branding as false the charge that the Democrats made an alliance with the radicals in the last session of Congress and the last campaign, Senator Walsh of Montana defended his party this afternoon in the Senate.

Taking advantage of the lull that preceded consideration of the President's veto of the postal salary increase, the Montana Senator said that the Democratic Party is "the hope, and the only hope" of the country's liberal thought. The election, he declared, was but a demonstration of the fact that independent movements against Republican policies are futile. The cause of the Democratic defeat must be sought elsewhere, he declared.

The Senate speech of Senator Bruce of Maryland last week, in which he asserted that the Democrats lost because the country had no confidence in them, was the cue for Mr. Walsh's speech. His referred somewhat bitterly to Mr. Bruce's criticism of the management of the Fall and Daugherty investigations, a complaint which drew from Mr. Bruce the assurance that he had meant no reflection upon the Montana Senator.

Senator Robinson, the Democratic floor leader, and Mr. Bruce also became involved in the discussion. The Republicans listened and smiled broadly, but the Democrats did not.

"I take occasion," Senator Walsh said, "to correct, or endeavor to correct, another entirely mistaken impression likely to be derived from the remarks of the Senator, namely, that there existed during the last session something in the nature of an alliance or an understanding between the Democratic members of both Houses, at least of the Senate, and the so-called insurgent Republican Senators.

"The result of the election had hardly been announced when press reports issuing out of Washington told about how such alliance was to be dissolved at the insistence of conservative or old-line Democratic Senators. I deny that there ever was any such an alliance, and I venture the assertion that the reports referred to emanated from Republican sources and are referrable to the Republican National Committee, finding now in the Senator from Maryland a valued ally in the dissemination of the idea. • • • "

Senator Walsh then discussed the election of Senator Smith of South Carolina, Democrat, as Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, with Bruce voting against his party colleague.

Explains Revenue Bill Votes.

"When the revenue bill came before the Senate, substitute schedule were offered by Senator Simmons. Supported by a solid phalanx on the Democratic side, enough of the so-called insurgent Republicans voted for them with the Democratic members to put them in the bill. These votes are illustrative. Those had in connection with the investigations were of like character. The Democratic Party in the Senate did its work. Its votes in the last session. It accepted votes in favor of the measures it supported from whatever source they came.

"It will, beyond doubt, if having done it some one may rise and complain of it, continue to pursue a like course in the future. It will not shy away from either a measure or an idea because it is favored by Senator La Follette or any other Republican Senator. I make bold to assert that it will not follow in the path marked out by either the votes or the remarks of the Senator from Maryland. It is the hope and the only hope of the liberal thought of the country. The late election must have demonstrated to the most enlightened and the most perverse alike the futility of a third party movement to bring redress from those evils apparently insuperable from continued Republican control."

"I am just a little curious," he said, "to know how far this process that seems to have set up in some quarter or other of 'baiting me' as a member of the Democratic Party is to go. I find myself now almost in a position calculated to remind me of the words of Shakespeare:

"The little dogs and all,
"Tray, Blanch and Sweetheart, see, they bark at me."

Felt "Fall Was a Scamp."

"I repel with emphasis, with indignation, the allegation, no matter by whom made, that at any time I ever sustained the relation of an obstructive to any of those investigations. None felt more strongly than I that Fall was a scamp, and none was more thoroughly impressed than I was with the squalid, to say the least, conditions with which Attorney General Daugherty had surrounded himself while in office."

Senator Bruce, replying to the criticism of his vote for Senator Cummins for Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, repeated that the Republicans were in the majority in the Senate, and his position was that they were entitled to that chairmanship.

"Did the Senator," asked Senator Robinson, "prefer the nominee of the Democrats, Mr. Smith of South Carolina, when he voted for him prior to changing his vote, to the nominee of the Republicans, Mr. Cummins?"

"Under ordinary circumstances," said Senator Bruce, "I would prefer any Democratic candidate for any office or position to any Republican."

"Then why did the Senator object to the election of Senator Smith?" asked Senator Robinson.

"Because the fact," Senator Bruce answered, "came to my knowledge that he was not simply the Democratic candidate, but was also the candidate of the party which, so far as it was represented in this chamber, was represented by the Senator from Wisconsin (La Follette) and his adherents.

Bruce Regrets "Acrid Topics."

"The Democrats," added Senator Bruce, "were about to make the fatal mistake, and I think it proved fatal, of striking hands with Senator La Follette and his adherents. And I rejected that course. And the first result of the pact was the passing of the Committee on Interstate Commerce entirely into control of the radical element of this body."

Senator Robinson challenged the accuracy of this statement.

"I want to say in conclusion," Senator Bruce said, "that we have reached a stage where there is no good purpose to be secured by any Democrat in pursuing these acrid topics. All Senators will bear me out when I say that independent in some respects as my course was, no one in the Senate ever heard me utter one censorious word about any action of my colleagues in connection with the investigations or any other object of party policy that the majority of Democrats in the Senate saw fit to pursue. • • • I conceive that I owe a higher obligation to the truth than I could ever owe to any party or any individual, and those are my conceptions of the truth."

Cross-Word Puzzles Clog The Wheels of Justice

Magistrate Earl A. Smith had to order court attendants, policemen, lawyers and their clients to cease pondering over cross-word puzzles when he convened the Traffic Court yesterday. The Magistrate had mounted the bench before his attention was attracted by a group of about twenty-five circled around a table in front of him. "Are all these people complainants?" asked the Magistrate of John Sullivan, an attendant. Sullivan said something about "four letters meaning elevated" before he glanced up at the Magistrate and in the next breath gasped: "Attention! the Court."

"What are they doing?" persisted the Magistrate.

"Solving cross-word puzzles," replied Sullivan.

"Tell them to stop at once," commanded the Court.

John Smietenka of 29 Remsen Street, Astoria, Queens, told the Magistrate that cross-word puzzles were partly responsible for his failure to return to court several days ago and pay a fine which had been imposed on him a week ago. He was sentenced to the workhouse for ten days.

HIGH BAIL IN HOLD-UP CASE

Three Men Suspected in Inquiry Into Jeweler's Death Are Held in $100,000 Each.

An unusually daring and perplexing theft of $20,000 worth of whisky from a bonded warehouse at 24 West Street occupied the attention of city and Federal detectives yesterday. The theft was committed sometime between 4 P. M. New Year's eve and 6 o'clock last Friday morning, but in the hope of obtaining a clue to the thieves the authorities kept it secret.

The liquor, which was owned by Alexander Shaw & Co., importers and exporters, at 40 Water Street, had been stored in the front part of the cellar of the warehouse, which is conducted by William R. Boyce & Co. It was in thirteen barrels marked "Blue Grass Bourbon," and had been inspected on the afternoon of Dec. 31 by Patrick McGowan, a customs employe.

McGowan was the first to reach the warehouse last Friday morning and found that the Government lock on the main door had been filed off and replaced by a weaker one. He ran into the cellar and discovered that the thirteen barrels of whisky had been stolen. Police detectives were called and obtained fingerprints, but could find no one who had witnessed the removal of the liquor.

The police have recovered the automobile believed to have been used by three robbers in escaping last Friday from the jewelry store at 174 Grand Street, Brooklyn, after they had shot and killed the proprietor, Morris Wortis, in a hold-up. The car was found abandoned yesterday in front of 616 East Thirteenth Street a few hours before three men, arrested Saturday as suspects in the killing, had been held in $100,000 bail each in connection with two other hold-ups.

One of the prisoners, Max Weinberg, 21 years old, of 87 Pitt Street, was identified by employes of the garage at 82 Mangin Street, the police said, as the man who called there for the automobile a short time before Weinberg, Joseph Finkelstein and Morris Steinberg were arrested.

District Attorney Charles J. Doff appeared before County Judge Taylor when the three were arraigned yesterday on robbery charges and asked that they be held in the high bail, as it was believed that they might be connected with "an even more serious crime." The prosecutor explained later that he meant the murder of the jeweler.

Safe robbers between midnight and 1 A. M. yesterday blew open a safe in the office of the Queensboro Dairy Company at 35 Twelfth Avenue, Astoria, Queens, and got away with $3,000 in money and $600 in Liberty bonds.

John Tretola, a probationary policeman, appeared as complainant yesterday in the Fifth Avenue Court in Brooklyn when Vincent Fazzare of 168 Twenty-seventh Street, Brooklyn, was held in $5,000 bail for a hearing next Thursday on charges of burglary, possessing burglar's tools and carrying a pistol.

Malone said that late Sunday night he was aroused at his home, 204 Twenty-sixth Street, by Fazzare, who pretended to be seeking a man who didn't live at the address. He watched Fazzare leave the house, he said, and later caught him in the yard with the pistol, a flashlight and a jimmy.

EIGHT PERSONS HURT IN FIRES OF A DAY

Eight persons were injured in Manhattan and Brooklyn fires yesterday. The fire in which seven of the casualties occurred started shortly after midnight on the first floor of a three-story brick tenement building at 300 South Fourth Street, Brooklyn. It was discovered by Philip Karp, who rushed to the third floor to warn his wife and three children. Finding themselves trapped, they leaped from windows into improvised life nets made by outspread overcoats below. Mrs. Karp and her children, although severely burned, reached safety. Karp missed one of the overcoats held for him and fractured his thigh. All were taken to Cumberland Hospital. Others in the house who were painfully burned were Aaron Korn and Samuel Silver. Their condition is not serious. The interior of the dwelling was completely destroyed and damage was estimated at $10,000.

Bernard Lassman suffered burns when trapped in his room on the top floor of 45 Seventh Street while flames were surging up the five stories of the building from the ground floor. He was taken to Bellevue Hospital after being rescued by a patrolman.

Fire partly destroyed a four-story tenement at 351 Barrett Street, Brooklyn, last night, forcing sixteen families into the street.

Woman Gets Enoch Arden Decree.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 5.—After she had testified that her husband left her in 1919 with the announcement that "he was going to start to live," Mrs. Dorothy May Fish of 616 West 139th Street, Manhattan, received an Enoch Arden decree in the Supreme Court. Mrs. Fish was the only witness. She said that she had not been able to find any trace of her husband or his relatives and that she believed him dead.

HELD FOR MURDER OF JERSEY HIJACKER

After being held yesterday in $25,000 bail by Judge Charles M. Egan in Jersey City as a material witness, Charles Munson of 450 Hudson Avenue, West New York, was arrested on a bench warrant charging him with the murder of Frank d'Agnostino, alleged hijacker, in Weehawken, on Sept. 13 last. Munson was locked up in the county jail without bail.

John Ryan, with whom Munson formerly boarded at the Hudson Avenue address, was among those in court during the arraignment. He was taken to Prosecutor John Milton's office by Patrick Hayes, chief of the Hudson County detectives. After an examination which lasted for more than an hour Ryan also was arrested. Judge Egan held him in $25,000 bail as a material witness. Prosecutor Milton ordered that Munson and Ryan should have no opportunity to communicate with each other.

The arrest of the two men, it is hoped by Prosecutor Milton, will not only result in clearing up the circumstances which led to d'Agostino's killing, but also will reveal details of the operations of the Weehawken bootleg syndicate which hitherto have baffled the investigators. With Munson and Ryan in jail, it is felt that powerful political influences, which otherwise might be exerted to prevent them from talking, will be impotent.

Bootleg Trial Date Is Set.

D'Agostino's body was found on the pier at the foot of Baldwin Avenue, where it is alleged that millions of dollars' worth of liquor has been landed under police protection in the last five months. Prosecutor Milton believes that d'Agnostino was killed in an automobile. Munson was asked why he had changed the numbers on his plates from 390273 to 102013 two days after the murder. He denied that there was any significance in his having done so. It also was denied by Munson that he knew Carl Rettich, Thomas Mullen and James Agnello, who have been variously charged with d'Agnostino's murder. The police, however, declare that they have evidence that he has been seen more than once in their company.

As a result of a conference yesterday afternoon between Prosecutor Milton, Assistant Prosecutor Aloysius McMahon and Colonel George T. Vickers, special prosecutor in the bootleg conspiracy cases, it was announced that the trials of the fourteen persons already under indictment by the Hudson County Grand Jury would begin Jan. 19 before Judge Egan in the Court of Quarter Sessions.

George E. Cutley, counsel for thirteen of the fourteen indicted, announced last night that he would attack the indictments in an effort to have them quashed as defective because, he said, they did not set forth the alleged crime in a legal manner. He said he was ready for trial at any time.

Mr. Milton, Mr. McMahon and Colonel Vickers also discussed the case of Federal Prohibition Agent Alfred L. Ransom at their conference yesterday, and said, later, that a decision would be made before any decision would be made as to whether an indictment would be asked against him.

Mr. Milton went to Newark yesterday where he conferred for nearly an hour with Federal Attorney Walter G. Winne. Neither of them would comment on their interview beyond saying that they discussed the Weehawken liquor cases "in a general way." Mr. Winne said that he would not present evidence in connection with them to the Federal Grand Jury unless he received from Washington different orders than those under which he now was acting. In the event that Colonel Vickers or Mr. Milton asks a Federal indictment against Ransom, it is believed, however, that no difficulty will be encountered in presenting all evidence in their possession to the Federal Grand Jury.

The possibility of further differences between the Department of Justice and Mr. Winne developed yesterday over the appointment of a successor to Assistant Federal Attorney Walter R. Van Riper. Mr. Winne is anxious that an assistant be named immediately because of the pressure of business in his office. He expects, he says, to send in his selection within a few days.

Demand for Economy.

Although the New Jersey District of the Department of Justice returned an income in excess of $200,000 last year, the officials in Washington are said to have made frequent objections to amounts expended. It became known yesterday that one of the stenographers in Mr. Winne's office in Newark was discharged last week because of a demand from Washington that expenses be reduced. The telephone bills of the New Jersey District also have been a source of complaint.

In view of the demand for extreme economy, doubt was expressed yesterday in the Federal building at Newark whether Mr. Stone would at once accede to Mr. Winne's request for a successor to Mr. Van Riper. Friends of Douglas D. Storey, a Jersey City attorney, yesterday began urging his appointment in Mr. Van Riper's place. He was an unsuccessful candidate for Congress last November and is a supporter of Senator Walter E. Edge.

The first report in Newark yesterday that Mr. Van Riper would announce himself as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor of New Jersey at the head of the wet faction of the party.

"I have received some letters outlining the possibilities," said Mr. Van Riper, "but I paid no attention to them until one day last week, when some business men and politicians from Essex County and elsewhere asked permission to organize Van Riper-for-Governor clubs throughout the State. I told them I could give them no answer, but I promised to consider it."

It became known yesterday that the Anti-Saloon League of New Jersey is attempting to gather evidence indicating laxity on the part of Adrian G. Chamberlin, chief Federal prohibition enforcement agent in that State. If the result of the investigation is believed to warrant such a step, charges will be filed and a formal demand made for Mr. Chamberlin's removal.

The Hudson County Grand Jury will consider the charges against David H. Allen, recently ousted as an assistant purchasing agent of the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta, and James J. Coyle, former New Jersey Assemblyman, if Rocco Peretta of Schenectady and Jeremiah Sullivan of Amsterdam, N. Y., appear as witnesses in accordance with the request made by Prosecutor Milton. Mr. Milton said last night that he had received no word from them.

TWO YOUNG GIRLS MISSING.

In One Case a Warrant Has Been Issued for a Man's Arrest.

The disappearance of two 15-year-old high school girls became known yesterday. Ethel Hart of Greenport, L. I., was last seen in an automobile with a young junk dealer of Riverhead after attending a party with a girl chum the day after Christmas. The Hart family reported that a Riverhead man asked them to promise the junkman would not be prosecuted if the girl was brought back unharmed. The District Attorney announced that a warrant had been issued for him.

The other missing girl was Anna Brozartis of 65 Ten Eyck Street, Brooklyn. Her mother reported that the last she had seen of her daughter was on Sunday night, when she left the dinner table to go down to the door to look at the snow.

KEARNY, N. J., Jan. 5.—Two young, well-dressed men, with a knowledge of railroading, held up a taxicab driver here today and escaped in a railroad engine. They abandoned the engine near Manhattan Transfer and got away by crossing a railroad bridge across the Passaic into Newark.

Michael Riccordelli of 3,131 Drift Street, Newark, was sitting in his taxi at Broad and Bridge Streets in that city early yesterday, when the two men came up and asked him to drive them to the Meadow Shop of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Kearny. They explained that they knew it was a rough drive in the snow over the Newark Turnpike to the railroad yards, about ten miles away, but that it was important, and offered him double fare.

It took an hour for the taxi to reach the front of the entrance to Meadow Yards. When Riccordelli turned about to signal that the end of the trip had been reached, he found himself looking into the muzzle of a pistol. The robbery was quickly accomplished. The driver was relieved of $40 and knocked from his cab by a blow on the head.

The bandits fled into the yards and as Riccordelli got back into his taxicab he saw them climbing into a locomotive. As he started for the nearest police station, he said, he saw the locomotive leaving the yards.

Riccordelli reported the hold-up to Captain Joseph Neary at the headquarters of the Hudson County police in Newark Turnpike, and with the Captain and Policemen La Motte and Hoppe returned to Meadow Shop. They took up the trail in another locomotive and came upon the first engine abandoned about three-quarters of a mile from the starting place. Some men who had seen the bandits get out and climb to the railroad bridge over the Passaic said they thought they were railroad employes and did not interfere with them.

KILLS SISTER-IN-LAW AS CHILDREN WATCH

ALMOST SEVERS HER HEAD

Woman Flees to Neighbor's Apartment, Where She Dies From Razor Wounds.

A small boy ran down the stairs of the apartment house at 1,382 Fifth Avenue yesterday and cried to Patrolman John McLean:

"Please, mister, please come quick. Uncle Solomon is killing mamma."

McLean was off duty but in uniform. He drew his revolver and ran to the top floor where he saw the door of the front apartment open a little. A man's face peered at him. Then the door closed and a key turned and locked it. He called to the man inside to open the door. No answer came, so McLean forced the door with his shoulder. As he stepped through it, Solomon Hattern came at him with an open razor. McLean had slipped his revolver into his pocket when he started to break down the door, but he kicked Hattern in the abdomen and sent him sprawling. The policeman seized the razor, drew his revolver and held Hattern at bay.

According to the story Detectives Andrew Hagan and James Nemets got from the boy, Meyer Hattern, 6½ years old, Solomon Hattern, who lives in the apartment, had tried to get Mrs. Hattern to run away with him. She ordered him out and, the boy said, then Hattern slashed her in the arm with a razor.

In the apartment at the time were Mrs. Hattern, Meyer, his sister Becky, 4½ years old, and his uncle Solomon. Another child, Charles, 9 years old, was at school and the husband, John Hattern, a waiter, was absent but not at work for it was his day off.

The children were crying near the door when the attack began. Mrs. Hattern opened the door with her unwounded hand and, letting the children out into the hall, tried to run. According to Meyer his uncle followed her and slasher her again as she beat upon the door of Mrs. Mary Russo, her neighbor.

Hearing the commotion, Mrs. Russo opened the door of her apartment. Mrs. Hattern stumbled in, the child Becky holding her skirt. Meyer ran down the stairs for help.

Mrs. Russo helped the injured woman to a chair. Then she turned for water and a towel only to find, when she had gathered these, that Mrs. Hattern was dead. Subsequently it was found that her head had been almost severed from the body.

Hattern was taken to the West 123d Street station by McLean. There, according to the detectives, he admitted he had attacked the woman. He complained of pain and was removed to Harlem Hospital, where he was put under arrest, charged with homicide.

BOY KILLS BROTHER IN A MOCK HOLD-UP.

STAMFORD, Conn., Jan. 5.—Rodney Case, 12 years old, and John Case, 16, staged a mock hold-up at their home in Tokeneke early last evening in the presence of their mother, Mrs. Henry Jay Case, wife of the head of the Protective Division of the New York Stock Exchange. Rodney was shot over the heart and died within a few minutes. John is held on a technical charge of manslaughter pending the inquest by Coroner Phelan tomorrow.

The boys and their mother had been packing in their home. John was to have gone to Andover Academy today and Rodney to Kings School in Stamford. Mrs. Case was to have left for Canada to visit her mother.

John had a revolver which was lent to him recently by Wilfred Noroton, son of E. Hope Noroton, of New York. Rodney had a small cap pistol.

"Whaddaya mean, 'Hold up your hands?'" laughed the smaller boy.

A sharp crack, a groan from the small boy, a piercing scream from the mother and then the fall of Rodney's body to the floor brought the father, who had been busy below, running upstairs. He was met by John dashing to the telephone. "I've shot Rodney," the boy exclaimed as he hurried to the telephone and called Dr. Price.

"I'm all right, mother," said Rodney. "I'm not hurt at all."

The boy walked to his own room and collapsed on his bed. He was dead ten minutes later when Dr. Price arrived.

"It's the old story of not knowing it was loaded," said Mr. Case tonight. "If any one is to blame I am for letting the boy have the pistol. I knew he had it and I knew that he knew how to handle it. He was to have taken it to school with him. He just simply forgot that there were bullets in it."

EDITOR OFF FOR PRISON.

Conviction of Anti-Fascist "Persecution," Liberties Union Says.

Carlo Tresca, editor of Il Martello, an anti-Fascisti weekly, started yesterday for the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., where he was sentenced for a year and a day for sending improper matter through the mails. He was convicted about fourteen months ago. On appeal the conviction was affirmed.

The American Civil Liberties Union sent out a statement that an application for Executive clemency had been forwarded by the Union to the Attorney General at Washington. According to the statement the prosecution of Tresca was inspired by the Italian Ambassador.

$198,362,208 ASKED IN STATE LEGISLATURE

ALBANY, Jan. 5.—The State's total estimated resources, not including the direct tax, for the fiscal year 1925-26, was placed at $181,721,861 in the report of the State Budget Committee made public here today. The total estimated revenue was placed at $136,721,861.

The report shows that the requests for appropriations to be made to the Legislature, which convenes Wednesday noon, total $198,362,208, an increase over the appropriations made by the 1924 Legislature of $43,491,536. These figures, the Budget Committee pointed out, do not include the amount which will be necessary for the payments of bonds and interest for the acquisition of lands for parks and the second bond issue for the construction of buildings for State institutions.

The Budget Committee made it plain that in estimating the State resources for the coming fiscal year, it assumed that the present Revenue laws would continue in force and that no new laws affecting the State's revenue would be enacted at the coming session of the Legislature.

The committee estimated that there would be a $45,000,000 balance available for general purposes on July 1, 1925. The estimate revenue follows:

Corporation tax, $44,500,000.
Organization of corporations, $2,000,000.
Personal income tax, $18,500,000.
Insurance premium tax, $1,750,000.
Inheritance tax, $23,000,000.
Stock transfer tax, $8,000,000.
Mortgage tax, $5,000,000.
Motor vehicles, $22,500,000.
Boxing exhibitions, $200,000.
Motion pictures, $170,000.
Arrears, tax sales, $90,000.
Other revenues and receipts, $6,000,000.

The total amounts of requested appropriations, with the increases and decreases from appropriations made by the Legislature of last year, was divided in the report as follows:

Salaries, $35,075,140; an increase of $5,542,742.
Maintenance and operation, $76,440,849; an increase of $8,079,097.
Deficiency, $3,836,868; a decrease of $1,907,706.

The report was prepared by Senator Bernard Downing, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee; Assemblyman Joseph A. McGinnies, Chairman of the Assembly Ways and Means Committee, and Controller James W. Fleming, Secretary of the Board of Estimate and Control.

KNIGHT AND FEARON SPLIT REPUBLICANS

WYOMING MAN CONFIDENT

McGinnies Will Be the Unanimous Choice of Republican Assemblymen for Speaker.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 5.—Unless the situation should unexpectedly change in the next twenty-four hours, the fight for leadership of the Senate will go into the Republican Senate caucus, which will be held tomorrow night on the eve of the opening session of the Legislature.

Senator John Knight of Wyoming County, who has seen continuous service in the Upper House since 1917, claims to have seventeen of the twenty-nine Republican members of the new Senate pledged to his candidacy, with three more who have given conditional promises to vote for him for President pro tempore.

His opponent, Senator George R. Fearon of Onondago, who has served two terms in his present office, said tonight that he understood there were strings attached to several of the pledges in the possession of his rival for the leadership, and that he would have to be "shown."

"Of course, if Senator Knight has all the votes he claims to have, it is all over," said Senator Fearon, "and I will be the first to propose that the nomination be made unanimous in the caucus tomorrow evening, but I am not at all certain that he has them. I am still in the fight and have no present intention of withdrawing."

"The caucus tomorrow evening will show that I have all the votes necessary to be elected President pro tem., unless I have been grossly deceived," Senator Knight said.

Fearon's Friends Disgruntled.

While the air is filled with protestations that, no matter how the fight ends, the result will not interfere with harmonious cooperation among the Republican members of the upper house in the task of fighting Governor Smith and putting through the program to which the party is pledged through its platform, the friends of Senator Fearon are disgruntled and feel that he has been "double-crossed." They declare that he came away from the Republican State Convention at Rochester last September with ironclad pledges that he would have the support of the Republican organization leaders for the Senate leadership.

Should the fight leave behind it the bitterness the Democrats are looking for, a rift may occur that would be helpful to the Governor and his program. Senator Fearon is looked upon as less "set" against the Governor's proposed reforms than Senator Knight, who is regarded as an uncompromising partisan.

The Knight-Fearon fight is the only Republican trouble now visible on the horizon at Albany. Ernest A. Fay of St. Lawrence, who for many years prior to the capture of the Senate by the Democrats in 1923 was clerk of that body, is slated for the clerkship again. Even under the Democratic régime Mr. Fay, whose experience behind the Senate desk in various capacities runs back almost a generation, has been retained as chief deputy to Dominick F. Mullaney, clerk of the Democratic Senate of the last two years.

Miner, Wellman, chief revision clerk, another Republican who has remained in his position during the Democratic control of the Senate, is slated for chief deputy to Mr. Fay in the new Senate.

John Marshall again will be the official stenographer of the Senate, succeeding Michael Deignan of Troy, the Democratic incumbent. Charles R. Hotaling of Albany will come back to his old place as sergeant at arms.

McGinnies to Be Speaker.

In the Assembly the Republican vote for Assemblyman Joseph A. McGinnies of Chautauqua, slated to succeed H. Edmund Machold as Speaker, will be unanimous, while Fred W. Hammond, who has been clerk of the Assembly without a break since 1914, will be selected again for that post.

The Democratic candidates for President pro tem of the Senate and Speaker of the Assembly, respectively, are Senator James J. Walker of New York, who was President pro tem of the last Senate, and Assemblyman Maurice Bloch, another Tammany man, who was leader of the Democratic minority in the lower house at the last session. Their nominations, which cannot be confirmed with both branches of the Legislature Republican, will carry with them the Democratic leadership in each branch.

Approximately 150 clerkships and other offices in the Senate will change hands as a result of the Republican victory. For every place there is an average of five applicants.

The Governor's annual message to the Legislature to be read at the opening session on Wednesday came from the public printer today.

The Republican program for the session is defined in a public statement which will be made public tomorrow. It was framed at conference held here during the last three days by a special committee appointed by Chairman George K. Morris, of the State committee, with Lieutenant Governor Seymour Lowman as its chairman.

Lowman Backs Knight.

Lieut. Gov. Lowman, who has been the target of a "whispering" campaign attributing to him designs of capturing the virtual leadership of his party and becoming the "boss" of the Republican Legislature, said tonight that he was not unaware of the charges made against him, and regarded them as an outcome of his fight to make Mr. Knight leader of the Senate.

"In what I have done in connection with this matter I represent only myself in my individual capacity," the Lieutenant Governor said. "The Republican organization has been observing rigidly a hands-off policy in this fight.

"In all my political activities at the Capitol I am working in harmony with and for the interest of the Republican Party in the State. I follow the leadership of Senator Wadsworth, and am in perfect harmony with Republican State Chairman Morris. I am not seeking to usurp the powers and prerogatives of either.

"No matter how this fight ends, the losing contestant will give loyal support and adherence to the winner and the party program in the Legislature."

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 5.—Two firemen were injured, more than a dozen business firms suffered losses and an entire downtown business block was threatened today when flames swept a ten-story structure on Penn Avenue, causing damage estimated by Fire Chief Shanahan at $500,000.

The interior of the building was destroyed by the fire, which started on the third floor in the wholesale merchandise establishment of I. Robbins & Son. Showers of broken glass endangered many firemen. A general alarm called out most of the apparatus in the city.

The entire Penn Avenue district was filled with smoke, and frozen water plugs also added to the difficulties. Sewers were unable to carry away the heavy volume of water poured onto the flames and the basements of several stores were flooded, considerably damaging merchandise.

Embezzlements Last Year Exceeded Total for 1923

Embezzlements by trusted employes and the sums stolen were greater in 1924 than in 1923, according to the American Surety Company, which made public yesterday the annual review of its business.

"Increased business was written by the American Surety Company in almost every department during 1924, thereby establishing another high record for all time," said F. W. Lafrentz, President. "Claims incurred were high, however, and resulted in increased loss ratios in several divisions."

Increases in number of claims recorded were reported largest in the fidelity end of the business where 381 more than in 1923, or 10 per cent. increase, was recorded. Losses in the fidelity field increased 37 per cent., indicating "even larger embezzlements than usual among trusted employes." Burglary insurance and public official bonds showed practically the same number of claims incurred, but the net amounts in these two fields resulted in considerably smaller totals than the year before. The official bonds showed $90,000 less in defalcations than in the previous year.

DEAF MADE TO HEAR AND MUTES TO TALK

PLAY GIVEN FOR THE DEAF

Men without vocal cords talked, with the help of artificial larynxes, at the Vanderbilt Clinic yesterday, and a hundred deaf persons listened to the performance of "Silence," at the National Theatre through special earpieces, last night.

Fifty-six persons who could not have understood a sound without artificial help sat in the orchestra and listened, while forty-four of them sat in the gallery. They heard it all by telephone.

The words of the actors were caught by microphones on the stage and carried by wire to special earpieces. The listeners, who suffered from various types of impairment of hearing, were enthusiastic over the results. They were able to forget their affliction and to follow and enjoy every part of the action.

The instruments for enabling the partly deaf to hear and for enabling a certain type of mute to talk again have both been developed by the Western Electric Company, a subsidiary of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Theatres May Install Device.

The performance for the deaf was held in cooperation with the New York League for the Hard of Hearing. One of its purposes was to discover whether it was feasible to install apparatus of this type permanently in theatres. It is possible that a certain number of seats will be equipped with special sets of this kind for the benefit of those of impaired hearing.

The artificial larynx is the joint invention of Dr. John E. Mackenty of the Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital and scientists of the West Electric Company.

One of the men, who had lost his larynx by operation for cancer, was the partner in a firm which manufactures linings for men's garments. The operation occurred fifteen months ago and he could not utter a sound resembling speech until a month ago, when he obtained the talking apparatus which is called the Western Electric-Mackenty artificial larynx.

"I was handicapped terribly," he said "I not only suffered in every way socially but I found it very hard to conduct business. Every time I had to say anything to an employe or to a customer I had to write it.

"I got this a month ago and I could use it so that every one could understand me within less than a day. Now I can talk over the telephone without difficulty."

Useful For Only One Class of Mute.

The artificial larynx is useful only for persons who have lost their larynges through operation for cancer. In many such cases the windpipe cannot be connected with the mouth after the operation. A slit is made at the base of the throat just above the breastbone and the windpipe is sewed into position. For the rest of his life the subject gets his air supply directly through this opening. No air passes from his mouth or throat into the lungs.

The artificial larynx is for a person thus afflicted. A tube is fitted over the aperture in the throat and part of the air which he breathes out is carried into a chamber about the size of a pill box, in which there is a small diaphragm. This is an artificial vocal cord. The air sets up sound waves and these are carried by another tube into the mouth.

The sound, after making its detour, reaches the mouth in a monotone. The tube is held back as far as possible in the mouth. By using his lips and tongue as in ordinary speech, the mute is able to modify the monotone and to produce vowels and consonants.

Thirty Persons Using Device.

Between thirty and forty persons are now using this device. It is of no value to mutes except those of the special type described.

It is said that efforts have been made for forty years to produce a workable larnyx for sufferers of this class, but that earlier attempts all failed. Dr. Mackenty believed that the problem could be solved, but made no headway until a little more than a year ago, when he interested the Western Electric Company and Dr. Harvey Fletcher, the specialist of that company in acoustics. Then they made one model after another until they achieved a high degree of success.

Dr. Fletcher is now working on an adaptation of the instrument for a certain class of patients who have recovered from a cancer operation, with the loss of vocal cords, but without the transfer of the windpipe from the mouth to the throat. For this class a larynx is being developed which is operated with a bellows. The mute of this class may blow the air from the bellows to produce the sound, which will be carried into his throat, and there made over into intelligible speech.

O'CONNELL OFF FIVE TO PROTECT KELLY

HEYDLER STARTS INQUIRY

Favors Suspension of Kelly and Bohne if They Played on Same Team as O'Connell.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 5.—Jimmy O'Connell, suspended outfielder of the New York Giants, was permitted to withdraw today from a professional basketball team, made up for the most part of George Kelly, the Giants' star first-baseman, and other baseball professionals, after President John Heydler of the National League said that Kelly and Sammy Bohne of the Cincinnati Reds would be risking their baseball standing by such an association with O'Connell.

Others on the team are Bert Cole, former Detroit pitcher; "Wee" Ludolph, Vernon pitcher; Ran Kelly of the Texas League and "Imp" Begley, former Cincinnati "rookie."

It had been arranged to have O'Connell play running guard in games other than those in which Kelly participated. President Heydler indicated, however, that the presence of Kelly on the team would be the basis of an action to suspend him as a player in the National League as long as O'Connell remained on the basketball outfit.

Heydler Investigating.

Kelly and Bohne would have laid themselves open to a suspension from baseball if they had played on the same basketball team with O'Connell, according to an opinion emphatically delivered yesterday by John A. Heydler, National League President.

The published report that Kelly, Bohne and O'Connell were basketball teammates in San Francisco aroused a mild tempest in the National League offices yesterday. Immediately on reading the report, Mr. Heydler sent a hasty telegram to a representative in San Francisco, ordering an investigation.

However, John J. McGraw refused to become excited over the Matthews report from the Coast. If Kelly and O'Connell are playing together, said John J., it is a matter for Judge Landis. If Kelly is merely playing basketball he can go on doing so as far as McGraw is concerned, the manager believing that the Winter exercise would not do Long George any harm.

Mr. Heydler said the news from San Francisco had hit him "between the eyes."

"I couldn't believe it," the league president said. "If it is true that Kelly and Bohne have played with the same club as O'Connell, I would favor the suspension of both of them from baseball. Not disqualification, mark you, but suspension. Then, if they could give an explanation of their conduct or if they withdrew from the relationship with O'Connell and admitted their mistake, they could be reinstated. It not the logical step would be their permanent disqualification.

"Of course, I must move cautiously in this matter. The first thing to do is to see what Commissioner Landis will do. His jurisdiction comes first, but it is my opinion that if his office should take no action the National League would have the power to suspend Kelly and Bohne until they have cleared up their side of the matter. After all, they are members of this league and I think we would have the right and the duty to take such steps as we think would be for the best welfare of baseball."

When told over the telephone last night that O'Connell had withdrawn from the team Mr. Heydler said that if Kelly and Bohne had not played with him, so far as he could see now, that would settle the matter. He said that he had not yet had a reply to his message to the Coast and that he was anxious to hear more about the situation, either from Kelly himself or the National League representative in San Francisco, before taking any further steps or discussing the matter in greater detail.

McGraw Has Not Acted.

Under the form of contract adopted by most major league clubs the players are forbidden to play basketball, football or other strenuous sports without the permission of the club. McGraw some time ago disuaded his star second baseman, Frankie Frisch, from playing on a local five. But he said yesterday that he saw no reason at present for forbidding Kelly's appearance on the court.

"It was different with Frisch," McGraw said. "Frank was very fast and active. He was more likely to get hurt. One of his baseball assets was speed and he was liable to destroy it if he hurt his knee or ankle, or if his legs should feel the effects of the terrific pounding and strain of basketball.

"Kelly gets around pretty lively with his long legs but he isn't any Frisch on the base paths. I don't think basketball would do him any harm. Anyway, it isn't true that I have sent him a telegram ordering him to quit playing basketball. As far as the O'Connell end of it goes, that's up to Judge Landis."

DOUBTS HEYDLER'S POWER.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 5.—Doubt as to the power of John Heydler, President of the National League, to suspend George Kelly, first baseman of the New York Giants, and Sammy Bohne, infielder of the Cincinnati Reds, from organized baseball because of their membership on a basketball team with Jimmy O'Connell, ousted baseball player, was expressed tonight by August Herrmann, President of the Cincinnati club.

"I do not think that the National League President has the power to oust either Kelly or Bohne because they played basketball with O'Connell," Mr. Herrmann said. "The baseball season is over and the players technically are out of the jurisdiction of the league. I cannot figure how Mr. Heydler can prevent Kelly or Bohne from being in good standing in organized baseball because they associated with a player who has been barred from baseball because of his alleged connections with an attempted bribe."

LANDIS TO VISIT CUBA.

Aims to Arouse Baseball Interest—Plans Air Flight to Panama.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—Kenesaw Mountain Landis, Baseball Commissioner, tonight completed arrangements for a trip to Cuba in the interest of baseball on the island. After a sojourn in Cuba the Commissioner will take an airplane flight to Panama where baseball has taken a firm foothold.

Commissioner Landis, with his party, will sail from New Orleans on Jan. 21. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Landis. She has been in poor health and it is believed the trip will benefit her.

BASEBALL MEASURE HALTED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Enthusiasm for baseball that nearly stopped the wheels of Government in October had cooled off a bit today in the snow-clad nation's capital.

A move to call up in the House a resolution to accept a $100,000 gift from the American League for the erection in Washington of a monument to the game brought objections from a half dozen members. None of those opposing the proposal gave any reasons, and friends of the resolution are wondering if its fate might not have been different at another time.

French Baseball Federation Honors Giants and White Sox

PARIS, Jan. 5.—Silver medals have been awarded to John McGraw, Charles Comiskey and Hughey Jennings by the French Baseball Federation, while each member of the New York Giants and Chicago White Sox who visited Paris last November is to receive a bronze medal as a souvenir of the trip. The diploma accompanying this tribute to the American ball players, which will be taken to New York by "Sparrow" Robertson, the Federation's special courier, sailing on the Savoie, Jan. 10, contains an allegorical reference to the big leaguers "sowing seed from which the great game of baseball is expected to spring in Europe." Robertson also bears a letter from the Federation's President, Frantz Reichel, extending an invitation for McGraw and Comiskey to visit France again this Autumn.

FIRPO LEAVES PARIS FOR LONDON TODAY

PARIS, Jan. 5.—Luis Angel Firpo leaves for London tomorrow to confer with Arthur F. Bettison, President of the National Sporting Cl The Argentine heavyweight recently accepted the club's terms for a fight with Tom Gibbons, and after seeing Bettison he plans to sign the agreement.

Kane Not Enthusiastic.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—When Thomas Rice, representing the National Sporting Club of London, arrives in New York with an offer for Tommy Gibbons to box Luis Firpo in England early in March he will not find Eddie Kane, manager of the St. Paul heavyweight, very enthusiastic about such a match.

Kane said tonight the purse offered by the National Sporting Club is about 50 per cent. of what the contest would be worth if decided in this country. He left with Gibbons for Grand Rapids, Mich., instructing Rice to communicate with him there on his arrival. Gibbons will meet Jack Burke, rugged Pittsburgh light-heavyweight and a former sparring mate of Jack Dempsey's, in a ten-round bout at Grand Rapids on Thursday night.

"When we wanted to box Firpo in New York he wouldn't consider it," Kane said. "That was before he was beaten by Weinert and Wills. That contest would have netted Tom and Firpo about $150,000 each. As I understand it, the offer of the London promoter is between $60,000 and $100,000. You can see where Gibbons would get off by agreeing to split a purse of that kind when the bout would draw at least three times that figure in this country.

"I won't say that we are going to refuse it. But from the apparent facts the offer is about 50 per cent. of what the match is worth."

LEONARD RESTING EASILY.

Temperature Rises to 104, but Grip Attack Is Not Serious.

Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, who collapsed in the midst of his vaudeville act last Sunday afternoon, yesterday was reported resting comfortably and out of danger of serious illness unless unexpected complications set in. Leonard is convalescing at his home on West End Avenue, where he was taken following his collapse.

Dr. Sol Rottenberg, the champion's family physician, diagnosed Leonard's illness as a touch of tonsilitis and a severe attack of the grip, but declared that there was no occasion for alarm and added that he expected Leonard to be up and about within a few days and ready to leave the house within ten days.

Dr. Rottenberg said the application of ice compacts yesterday morning had relieved the abnormal temperature which Leonard had when he was stricken, but stated that the champion's temperature in the afternoon rose again to 104. At Leonard's home it was said the champion complained of pains in his throat and severe pains in the body. Dr. Rottenberg said he would recommend that Leonard take a rest of several days upon his recovery because of the fact that the champion is run down.

SILVERS BEATS DE MARCO.

Joey Silvers, Brooklyn's clever lightweight, carried off the decision over Cuddy De Marco of Pittsburgh last night in the main bout of ten rounds at the Rink Arena, Brooklyn. Outboxing his rival at long range and guarding against De Marco's attack in close quarters, Silvers won seven of the ten rounds. De Marko made his best showing in the first, third and fifth rounds, the honors in the rest of the battle going to Silvers. The Brooklyn boxer weighed 133½ pounds and De Marco tipped the scales at 135½.

In the ten-round semi-final bout Paddy Ryan, Pittsburgh welterweight, won the decision from Georgie Lavine of Brooklyn. Lew Chester, Brownsville middleweight, won the decision from Dave Rosenberg, a sectional rival, in the other ten-round bout.

TAYLOR CANCELS BOUT.

A recurrence of an old injury to his right shoulder caused the withdrawal yesterday of Bud Taylor, Terre Haute bantamweight, from his scheduled ten-round bout with Nat Pincus, local boxer, which was to have been one of the features at Madison Square Garden Friday night. Word of Taylor's injury was received here yesterday in a message from Chicago and immediately Matchmaker Frank Flournoy started negotiations to sign either Joe Lynch or Eddie O'Dowd as a substitute for Taylor.

Tommy O'Brien, Milwaukee lightweight, will engage Jack Bernstein of Yonkers in the main ten-round bout. In the third ten-round contest the principals will be Harold Smith, Chicago bantamweight, and Jackie Snyder of the east side.

BROWER TO STAY AT POST.

Will Continue as Boxing Chairman Until Action Is Taken.

George E. Brower will retain his position on the State Athletic Commission despite the expiration of his term of office until his successor has been appointed or he has been notified of his reappointment, according to a statement made yesterday by the commission chairman. Mr. Brower added that in the meantime he will also continue to serve as Chairman of the board governing boxing in this State.

Reports that he contemplated retiring because of pressure of business were denied by Chairman Brower and when queried he professed ignorance of any plans to revise the present commission and appoint Commissioner James A. Farley Chairman.

DEMPSEY MAY BOX IN HENDERSON BOWL

GROUND BROKEN FOR ARENA

That Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, will defend his title in the proposed Henderson Stadium in Long Island City next Summer was the broad intimation made yesterday by Dan McKetrick, Vice President and matchmaker for Henderson's Stadium, Inc., the operating name of the proposed Queensboro plant, who declared that he spoke also as Eastern representative of Jack Kearns, manager of the title-holder.

This statement of McKetrick's was made at a dinner at the Queensboro Chamber of Commerce, following the breaking of ground for the proposed arena on the north side of the Queensboro Bridge Plaza. It was supplemented later by a telegram made public by Charles L. Henderson, President of the Stadium organization, who announced that the message was a confirmation from Kearns of a telephone talk McKetrick said he had with the champion's manager, arrived too late to be read to the guests at the dinner.

"Kearns communicated with me at 8 o'clock this morning over the long-distance telephone from Los Angeles," said McKetrick. "On the strength of our conversation I am in a position to deny emphatically reports that Dempsey will fight Tom Gibbons in the Yankee Stadium in the Spring and Harry Wills in Jersey City in the Fall. Kearns told me that he has received no offers for these matches and that he is not tied up with any promoter. Dempsey will fight in New York next Summer. You know my connections and you can draw your own conclusions."

The telegram, which Henderson said he received from Kearns, read:

"Now that the ceremonies breaking ground for Charles Henderson's new arena wish if possible the champion could be there to lay the cornerstone. But in my opinion the boxing fans will have a chance to see the champion lay out a few opponents in the same arena. As stated on the phone this morning, Dempsey is not signed with any opponent or promoter, as the papers have been quoting, and expect to do some business with Mr. Henderson next Summer."

Ground Is Broken.

Promoter Henderson went through the formality of technically breaking ground for the arena, by actually turning over a shovelful of snow while a crowd of fifty-five Queensboro officials, members of the Chamber of Commerce, boxing officials and enthusiasts and newspaper men looked on while a graflex clicked. The site of the arena, on the territory bounded by North Jane Street, Wilbur Avenue, Van Alst Avenue and Boulevard, was covered deep in snow, and Henderson used a long-handled snow shovel for the occasion as McKetrick, at his side, looked on. In the gathering which watched the ceremony were Chairman George E. Brower of the State Athletic Commission, Deputy Eddie Curry, Stuard Hirschman, owner of the property on which the proposed arena is to be constructed; Judge W. Bernard Vause, Alderman Samuel Burden, Professor William H. Yates of Manhattan College and John H. McCooey Jr., son of the Democratic leader of Kings County.

Plans for the proposed stadium provide for an arena with a capacity of 110,000, to occupy a plot 600 feet by 720 feet, located on the north side of the Queensboro extension of the B. M. T., which is elevated at that point. The location is about twelve minutes from Times Square, and is available by three rapid transit lines from Manhattan, as well as surface lines which pass the arena site. In capacity the proposed arena will exceed that of Tex Rickard's arena in Jersey City by 20,000, and the ground it is to be located upon exceeds that of Rickard's plant by 120 feet.

Brower Praises Arena Plans.

Promoter Henderson disclosed yesterday that the arena undertaking now is a tentative proposition, providing for a wooden structure for the first two years of its existence, with the likelihood that this plant will be replaced by a concrete stadium, possibly enclosed, at the end of two years. Work on the proposed arena is scheduled to start in March when the task of leveling the site will be started. It is expected to have the arena completed by Decoration Day, Henderson said. When the plant is available for use it is planned to promote boxing and wrestling matches, college football, basketball and various other sports, Henderson announced.

Chairman Brower commended Henderson for his initiative and referred to the promoter as "a right man in the right place in undertaking the venture. "In advocating the stadium and wishing Mr. Henderson every success I speak on behalf of the manhood of America," said Chairman Brower. I am glad to hear that the Stadium is proposed for all sports, not for any one sport alone, for I regard sports as beneficial to the country. Anybody who supports and encourages athletics is doing a public service. It has been said that the battle of Waterloo was won on the field of Eton. I think it is safe to say that the great World War was won on the college athletic fields and in our various centres of recreation. Any stadium where sport is encouraged, therefore, is to be advocated and granted, the support it deserves."

Judge Vause and John McCooey in addresses congratulated Henderson and wished the promoter success.

RITCHIE BEATEN IN TWELFTH

Johnny Leonard, Allentown (Pa.) junior lightweight, last night knocked out Frankie Ritchie, Bronx boxer, in the last round of their twelve-round battle at the Lenox Sports Club. Ritchie crumpled under a shower of rights and lefts to the face and jaw 2 minutes 11 seconds after the twelfth round started and was counted out by Referee Patsy Haley.

The Bronx lad gave a good account of himself in the early rounds, sending Leonard to the floor in the second session and holding his own through the third and fourth. But from the fifth round to the finish Ritchie weakened under Leonard's heavy fire, to succumb with the fight within forty-nine seconds of completion. Leonard weighed 129¾ pounds and Ritchie 131.

E. APPLEBY BEATEN BY KLINGER, 300-251

MATCH LASTS 43 INNINGS

Loser Has High Run of Game, a 54, but Slumps Near the End—Winner Starts Slowly.

Edgar T. Appleby, the international amateur 18.2 balkline billiard champion, defending his Eastern amateur 18.2 title, was defeated in the opening game of the tournament at the Recreation Academy, in Brooklyn, last night. Jacob Klinger, formerly champion of Southern Europe and well known in metropolitan billiard circles, conquered the international title holder by the score of 300 to 251 in forty-three innings.

As is indicated by the number of innings, the game was a slow one, and only at long intervals did Appleby rise to the heights of which he is capable. A run of 46 in the thirtieth inning, followed by his high run of the game, 54, in the thirty-first, was the high spot of the contest, arousing the large gallery present to its first warm applause.

Previous to these two innings Appleby played disappointingly. At the end of the twentieth inning he had made only 33 carroms. He warmed up gradually with runs of 14, 24, 17, 17, to make his two good clusters in the thirtieth and thirty-first, but thereafter slumped again, and on his twelve last turns at the table was able to collect only 34 points.

Klinger, like Appleby, played poorly in the early stages of the game. It was not until the eleventh inning that he was able to hold the balls under his control for any length of time, adding 21 caroms to his 23 made in the first ten innings. Another run of 21 in the twentieth inning relieved another stretch of blanks, 2's and 3's, and in the twenty-first inning he added 20 points more. His best work was done in the same stretch as Appleby. In the thirtieth inning, after Appleby, who won the bank, had made 46, Klinger came up to make 19, and, spurred on by the champion's 54 in the next inning, he made his high run of 42. A run of 26 followed in the thirty-second, and his second best run was made on his next to last turn at the table, a string of 38.

Klinger averaged 6 42-43 in the game, while Appleby's average was 5 26-43. Tonight Herbert Hamer of Sheepshead Bay, the youthful balkline star who has only lately graduated into the class A ranks, will meet Dr. R. M. Roscow of Baltimore, whose rise to the fore two seasons ago was one of the most sensational in the annals of amateur billiards in this country.

Klinger—0 2 2 1 0 2 0 3 5 8 21 0 6 2 3 0 0 1 0 21 20 0 5 19 1 4 13 2 0 19 42 20 11 2 17 0 0 2 5 0 2 2 38. Total, 300; average, 6 42-43; high runs, 42, 38.

PAAVO NURMI READY FOR HIS U. S. DEBUT

TO TRY FOR FOUR RECORDS

Will Attempt to Lower Indoor Marks at 1,500 Meters, Mile, 3 Miles and 5,000 Meters.

The eyes of the athletic world will be focused tonight on Madison Square Garden, where Paavo Nurmi, famous son of Finland, who is regarded as the foremost runner in the world, will make his American competitive début. Nurmi is scheduled to participate in two races in his first appearance before a gathering of American athletic enthusiasts at the indoor athletic meet of the Finnish-American A. C.

The unusual interest in the races of the lad who carried off four Olympic titles at the classic games in the Colombes Stadium, Paris, last Summer is indicated in the advance sale of tickets. Every available pasteboard for tonight's games has been sold. The ticket supply has been exhausted for several days, a record in the annals of the Amateur Athletic Union track and field sports which justifies the prediction that a capacity crowd will be at the Garden tonight to see Nurmi in his tests against the foremost runners of America.

Nurmi is scheduled to compete in a one-mile race which is to be held, according to the schedule announced, at 8:50 o'clock, and in a 5,000-meter run, which is on the schedule as the closing event of the meet, to be run at 10:30 o'clock. In these two races Nurmi will make his first effort at indoor running. His activities through a brilliant career to date have been confined to the outdoor running conducted abroad where indoor athletic facilities are not available. Making his races against the cream of America's running material at the two distances, Nurmi, confident of triumph despite his lack of experience in indoor running, will strive for four indoor records.

The great Finnish runner will seek to establish two marks in each of his races. In the one-mile race Nurmi has requested that the timers be placed at the 1,500-meter mark in order that he may assault the record of 4:01 3-5, made by Jole W. Ray, Illinois A. C. star who will be one of Nurmi's most formidable rivals tonight. Nurmi will strive to also shatter the indoor record of 4:14 3-5 for a mile, a five-year-old mark which also is held by Ray.

Nurmi's Followers Confident.

In the 5,000-meter race Nurmi has requested that timers be placed at the three-mile mark, where he will attempt to improve on the record or 14:15 4-5 made by Willie Ritola, Finnish-American A. C. star, two years ago. In this test Nurmi also will seek to erase the record of 14:54 3-5 for 5,000 meters, which was established by Ray on March 7, 1923.

So confident are his Finnish admirers in this city that Nurmi not only will capture both races but that the four records which are to be attacked will be surpassed, that the officials of the meet have ordered special sets of record prizes to be awarded in the event new marks are established. It was announced yesterday that, in addition to the medal which is to be awarded the winner of the 5,000-meter run, the games officials have arranged to award also a twenty-one-inch silver loving cup which will be known as the M. Propp & Son Trophy. Special permission to offer this award in competition was obtained from the A. A. U. Registration Committee, in accordance with the A. A. U. rules, because the prize exceeds in value that permitted under A. A. U. regulations.

Nurmi and his followers scout the theory that he will be affected by the fact that he is running two races in one night. They regard the rest period of ninety minutes which will be afforded the Finn as sufficient relaxation between races for the lad who won seven events, including trial heats, and created three records in the space of six days at the Olympic Games in Paris last July.

Nurmi had his last workout last night when he tested the special track in Madison Square Garden, over which he will run tonight. The wonderful Finnish runner took several speedy whirls about the circuit and expressed himself as to the degree of displeasure at the springiness of the portable ellipse. At taking the turns, however, Nurmi showed himself well trained. The border of the track had not been placed in addition when Nurmi tested the boards and the Finnish star, in response to inquiry, appeared relieved when informed that the track would have a border when he appeared there to race tonight. Ritola and Joie Ray ran a mile race yesterday afternoon and the former "Boston strong boy" is in excellent condition. Higgins, Hahn and Larrivee also are reported prepared for a keen race.

The race between Nurmi and Ritola in the 5,000-meter run is expected to live long in memory. The race will mark a renewal of the keen feeling of rivalry between the two Finnish runners which started at the Olympic Games when Ritola pressed Nurmi to a record before Nurmi won the 5,000-meter title race by a stride. Ritola has prepared himself especially for this test, in which he will have the advantage of indoor running experience over Nurmi, and the American-developed runner is said to be confident he will beat his famous countryman. George Lermond, Verne Booth, Fred Wachsmuth and Gunnar Nilson also are entered for this event.

Six other special events are scheduled for decision. In these tests thirty-two athletes who have competed in Olympic Games competitions are entered. Among the stars entered are Loren Murchison, Newark A. C. sprinter; Frank Hussey, former Stuyvesant High School sprint sensation; Cyril Coaffee, Illinois A. C.; Harold Osborne, Illinois A. C. jumper; Allen Woodring, Vince Lally, Ray Robertson, Clarence Fiahlve, intercollegiate jump champion; Emerson Norton, Tom Halloran, Jimmy Burgess, Allen Herbrich, Vernon Aschert, Ray Watson and Willie Plant, America's premier walker.

The Yale-Pennsylvania game next Fall will be the first between the two universities since 1893. The opening date has been given to Middlebury College of Vermont, replacing the University of North Carolina, which has opened the football season in the Bowl for the last few years. Yale will play Brown in Providence next season, this being the first time in the long history of football between the two universities that the game has not been played here.

N. Y. U. MAY NAME COACH TOMORROW

Athletic Council Expected to Appoint Football Mentor to Succeed Thorp.

The Board of Athletic Managers at New York University will hold a special meeting tomorrow afternoon to act upon the appointment of a successor to Tom Thorp, who recently resigned as head football coach after serving in that capacity for three years. This announcement was made yesterday by Henry C. Hathaway, Chairman of the Athletic Council at the university. From present indications definite action regarding a new coach will be taken at the meeting and it is probable that an appointment to the post will be made public tomorrow night.

No definite action in the matter has been taken as yet, Mr. Hathaway insisted yesterday, despite the widespread reports that the post would go to John F. (Chick) Meehan, who made a brilliant record during his five-year term as head coach at Syracuse University. Mr. Hathaway, who is Chairman of the Board of Managers in addition to being at the head of the Athletic Council, said that the final decision rests with the Board of Managers, which represents all departments of the university. He added that the N. Y. U. athletic authorities would be delighted to secure Meehan's services, but that the Syracuse coach is being sought by the University of Southern California and the University of Nebraska, in addition to N. Y. U. Meehan is now said to be considering offers from these institutions besides that from the local university.

Meehan is not the only candidate for the position of head coach at N. Y. U., nor is he the only one who is being considered, according to Mr. Hathaway. Among others whose names have been mentioned as possibilities are Harry Stuhldreher, quarterback of the Notre Dame eleven during the past season, provided he would consider a coaching position; Bob Folwell, former coach at the University of Pennsylvania and the Navy; Sol Metzger, former mentor at Pennsylvania and Washington and Jefferson; Eddie Butler, star Cornell quarterback in 1913, who has been first assistant to Thorp at N. Y. U. for the past two years, and Fred Dawson. The last named, who formerly coached at Columbia University, recently resigned as head coach at the University of Nebraska and accepted the position of athletic director there. However, it is known that he is anxious to return to the East.

"We are going in for football on a bigger scale than ever before," said Mr. Hathaway yesterday. "We have a large body of eligible football students and we want to interest all of them in the game. We hope to acquire the best available football coach in the country and with his assistance to put New York University in its rightful place on the football map."

Others to Leave Syracuse.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 5.—Syracuse University will be called upon to rebuild its entire coaching system next Fall, according to information from reliable sources today. Joe Schwarzer, first assistant coach, will retire and go where Meehan goes. John Vee Van Arman, Orange star of twenty years ago, who has been active in the Syracuse coaching system under both Meehan and Frank J. (Buck) O'Neill, is also regarded as certain to follow his chief.

This will leave the Syracuse staff without the services of any veterans and will call for a complete reorganization.

There is no chance, it appears, that any members of the present varsity coaching staff will be advanced to the position of head coach and the choice for the position now appears to lie mainly between C. W. P. (Pete) Reynolds of this city, at one time field coach under Frank J. O'Neill at Syracuse and who was for five years coach of Hobart's football team, and for the same period director at Bucknell, and Lew Andreas, at present director of freshman athletics at Syracuse. Both men are alumni of Syracuse, the university being an advocate of alumni coaching, and it will hardly turn to an outside school for its mentor.

N. Y. U. TO STAY IN LEAGUE.

Does Not Favor Leaving Intercollegiate Chess Circuit.

The demolition of the C. H. Y. P. College Chess League, due to the withdrawal of Harvard, Yale and Princeton, leaving Columbia, winner of the cup, alone, and the suggested new affiliation between the Blue and White, City College, New York University and Pennsylvania was the talk of chess circles yesterday. Until regular meetings of the seven colleges interested are held and official action taken, nothing definite concerning the new alignment is known.

It developed yesterday that it is by no means certain that N. Y. U., winner in the Intercollegiate Chess League, will enter into any agreement which may cause it to lose membership in that league. According to A. Frieman, manager of the championship team, the N. Y. U. students, while they would welcome Columbia into membership, would not be in favor of turning their backs on the organization with which they have been affiliated for the past five years.

A. E. Santasiere of the City College varsity quartet stated he thought City College would remain in the league if Columbia entered and the schedule were kept within reasonable limits. Frederick Casciato, manager of the Penn team, said that he had been approached on the subject of the new alignment and that, while no final action had yet been taken, the Pennsylvanians felt about it much the same as did City College.

CHAJES BEATEN AT CHESS.

Oscar Chajes sustained his first reverse in the championship tournament at the I. L. Rice Progressive Chess Club yesterday when he lost to J. Mishook in the sixth round. Chajes had the white side of a Scotch opening and succeeded in winning a pawn. Later, with a practically won game in hand, he made an overnight which cost him a piece. Mishook made the most of his opportunity and scored after forty-eight moves. Chajes's score is now 5—1.

In the other games C. Jaffe defeated Michelsen and tied H. Stelner for second and third places at 4½—½. Kupchik, having won from Simchow, comes next with 4—1. Pinkus drew with Berman, and Bartha and Kashdan adjourned their game.

Golf Tourney to St. Paul.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—The annual women's Western golf tournament to be held Aug. 24 to 29, today was awarded to the Whitebear Yacht and Country Club of St. Paul.

HULBERT ADDRESSES WATERWAY LEAGUE

GAR WOOD SELLS HIS RACER

One of the meetings important to those interested in motor boating, that of the Waterway League of America, was held at the Motor Boat Show in Grand Central Palace last night, the principal speaker being Murray Hulbert, President of the organization and also President of the National Amateur Athletic Union. Mr. Hulbert is interested in the welfare of power boat men who use the waterways around New York and told the gathering that the City Government would aid in every way it could the aims of the Waterway League. The league is an association of motor boat owners and those interested in the sport who work through the year for improvements in boating conditions.

Yesterday was a particularly crowded day at the Motor Boat Show. Both afternoon and evening sessions were thronged and the attendance was said to be better than that of a Monday in any previous show. The speed boats and sea sleds were again a centre of interest and the sale of one of the notable fast runabouts was recorded.

Sir Benjamin Guinness, sportsman and banker of London, purchased Baby Gar, the runabout placed on exhibition by Gar Wood of Detroit. Baby Gar is a beautifully modeled craft, said to be capable of mile-a-minute speed and will be used by Sir Benjamin Guinness for racing at Barcelona, Spain, where he expects to spend the remainder of the Winter. According to American motor boat men there is much runabout type among the European speed boats as Baby Gar.

Engine Has Twelve Cylinders.

The runabout is powered with a 550-horsepower Gar Wood engine of twelve cylinders. The boat has double cockpits and will carry six to nine persons comfortably.

One of the most interesting of the larger exhibits is that of the Sea Sled Company, Ltd., of West Mystic, whose finely built mahogany craft is almost in front of the main entrance. This square-ended hull has not only the strangely shaped inverted V bottom, but is propelled by means of surface propellor, the invention of Albert Hickman, who is connected with the Sea Sled Company. Instead of being submerged to a considerable depth as propellors always have been the propellor is practically on the surface of the water and apparently generates more power than the screws of submerged type.

This is a unique and revolutionary theory that Mr. Hickman has worked out and it is the first time it has been on display at the Motor Boat Show. It has been demonstrated, Mr. Hickman said yesterday, in the sea sled and other speed boats, that the surface propellor is subject to less resistance than the submerged type and can make high speed on comparatively low power. Mr. Hickman called attention to the fact that Rainbow IV., the boat at first declared the winner in the Gold Cup, was equipped with surface propellors.

Sea Sled Draws Interest.

The large type sea sled on exhibition at the Motor Boat Show is a beautiful example of the boat builders' art and has an exceptionally roomy forward cockpit, with the engines aft. She is said to be capable of thirty-eight knots with her surface propellor hooked up.

Another innovation at the show is what is called the "manoeuvring rudder," shown by the Kitchen-McNab Company on the mezzanine floor. This appliance obviates the necessity of using reverse gear on a motor engine. Instead of operating the machinery the simple turning of a wheel encloses the propellor in a globular, movable metal casing. When the rudder appliance is closed the vessel will go astern although the engine may still be going ahead. The movable metal casing also acts as a protection to the screw when the "rudder" is closed.

The second important gathering of the motorboat men this week will take place this afternoon when the annual meeting and election of the Regatta Circuit Riders Club is held at the Grand Central Palace. This club is made up of racing drivers and those interested in promoting the sport of speedboat racing. The annual dinner of the club will take place tonight.

MAMOUD CAPTURES THE CHOCTAW PURSE

HARVEY PILOTS 3 WINNERS

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 5.—Mamoud, S. C. Baker's chestnut son of Omar Khayyam and Sand Dune, this afternoon won the Choctaw Purse, a dash of a mile restricted to the three-year-olds, which featured the program at the Fair Grounds. The colt carried 101 pounds and Harvey brought him home in front of five others in 1:48 3-5 over a muddy track. He was backed to 18 to 5 at post time.

While the weather had cleared, the track was still bad, and there was wholesale scratching, which cut the fields way down in a number of the races. Favorites won three races. Harvey continued his brilliant riding with three winners, one second and one third, being unplaced only once. He won the second with Jedburgh Abbey, the feature with Mamoud and the sixth with Ever Bold.

Scratches cut the field in the race for the Choctaw Purse to six. Mamoud was given excellent handling by Harvey and showed a liking for the track conditions. He is a good mud runner and had an easy time of it after he disposed of Mabel C., winning by eight lengths. It was his second consecutive victory.

Mabel C. Is Second.

Mabel C. appeared to be done after going six furlongs, but came again and finished well to take the place by half a length from Tony Griffith. The Daniel colt was probably the best of the lot, but Georgie Cooper could not handle him and he was allowed to bolt at all the turns. Mrs. T. O. Webber's Pedagogue, the 11 to 5 favorite, ran all over the track and then quit to finish last.

The field for the Mohawk Purse a gallop of a mile and seventy yards for four-year-olds and upward, was shot to pieces by scratches, only three facing the barrier. The winner was the odds-on favorite, Prince K., M. E. Sloan's five-year-old gelding by Mont d'Or—Louvois, which was backed from 6 to 5 to 4 to 5 at post time.

Prince K. was outrun in the early part of the race, but he liked the going and gained in the stretch, finally overhauling the Greentree Stable's Pirate Gold to win by a length and a half in a driving finish. Mrs. A. Swenke's Al Boyd was through after going half a mile and was eased up in the last furlong to finish thirty lengths back. The race was run in 1:53 1-5.

Lubeck, the Bonaventure Stable's five-year-old gelding, was first home in the claiming dash of six furlongs for four-year-olds and upward, the opening number. The gelding got away well and showed a liking for the mud. He moved into an early lead and was in command of the field of twelve throughout the race, finishing an easy winner, two lengths ahead of Mrs. W. J. Potter's filly Remnant. The winner was a 20-to-1 shot.

Greening, Disqualified in '24, Will Not Try for Gold Cup

Harry B. Greening, the noted Canadian speed-boat driver, whose home is at Hamilton, Ont., was among the arrivals at the Motor Boat Show, at Grand Central Palace, yesterday. Mr. Greening was the driver of Rainbow IV, which finished first in the last Gold Cup race at Detroit but was later disqualified as being of hydroplane type. The disqualification gave the race to Baby Bootlegger, owned by Caleb Bragg of the Columbia Yacht Club, and brought the Gold Cup race to New York for the first time in twenty years. Asked yesterday whether he would compete in the coming Gold Cup race at Manhasset Bay next August, Mr. Greening said he did not think he would.

TROTTING OFFICIALS MAY CHANGE RULES

CLEVELAND, Jan. 5.—Stewards of the Grand Circuit Association opened a two-day meeting here today, at which it was expected steps would be taken to improve harness horse racing. Most of today's session was devoted to executive meetings of the Rules and Schedule Committees. Their reports will be submitted to the stewards tomorrow.

Several important changes in the rules were under consideration by the Rules Committee, it was understood. Among these were suggestions by the Harness Horse Racing Association which provide for classification of horses by amount of money won instead of time record; dash races at all distances and claiming races for tracks which desire them.

The association also suggested that all trainers, drivers, starters and presiding judges be licensed and that starting judges be empowered to control drivers after the race is called.

Indications are that a meeting will be conducted at Atlanta following the Lexington meeting. Walter T. Candler, who holds the Atlanta franchise, arrived today and applied for dates. The tentative schedule provides for the season opening at North Randall and to close with the Atlanta meeting in October.

At a banquet tonight all attending stood for one minute in silence as a tribute to Ed (Pop) Geers, dean of the drivers, who was killed in Wheeling, W. Va., last September.

6 TEAMS EXPECTED IN FORDHAM RELAY

Koppisch, Burgess and Masters Among College Stars Who Will Run Jan. 17.

The medley relay race for colleges to be held at the Fordham indoor track meet on Jan. 17 has already drawn the entries of Boston College, Georgetown and Columbia, and when the complete list is in, Holy Cross, N. Y. U. and Fordham are also expected to be represented in the event.

Georgetown will be strongly represented by Jimmy Burgess, national quarter-mile champion; Willie Sullivan, former Paulist A. C. star; George Marsters, national 1,000-yard indoor champion, and George Hass, intercollegiate 220-yard hurdle record holder. Sullivan will be the Hilltoppers' anchor man.

Koppisch, star quarter-miler of Columbia, Schmidt, Desch and Theobald will most likely represent the Lion. Desch is slated to run the 220, Koppisch the 440-yard leg, Schmidt the half mile and Theobald the mile. Fordham will be represented by Ballestier, Hammer, Gibson and Briedenbach.

In the two-mile special of the Fordham meet two other college stars have been added to the already brilliant list of performers. The latest to send in their entries are George Lermond of Boston College and Harry Helm of Georgetown. With the addition of these two well-known runners, the invitation two-mile event promises to be most interesting. Several other stars, including Willie Goodwin, New York A. C.; Verne Booth, one-time holder of the intercollegiate cross-country title and formerly of Johns Hopkins; Pat Kennedy, another Winged Foot star; Andy Shaw of the Glenelbe A. C. and Bill Cox, former Mercersburg Academy luminary and present national mile champion, have also entered.

HYDE IS NEW HEAD OF AQUEDUCT TRACK

The Queens County Jockey Club held its annual meeting yesterday and elected James H. Hyde President to fill the vacancy created by the death of James Shevlin. Mr. Hyde, who is 44 years old, had been identified with racing practically all his life, although he does not own and race a stable of horses. He knows the game thoroughly, however, and under his lead the Aqueduct track is assured of competent administration. The new President's father was also a racing man, having been one of the organizers of the old Brooklyn Jockey Club, which raced at the Gravesend track.

Thus it was that something of a coincidence developed in yesterday's election of the Queens County Club's officers, for Charles Dwyer, a son of Mike Dwyer, was chosen Secretary-Treasurer. Mike Dwyer, along with his brother Phil, owned a controlling interest in the Gravesend Track for many years.

It is understood that the new officers of the club will follow out the plan of the late President to make the Brooklyn Handicap one of the richest stakes in the country. It was Mr. Shevlin's idea to make this handicap rich enough to attract the best horses in the older division from all parts of the United States and Canada. He made his intentions in this matter public at the same time that the Westchester Association announced that it was going to increase the value of the Futurity to $100,000 in 1927, making it the richest juvenile stake, and that the Belmont Stakes would be made the most valuable for three-year-olds.

BERLIN SCANDAL DRIVES OLD BANKER TO SUICIDE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 5.—As a result of the financial scandal involving the Prussian State Bank and the Barmat Brothers, Leopold Friedländer, a seventy-three-year-old banker, committed suicide last night. His wife, who took poison simultaneously, is not expected to live.

Friedländer, a highly respected banker of the old school, was connected with the Bremen Privatbank, one of the many concerns absorbed by Barmat Brothers in their spectacular post-war financial dealings. The publicity attaching to their arrest and that of Friedländer's stepson, connected with another Barmat concern, apparently so deeply affected Herr Friedländer that it drove him to take his life.

Meanwhile, the Barmat case is hanging fire, as the Barmat Brothers have not been cross-examined. Several persons among those arrested in the wholesale police raid upon every one suspected of a connection with the Barmats and their business associate, Kutisker, have meanwhile been released.

BILLS TO AID WOMEN.

Members of National Party Appeal to Senator Nicoll.

The National Woman's Party is mustering its full strength in support of bills about to be introduced in State Legislatures in the interest of women. A delegation of nine women visited Senator Courtlandt Nicoll at his office, 149 Broadway, yesterday and put before him the reasons why they believed he should support several new bills in the next session of the Legislature.

One of the bills provides for making illegitimate children legal heirs of their parents, and making the father as well as the mother responsible for the child's education and support. Another bill would change an existing status which gives to the husband the sole right to determine the family domicile by giving the wife the privilege of naming her own domicile. In case of injury to a wife it would be provided, in another bill, the wife and not the husband would be entitled to compensation for loss of her services, or for her injuries. Another measure would provide, in case of the death of either husband or wife, that the other would be entitled to one-half of the deceased's real estate, although unable to will it away; the dower of the other. Another measure would give equal rights to men and women teachers.

TO GIVE ESSAY PRIZES.

A group of forty prominent North American men and women will present substantial prizes during the year to students of Latin-American universities for the best papers on pan-Americanism, "from both the cultural and commercial viewpoint," John Barrett, Chairman of the International Pan-American Committee, announced yesterday. Notice of the prize offers was cabled by him to the President of the Pan-American Scientific Congress, now in session in Lima, Peru.

TEST CONCILIATION AGAIN.

The conciliation plan of disposing of legal disputes was tested again yesterday in the Ninth Municipal Court, Madison Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street. Justices John R. Davies and Edgar J. Lauler disposed of several cases by bringing the litigants together, before they formally appeared in court.

The Justices explained that the differences were settled in an hour, and that if witnesses had appeared the cases would have consumed a day and a half. The experiments would prove of greater value if both the parties to a dispute would appear, according to Judge Davies, who said that a plan was now being devised to make it compulsory to hold an arbitration hearing before cases were tried.

DICKENS SET BRINGS $1,275.

First Day's Sale of Ellsworth Library Totals $13,570.

An extra-illustrated set of the works of Charles Dickens, including twenty-six first editions, brought $1,275 yesterday at the first session of the sale of the K. D. Ellsworth Library in the American Art Galleries. The afternoon and evening session brought a total of $13,570. The sale will be concluded this afternoon. The set of Dickens, which comprises fifty-three volumes, was bought by George D. Smith. Ten of the books are bound from the original parts, with many front wrappers preserved.

Howard Pierson paid $320 for a 10-volume edition of the Bible, extra-illustrated by the insertion of about 1,200 old prints. Kenneth Hewitt gave $425 for a manuscript of hours written and illuminated for the English See of Canterbury, in the fifteenth century.

LIBRARY SALE CONTINUES.

Part 2 of the Late Beverly Chew's Collection Now Offered.

The sale of Part 2 of the library of the late Beverly Chew was begun yesterday at the Anderson Galleries. The total receipts for the first session was $5,098. Other sessions will be held this afternoon and tomorrow.

Butterick Sales Policy Checked.

An order of the Federal Trade Commission directing the Butterick Company to cease forcing resale contracts and agreements with 20,000 stores which handled the company's patterns was affirmed yesterday by the Circuit Court of Appeals. It was alleged that the company insisted that the retailers should sell no patterns except those of the Butterick Company, and to sell only at an established price. The Court stated that the methods complained of amounted to unfair competition. The petition of the company stated that it sold 27,000,000 patterns a year.

CAIRO, Jan. 5.—Official information has been received from Jeddah to the effect that a Wahabi reconnaissance from Mecca yesterday reached the outer fortifications of Jeddah, but was repulsed without loss to the Hejazi forces.

CONTESTS BROOKHART SEAT

L. A. Brewer, Who Quit Race, Will Serve Notice on Senator Today.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The right of Senator Brookhart of Iowa to a seat in the next Congress will be contested by Luther A. Brewer, who filed against the Senator as an independent candidate in last November's election, but withdrew Mr. Brewer announced tonight that notice of the contest will be served on Senator Brookhart tomorrow.

Senator Brookhart, the Republican candidate for reelection, was opposed at the polls by Captain Daniel Steck, Democrat. Mr. Brewer, a "regular" Republican, had entered the race as a protest against Mr. Brookhart's radical tendencies. On the face of the earliest returns, Captain Steck was elected, but a recount put Brookhart ahead by something more than 700 votes and he obtained the certificate of election. It is understood that Captain Steck will contest the election of Mr. Brookhart when the new Congress convenes.

Mr. Brewer and his friends insist that it is within his rights to file a notice of contest. When he withdrew from the race it was with the avowed purpose of helping the Democratic nominee to defeat Brookhart, because of the latter's assault upon General Dawes, the Republican nominee for Vice President. At the time he called upon Republican voters to support Captain Steck.

Mr. Brewer said this evening he will allege that there were frauds and irregularities in the election, and that he also will maintain that Senator Brookhart cannot consistently take the oath required of a Senator because he has publicly declared that the Soviet form of government is superior to that of the United States. Mr. Brewer will contend that the Soviet form of government is inconsistent wit hand at war with the American Constitution.

RECEPTION FOR COL. KISCH.

Zionist Executive Tells of Developments in Palestine.

The Zionist Organization of America and the Keren Hayesod gave a reception last night in the grand ballroom of the Ritz Carlton to Colonel Frederick H. Kisch, C. B. E., D. S. O., of the Zionist executive organization in Palestine, who arrived in this country recently to interest American Jews in the development of Palestine. More than 200 persons attended the reception.

Colonel Kisch told of work now being done in Palestine. Other speakers were Morris Rothenberg, Chairman of the Palestine Foundation Fund, and Rabbi Meyer Berlin. Louis Litsky, President of the Zionist Organization of America, presided. Among others present were Paul Warburg, the Rev. Dr. Joseph Silverman, Professor David Yellin, the Rev. Dr. Hirsch Masliansky and Morris Samuel.

More Interest in Heavyweights.

Interest of buyers in the men's wear heavyweight lines has gained appreciably during the last week or so. They are sounding out sellers as to when the openings are to be expected and gaining an idea of the probable price levels. Sub rosa, there also has been some business placed, although the majority of sellers have determined to wait until the lines of the American Woolen Company are opened. Manufacturing clothiers have also been impressing on retailers the probability of a substantial advance on Fall clothing lines. This they consider necessary to emphasize, as the retailer to date has not been inclined to give much attention to the likelihood of an increase.

Dwight Mills Resume on Part Time.

CHICOPEE, Mass., Jan. 5.—The textile mills of the Dwight Manufacturing Company, which have been closed since Dec. 19, resumed operation today, giving employment to 1,200 persons. The mills will run five days a week. No wage cut is announced.

Gray Goods Start Week Quietly.

The break in cotton yesterday had a retarding influence on business in gray goods here. Some trading was done in print-cloths, but it reached no great volume. Sales of such basic constructions as 39-inch 68-72s and 38½-inch 60-48s were made, however, at 10⅝ and 8¼ cents, respectively. In the sheetings there was no noticeable change in prices, although there were rumors that second hands might shade a little if pushed. First hands stood by their asking prices, however, and bids of 9 cents were refused for 36-inch 5.50s. In some cases those seller who were bullishly inclined withdrew some of their goods, in effect, in spite of the break in cotton. In the heavy goods there were sales of 37-inch 3.65-yard drills at 10⅝ cents.

Percales Quiet for the Moment.

Buyers of percales are marking time for the moment, and the indications are that nothing of real importance will be done in them until about the time the wholesale dress fabric buyers gather in this city for their semi-annual meeting during the third week of this month. It was said yesterday to be probable that prices covering deliveries during March, April and May will be made at that time. The success with which percales have met in recent months, in comparison with some of the woven dress cottons, is taken to presage a generally active Spring season in them.

More Napped Goods Prices Soon.

Although it seemed certain yesterday that prices covering jobbers' lines of napped cotton goods would not be priced this week, the chances appear very much in favor of this being done about Jan. 15. Ordinarily about that time not a little business has been taken on the new lines, but the relative lateness of this year's opening is attributed to the fact that the wholesale fabric buyers will hold their semi-annual meeting here a little later than usual. Reports current in the market yesterday were to the effect that some trading was being done in a quiet way in advance of the actual naming of prices. It was further said, however, that the volume of business done in that way has been nowhere near as big as that transacted with the cutters-up before the lines used principally by them were formally priced.

May Do Less Promotion Work.

Although it is far too early for anything definite to be said, it would not come altogether as a surprise to men who have watched closely the trade promotion work that is done by big stores throughout the country during the holiday season if there were less of it done in the future. In many cases this work is said to have taken such an elaborate form and has been so costly that it has become something of a commercial Frankenstein. While it has increased sales, the increase has apparently not been of such size as to produce a proportionate increase in the net profits. It has been found that, in a great many cases, parents who bring their children to toy departments to see the various things done to entertain them visit those departments as "lookers," rather than buyers, and that the resultant congestion makes it difficult to do business with customers who want to buy. Another drawback appears to be the steadily mounting loss through damage to merchandise resulting, unavoidably or otherwise, from the crowding of toy departments that arises from the promotion work.

Ensemble Idea Is Spreading.

The ensemble vogue indicated for Spring apparently will not be confined to outergarments such as coats and dresses, but is also finding expression in other lines of women's apparel. Conspicuous in these at present are ensemble pajama outfits and also bathing suits. Both of these have already reached the retail stage, a leading store here now featuring them. In the pajamas the outstanding note is a floral pattern worked out harmoniously in both the upper and nether portions of the garment. A similar ensemble idea is worked out in the bathing suits with the addition of a long outer tunic for beach wear. The ensemble vogue is also having some effect on designs in the underwear field, manufacturers of such goods working on adaptable variations.

To Speak on Better Selling.

Richard F. Grant, President of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, will make the opening speech of the annual convention of the National Retail Dry Goods Association to be held at the Hotel Pennsylvania Feb. 9 to 13, inclusive, the association, according to announcement made yesterday by Managing Director Lew Hahn, in the effort to assist retail merchants to find a solution of the problem of "Better Selling," which the convention will concern itself with, believes it desirable to go outside the limits of the department store field to find a man who will state effectively the underlying needs. Mr. Grant, as head of the leading organization of business men, is expected to stimulate the delegates to spirited discussions in the sessions that will follow his address.

Change in Style Show Plans.

Textile and garment manufacturers, and not retailers, will sponsor the styles and fabrics to be exhibited at the Spring Fashion Show of the National Garment Retailers' Association at the Hotel Commodore on Jan. 20, it was announced yesterday by Secretary John W. Hahn. Cheney Brothers, H. R. Mallinson & Co., Inc., and Pelgram & Meyer will exhibit silks, while woolens will be shown by the Forstmann & Huffmann Company, the Botany Worsted Mills and F. A. Boehmann & Co. Garment manufacturers will make up the fabrics into the finished garments, credit to be given them and the textile concerns. This marks a change in the original plans of having twenty-five to thirty leading retailers choose the styles they believed would lead for Spring and standing sponsor for them in the show.

Appropriations May Be Larger.

Arrival of many ready-to-wear buyers in this market yesterday signified the real start of Spring selling in the local garment salesrooms. The number of buyers thus early was considered satisfactory, and manufacturers count on the activities of this and the next two weeks to yield a fairly correct approximation of what policies the stores will follow for Spring. Manufacturers are primarily desirous of learning how ready-to-wear appropriations will shape up. Buyers are being sounded out, and for this Spring, it is figured, the appropriations are held likely to be a little more liberal than last year, in view of the general expectancy of improved business. There is no doubt, however, that caution will again be a dominating feature of the buying of retailers, with merchandise managers keeping very close watch on purchase figures and turnover.

"Local Option" May Solve It.

The solution of a problem that is giving retail merchants considerable concern, more especially in the smaller cities, may lie in a kind of local option rather than in group action or general legislation. The problem referred to is that arising from the competition with these merchants of the direct-to-consumer type of selling. It was said here yesterday that, acting on a petition of the merchants, the proper authorities of an up-State city some time ago put a license tax of $5 a day on all house-to-house canvassers and acted pretty vigorously with those who failed to take out a license. It was further said that this apparently did not entirely prevent direct solicitation, with the result that recently the cost of the license was advanced to $25 a day and the penalties for evasion increased in proportion.

NATIONAL MERCHANDISE BUYERS FAIR

Grand Central Palace, Feb. 7th to 14th

Say the Executives of Noted Stores

A WEEK to do the work of months and years. A week to meet buyers from big stores, medium size stores and smaller stores in every nook and corner of this great United States. A week to meet thousands and show them why YOU should be on their regular visiting list.

That's what the National Merchandise Buyers Fair means. Hundreds of letters, telegrams and personal communications have reached us from retailers who will be here, represented by their buyers, their heads of departments, their important executives.

The American retailer is keen on KNOWLEDGE, long on comparison, eager to meet new people, make new contacts, learn of new sources of supply. The American buyer is the best informed individual of his kind in the world—because he wants to KNOW—and he will miss no opportunity to add to his knowledge, to broaden his usefulness, to increase his ability to get the best things and the best prices for the house he represents—whose ability to SELL is based on his ability to BUY.

So—bring on the best you have. Show your goods in the manner they deserve. Make a REAL display. Put a real SALESMAN in your booth, who can answer questions, explain details, give facts and TAKE ORDERS. Give service ACTIVELY at the Fair and you will GET active RESULTS.

There Is Still Good Space Available

If you want to be among the representative houses—if you want business—ACT NOW. Write or phone National Merchandise Buyers Fair, Room 1102, Grand Central Palace. Phone Vanderbilt 5850.

Pawtucket Plant Increases Hours.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Jan. 5.—Four thousand operatives, comprising a large majority of the workers at the plant of J. & P. Coats, Inc., thread manufacturers, started today on a forty-eight-hour schedule, while a smaller number began on a fifty-four-hour basis. For several months the plant has been running on a forty-four-hour schedule, but officials announce that improved business conditions permit the restoring of regular working hours.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Sharp Reaction in Stocks, Trading Very Heavy—Sterling Goes Above $4.76¾.

It was not, apparently, the traditional old-time "outside public" whose orders confronted speculative Wall Street when the Stock Exchange opened yesterday. In other days it was habitually expected that an extravagant bidding-up of prices at the end of a week would bring into brokers' offices, on the subsequent Monday morning, such a mass of enthusiastic outside buying orders as would carry prices enough higher to enable the "pools" and "syndicates" to sell at a wide margin of profit. But it has already been observed on numerous occasions, since the rising market got under way in November, that this old tradition was not holding good; that the "public" was quite as apt to sell in quantity on Monday if it did not like the look of the market, and that the riotous personal conductors of the Saturday rising market had to get out of their own position as best they could.

Something like this happened yesterday. Professional Wall Street seemed to have prepared for the violent bidding-up of the railway shares to support their own sales of industrial stocks which had led the advance last week. But the demonstration failed; the pressure of selling orders was so great as to drag down eventually even the railway shares. What was called "irregularity" prevailed in the first hour or two, but it ended in the breakdown of the professional resistance and a more or less demoralized afternoon market. Declines ranging from 2 points to 6 or 8 were numerous, and there was no great recovery at the end. Even the "averages" showed at the day's lowest a decline of 2¼ points from Saturday and closed with a net loss for the day of 1%. Total transactions on the Stock Exchange, 2,343,000 shares, were the largest of any day since Friday, Dec. 5, and the fourth largest since election day.

Whether yesterday's break in prices is or is not to be followed by renewal of last week's extravagances, the day's experience was useful; it was also highly reassuring, to the extent that it showed even the speculative outside public not yet to have completely lost its head. The question whether we still have before us, at some time in 1925, such a speculation as that of 1901, in which both outside public and professional Wall Street were seized with something like insanity, is doubtless still on the lap of the gods. But it is reasonable to suppose, from what happened yesterday, that the peril is at least not imminent.

By way of another indication that people are still in touch with the realities, wheat and rye prices broke 3½ cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade—wheat for May delivery selling 11½ cents below the high price of eight or nine days ago—and cotton, falling nearly ¾ cent a pound, was quoted a full cent under the high price of December. The one market on which last week's rise in prices continued with emphasis yesterday was sterling. It moved up 1½ cents further and, at the day's high rate of $4.76 13-16, stood at a level not matched since Jan. 17, 1916; a time when the proceeds of the $500,000,000 Anglo-French war loan were still being used aggressively to support the sterling market and when the subsequent "stabilized" wartime price had apparently not been decided on.

Perhaps an even more interesting comparison was that the London gold premium went to the low figure of the official record. No premium was quoted during wartime; until today, the lowest point reached since the London gold market reopened in 1919 was the 2¾ per cent. of Feb. 21, 1923, when India was not bidding. Yesterday's premium was 2¼ per cent., the rate at which gold was quoted in the American paper dollar a few months before our own resumption of specie payments.

MONEY.

MONDAY, JAN. 5, 1925.

Generally easier conditions prevailed in all departments of the money market, lower rates being quoted in some instances. Stock Exchange funds dropped to 3½ per cent. after openins at 4½ and interval of 4; outside trades were placed at 3. Sixty-ninety-day accommodation was more freely placed at 3¾ per cent., which was also the bid for the later maturities, a drop of ¾. However, trading still continued at 4 per cent. for this class. Paper brokers reported a better demand for paper, with a little more moving at 3½ per cent. than previously. The range was maintained 3 4/4@4 per cent. Bankers' acceptances were steady and without variation.

PREDICTS VICTORY FOR SUGAR MERGER

J. H. Post Says Proxies for Most of National Company's Stock Favor the Plan.

NO DOUBT ABOUT AMERICAN

Babst Likely to Be Chairman of Consolidation, but M. C. Brush's Name Is Also Up.

Asserting that approximately 80 per cent. of the stockholders of the National Sugar Refining Company had deposited their proxies with the management for the special meeting on Jan. 13 to approve the merger with the American Sugar Refining Company, James H. Post, President of the National, indicated yesterday that the management expected no difficulty in pushing the plan through.

It was true, Mr. Post said, as the minority stockholders' protective committee had alleged, that the property investment of the National was carried on the books at less than it would cost today to duplicate the plants, but he explained that, as the country has a 50 per cent. surplus refining capacity, it was a mistake to reckon values in terms of equipment costs.

Regarding the 1925 outlook Mr. Post said it should be much better than last year, owing to the industry's gradual readjustment to lower prices.

The annual meeting of the American, of which Earl D. Babst, is President, will be held on Jan. 14, two days after the National votes on the proposed consolidation.

The plan of what is believed to be a majority of the directors of the American is to make Mr. Post President to succeed Mr. Babst, and to make Mr Babst chairman of the consolidated company. Whether directors representing the Kidder interests in American will attempt to block this plan is not known. These interests were authority for the report that Matthew C. Brush, President and Chairman of the American International Company, had been sought for Chairman of the new concern.

The National Stockholders' Protective Committee says in a letter to stockholders:

"The committee • • • believes that this merger will not receive official sanction because of the decree of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, which prohibits the American Sugar Refining Company from acquiring additional properties or stocks of the National Sugar Refining Company.

"The committee again states its opinion that an appraisal of your property, including its net current assets, will show a valuation of approximately $30,000,000. The offer of the American Sugar Refining Company to purchase the assets of your company for $16,500,000 is therefore, in the opinion of the committee, wholly inadequate."

CAR & FOUNDRY PROPOSAL.

Directors of the American Car and Foundry Company approved a resolution yesterday calling for a change in the company's capital structure.

The plan, which will soon be submitted to stockholders, calls for the issuance of 600,000 shares of no par value common stock in place of the 300,000 shares of common stock of $100 a share par value now outstanding. Stockholders, following approval of the plan, will receive two shares of the new par value common stock in exchange for each share of $100 par value common stock now held. It is stated by the company, that for the present there will be no change in the company's dividend policy. It was further stated that each share of new common stock will be entitled to only half a vote.

Treasury to Withdraw $6,412,000.

The United States Treasury will withdraw $6,412,000 from member banks of the New York Federal Reserve District on Thursday for a variety of current Treasury needs. It represents the largest withdrawal by the Treasury in months.

Examining Your Investments

NUMBER FOUR

Effect of Callable & Convertible Provisions and Offers of Exchange

There are times when it becomes necessary for bondholders to elect a course of action, when such provisions as convertibility, prior redemptions, etc., are affecting the market value of the bond, or an advantageous exchange is offered by the issuing company.

A prompt and well advised decision in such cases will often result either in the making of a profit or the avoidance of a loss.

We are in a position to keep you informed in matters of this kind and to suggest the necessary action to be taken.

GAIN IN NET INCOME REPORTED BY ROADS

EFFECTED BY ECONOMICS

Gross Returns $26,181,450 Less Than November, 1923—19 Carriers Report Losses.

Net income of the first-class railroads of the United States for last November was $93,177,560, the largest for any corresponding month since 1916, and $6,456,930 greater than for the same month of 1923. This record was achieved as the result of economics in operation which brought the operating expenses down to $374,217,400, a decrease of $32,698,350, or 8 per cent. in comparison with the same month in 1923.

Although there was a sharp advance in the new income of the class one railroads the gross income was but $505,704,900, or $26,181,450 less than for November, 1923.

Figured on the annual basis of the tentative valuation at the close of 1923, the earnings of the railroads were 5.18 per cent. On the valuation claimed by the railroads the earnings were 4.32 per cent., compared with 4.52 per cent. in the same period of 1923.

Nineteen class one carriers reported losses in November. Of this number eleven were in the eastern and eight in the western district. Last October only eleven roads reported deficits.

Carriers in the Eastern district reported operating revenues of $239,688,000 for November, a decrease of 6 per cent. compared with November, 1923; and net operating income of $37,224,000 compared with $31,621,780 in 1923. For the first eleven months the carriers in the Eastern district reported net operating incomes of $425,125,750 compared with $450,864,850.

Operating revenues of the class one carriers in November totaled $66,840,000, a decrease of 1.7 per cent. compared with the same month the year before; while the net operating income was $12,360,000 compared with $10,422,350 in November, 1923.

According to a complete report except for the Nevada Northern Railroad, the carriers in the Western district had operating revenues of $199,196,860, a decrease of 4.6 per cent. from the year before; while the net operating income was $43,593,400 compared with $44,656,590.

STOCK FOR WORKERS OF NEW YORK CENTRAL

The New York Central Railroad Company announced yesterday that on Jan. 7 it would offer to all officers and employes in the service an opportunity to purchase New York Central stock on a time-payment plan. Approximately 175,000 employes and officers will receive the right to subscribe at $110 a share, which is $11.75 a share less than the closing price yesterday.

Subscriptions are to be received from Jan. 7 to Jan. 31 inclusive. A feature of the plan is the option of cancellation of subscription before full payment is made, in which case the company will refund the full amount paid in plus interest at the rate of 4 per cent. The official announcement of the plan said in part:

"The stock is offered at $110 per share, whereas the market price of the stock today was above $120 a share. The plan provides that the stock be paid for in monthly instalments of from $5 to $15 per share. During the period of payment interest at 4 per cent. will be charged on deferred payments and dividends will be credited to the account of the subscriber.

"Each employe is entitled to subscribe for one share of stock for every $200 of his annual rate of pay, but no subscription may be for more than twenty shares."

This is the second time that the New York Central has offered an opportunity to its employes to buy stock from the company. At the close of 1922 the company announced that on the basis of time payments and salary deductions employes could buy the stock at the current market price, then about $72 a share.

To Discuss Ticker Symbol Changes.

Partners of commission houses affiliated with the New York Stock Exchange will hold an informal meeting with the Committee on Quotations of the Exchange this afternoon to discuss changes made recently and contemplated in ticker symbols. These changes have caused much confusion, coming when the market was experiencing the greatest activity in its history.

Big Traffic on the Missouri Pacific.

The Missouri Pacific Railroad established new traffic records in December and in the year 1924. During December it loaded 97,182 cars of freight, 26 per cent. more than a year ago, when a record was also broken. During the year the road handled 1,527,490 carloads, more than in 1923.

Three New Directors Appointed.

Lockwood, Greene & Co., engineers of Boston, announced yesterday that Hartley Rowe, Walter W. Cook and William H. Rose had been appointed directors of the company. General Rose becomes a Vice President, with headquarters at Chicago.

Salvador's Customs Collections.

Salvador customs collections amounted to $297,644 in December, figures issued yesterday showed. Collections in 1924 were $4,444,540, which were seven times the requirements on the 8 per cent. customs lien bonds outstanding.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Sterling Rises to Within 10 Cents of Par at $4.76 13-16—London Backs Advance.

Another heavy buying movement in sterling exchange which carried it up to $4.76 13-16, which is within 10 cents of par, and, incidentally, the highest touched since Jan. 17, 1916, completely dominated the trading in the European exchanges yesterday. The advance started in London where a rate of $4.77 prevailed, but in the absence of any bids preliminary business here was arranged at $4.76⅞. A rally just before midday, however, carried it back to the high point of $4.76 13-16, subsequently followed by a reaction of close to one cent.

Dealers said that the manipulation in sterling is plainly the work of interests closely allied with the British Government in its attempt to put sterling back to the gold exchange basis. Buying was extremely active and heavy throughout, and in sums running considerably beyond the regular trading amounts. The premium on future bills also widened, an indication that purchasers were extending their positions. Selling came chiefly from the commercials, of which there is always a supply in the market, and from some who were taking profits.

Trading in the Continentals was always subordinate to the interest in sterling, rates fluctuating within narrow limits and in an irregular fashion. French, Italian, Belgian and Swiss exchanges were easier and at declines, while moderate strength and higher levels were made in Spanish, Holland, German, Norwegian and Danish bills. The Far Easterns were all strong on a rise in silver, the gains running from ⅝ of a cent to as much as 1⅝ cents, in the case of Chinese units.

BROOKLYN CITY PLANS $3,700,000 NOTE ISSUE

The Brooklyn City Railroad Company, which was among the first of the street railway companies to emerge from the series of yearly losses sustained from operation during the post-war period of high costs, is preparing to offer a new issue of securities. This will be the first public security offering to be made in recent years by a New York City traction company and was said by bankers to be indicative of a turn for the better in their earnings.

The new issue is expected to be in the form of $3,700,000 of one to ten year equipment trust 5 per cent. notes. Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., it is reported, will underwrite the business.

The Brooklyn City Railroad Company is controlled by the newly reorganized Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Company. Last years the surface railway system paid on stock owned by the larger company four regular quarterly dividends of 20 cents a share and extras carrying the year's return to 95 cents, against a return the previous year of 90 cents. In addition, the railway company declared a stock dividend of 33 1-3 cents.

Proceeds of the contemplated new issue will be used for the purchase of new streets cars and for other equipment.

500,000 People have Read this Book

YEARS AGO [illegible] wrote a primer on sound investments, no less, in other words, no obscure [illegible] just plain common sense [illegible] about the oldest investment in the world [illegible] on real estate, with the story of how it has come down through the ages to its modern form, Straus Bonds.

As the years passed, we have issued new editions of this book, the most instructive, and deservedly the most popular piece of literature this House has ever issued. Half a million people have read it. For many it has meant the turning point toward success. Thousands upon thousands have found in it this truth: that he who trusts his accumulations to hazard, lays by only chance of loss and resulting worry; while he who selects and cultivates one safe, sound form of investment, not only secures for himself and family a competence but adds that comfortable feeling of safety and satisfaction which can only come when wisdom and judgment dictate the investment.

It tells you—

How to obtain the best interest rate consistent with safety;

How and why the land and the improvements thereon form the most stable and solid basis for investment funds;

How mortgages in modern days have been made available for all classes of investments;

How the STRAUS PLAN safeguards bondholders;

How every possible factor of safety is checked by experts in our Loan, Legal, Engineering and Architectural Departments;

How every bond issue is supervised and watched to safeguard the bondholders throughout the life of the loan.

One man told us that to pay $10 for the information this book contains would be to buy it cheaply, but it needs only your simple request to assure your having a copy. If you are interested, not merely in earning, but in safely investing what you have earned; if you look forward to the time when income on your investments [illegible] If then write today for your copy of this book. MUTUAL OIL NAME TO BE 'CONTINENTAL'

Stockholders Also Will Be Asked to Change Par Value of Stock From $5 to $10.

HAS ASSETS OF $71,103,495

Maintains More Than 1,000 Service and Distributing Stations in the West.

A special meeting of the stockholders of the Mutual Oil Company has been called for Jan. 27 to ratify changing the name of the company to the Continental Oil Company and to make the par value of the stock $10 instead of $5 a share. If the change is approved by the stockholders they will receive one share of new $10 par value stock in exchange for two shares of $5 par value stock now held. As a result of this change, the outstanding capital stock of the company will be reduced from slightly more than 8,000,000 shares to around 3,000,000 shares.

One reason for the change in the name, it was pointed out yesterday, is the fact that about 90 per cent. of the stock of the Continental Oil Company has been exchanged for Mutual Oil stock under the merger which was accomplished last year. Continental Oil, which is a former Standard Oil of New Jersey subsidiary, has been doing business in the Western States since 1884, and has built up a large business under the trade name of "Conoco." It is the purpose of the management to preserve the good-will built up under this trade mark.

According to a statement issued yesterday, the Continental and Mutual Oil companies combined maintain more than 1,000 service and distributing stations in Montana, New Mexico, Utah, Idaho, Wyoming, Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska and South Dakota. They have a daily production of 17,000 barrels of crude oil, and 1,040 tank cars and 20,000 barrels of refining capacity at the plants located at Glenrock and Cowley, Wyo.; Florence, Col.; Chanute, Kan., and Supulpa, Okla.

The consolidated balance sheet of the two companies as of June 30, 1924, the latest date for which official figures are available, showed assets of $71,-103,495 after write-offs of more than $8,500,000 due to revaluation of the properties of the Continental when the latter company was taken over by Mutual. Current assets at that time were $21,-087,947 and current liabilities $6,010,554. The assets included $3,805,476 cash, $3,185,457 Government securities, $477,-035 notes receivable, $5,974,901 accounts receivable and inventory valued at $3,904,476. Properties and other fixed assets were valued at $48,827,932 after $28,552,789 reserves for depletion, depreciation and revaluation of assets.

PUTS INTRASTATE RATES UNDER FEDERAL BOARD

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—In a decision announced today by the United States Supreme Court the right of the Interstate Commerce Commission to regulate the intrastate rates of interurban electric railways was sustained. The decision was made in the case of the Villages of Hubbard and Wellsville, Ohio, which are touched by roads operating from points outside the State.

Today's decision was a reversal of the opinion rendered in the United States Court for the Northern District of Ohio. Associate Justice McReynolds announced a minority opinion in line with the ruling of the lower court.

The two Ohio municipalities brought action to have enjoined and set aside the order of the Interstate Commerce Commission which sought to bring the intrastate rates "so the discrimination against interstate business would cease."

Jurisdiction of the commission over the intrastate rates of such carriers was denied by the municipalities and the District Court granted an injunction on the ground that the commission had no power to regulate intrastate rates of electric railways, except in cases where the interurban road was part of a general steam railroad or engaged generally in the freight business.

"The question," said the Supreme Court, "is the construction of the act to regulate commerce, and we have reached the conclusion that the lower court was wrong. That the commission has the power to regulate interurban railways as they affect interstate business if it is unnecessary to pass upon."

"This court," said Justice McReynolds in his minority decision, "has held that the Interstate Commerce Commission has no authority over street railways. By the same line of reasoning it has no authority over these carriers. Congress has had the opportunity, if it wanted to do so, to say in plain language that the power is extended to control of these. It has not done so."

MINNEAPOLIS & ST. LOUIS.

Receiver to Buy Equipment to Rehabilitate Railroad.

As the first step in the program for rehabilitating the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railway the receiver will arrive in New York City on Jan. 14 to obtain the ratification of the various bondholders' committees to the purchase of five locomotives and between 1,000 and 2,000 new freight cars.

Purchases of new equipment will be made through equipment trust certificates to be issued by the receiver. A large percentage of the funds will be obtained from certificates that have a first lien on the equipment and the remainder from a second lien. It is understood that the second lien will be taken by the equipment companies.

The railroad has been in the hands of the receiver since July 26, 1923.

Despite the reports from London that interest might be paid on the 4 per cent. debenture stock of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway in the near future, representatives of that company say they know nothing of such an intention.

Inquiry regarding the reports from London resulted in the following message from a representative of the railroad to THE NEW YORK TIMES: "In reference to your message, the basis of interest payment on the Grand Trunk Pacific 4 per cent. bonds is the net earning power of the Grand Trunk Railway. Canadian Government has never discussed guaranteeing of interest on this security.

"I might say from reports of Grand Trunk Railway earnings for the half year ending June 30, 1924, point positively to their not being sufficient to pay any interest on Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company's 4 per cent debenture stock for that period. Books for the full year not closed. You can realize that the Canadian Government is not interested in stock manipulation."

$4,100,000 IN GOLD SENT TO 3 NATIONS

$2,500,000 Goes to Berlin, $1,100,000 to Holland and $500,000 to Switzerland.

$7,600,000 NOW ON SEA

Gold shipments of $4,100,000 from New York City to three foreign countries were announced yesttrday.

The largest was $2,500,000, which J. P. Morgan & Co. is sending to the Reichsbank in Berlin, bringing the total of gold exported for Germany out of her recent loan proceeds to $25,000,000. About one-fourth of the amount raised for her in America through the sale of $110,000,000 of bonds.

The Farmers Loan and Trust Company shipped $1,100,000 to Holland, which can now purchase gold profitably owing to the recent advance in the guilder above par.

The third shopment was $500,000 of coins sent by the International Acceptance Bank, Inc., of New York to its correspondent, the Swiss Bank Corporation of Basle. The Swiss franc is another European currency to go above par.

In addition, an unnamed New York bank withdrew $350,000 from the Philadelphia Mint. It was earmarked for export.

Shipments already on the water and yesterday's consignments total $7,600,000 for the first five days of January. December shipments totaled about $41,000,000, which was more than the total for the preceding nineteen months.

Five-Fold Safety with an Unconditional Guarantee

When you buy the 5½% First Mortgage Gold Bonds of The Mortgage-Bond Company of New York, you are doing more than merely making a good investment. You are buying five-fold safety for your capital, and your principal and interest payments are unconditionally guaranteed. Consider these facts:

Unusual Security: The property securing the mortgages behind these bonds is conservatively appraised to be nearly two and one-half times the face value of the mortgages.

Diversification: The diversification of the loans—they are distributed through twenty-two cities of the South and West—prevents the bonds from being affected by local depressions in property values.

Record: During the nineteen years of its existence, the company has made 10,700 loans in Southern and Western cities without loss, and no investor could lose in any case until the company's entire capital and surplus had been absorbed.

The company operates under the supervision of the New York State Banking Department and is restricted by a legal trust indenture as to the type and character of loan it can make. This trust agreement, together with other factors which make these bonds the soundest of investments, is described in detail in our booklet, "Creating the Safeguards of a Guaranteed Investment." Attacks Howell-Barkley Bill.

The Howell-Barkley bill to abolish the United States Railroad Labor Board has been designed "so as to avoid any public examination into the merits of a labor controversy," it was charged by Robert S. Binkard, Vice Chairman of the Committee on Public Relations of the Eastern Railroads, at a meeting of the Government Club yesterday at the Hotel Astor. Fred R. Marvin spoke on "The Genesis of Radicalism." Mrs. George E. Owens presided.

Under the plan recently announced by the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation, permitting employes to subscribe to 6,000 shares of the company's 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock, the stock, according to announcement made yesterday, may be bought on the basis of $100 a share.

CONTINENTAL MOTORS SHOWS LARGE PROFITS

Concern Has $2,502,523 After All Charges and Taxes, Against $1,937,453 in 1923.

The Continental Motors Corporation of Detroit, which issued its annual report for the year ended last Oct. 31 yesterday, showed operating profits of $4,654,375, against $3,896,196 the year before, and a balance after all charges and after allowing for Federal taxes of $2,502,523, against $1,937,453.

In the last year the profit before Federal tax deduction was $3,870,023, and after the deduction of $367,500 for taxes the balance was equivalent to $1.42 a share earned on the 1,760,945 shares of no par value common stock outstanding, a gain of 30 per cent. over 1923. There was set aside for depreciation of plants and equipment at Detroit and Muskegan $1,143,962.

In his statement to stockholders R. W. Judson, President of the company, said: "Recent developments in the agricultural and industrial fields have conclusively proved the adaptability, efficiency and economy of the gasoline motor as a unit of motive power. This has resulted in a substantial and growing demand for our specialized product by manufacturers of road-building machinery, portable air compressors, concrete mixers, hoisting machinery, excavating shovels and dredges, railroad equipment, mining machinery and also by motor boat builders."

The company reported net plant investment of $21,466,308 and current assets of $13,152,902, with current liabilities of $1,494,194. Cash on hand and in banks was given as $4,774,587, an increase of $3,338,288 over the previous year.

SEVERAL CONCERNS DECLARE DIVIDENDS

Montgomery Ward & Co. declared a dividend yesterday of $5.25 a share, payable Jan. 26 to stockholders of record Jan. 15, the dividend to be credited to back dividends due on the company's Class A stock. The dividend covers the last three-quarters of 1921, and leaves a total of $12.25 per share still due in back dividends.

An extra dividend of 30 cents a share, in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 20 cents a share has been declared by the Salt Creek Producers' Association, both dividends being payable Feb. 2 to stockholders of record Jan. 16.

An initial dividend of 50 cents a share has been declared on the common stock of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, payable Feb. 15 to stockholders of record Feb. 5. It is assumed that the dividend will be paid quarterly, thus placing the stock on a $2.00 annual dividend basis, compared with $7 a share annually paid on the old stock before it was split up on the basis of two shares of the new for one share of the old.

The regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share has been declared on the preferred stock of the International Nickel Company, payable Feb. 2 to stockholders of record Jan. 15.

Directors of the Miami Copper Company declared a dividend of 50 cents a share on the capital stock, payable Feb. 16 to stockholders of record Feb. 2.

METAL PRICES STILL RISING.

Copper, Lead and Tin Reach New High Levels for Movement.

Prices in the local markets for copper, lead and tin continued their upward march yesterday and established new high levels for the movement. Copper metal was quoted at 15¼ cents a pound for delivery in the Connecticut Valley during February and March. This is a gain of ¼ cents over Saturday. Demand, according to producers, continues on a large scale and the inventories of the chief consumers are said to be low. A significant development, it was pointed out, was that the small dealers are not offering concessions from the prices quoted by the larger producers.

The American Smelting and Refining Company announced an advance of 15 points in the price of lead, making the new quotations 10 cents a pound. On the New York Metal Exchange, tin was quoted at 60½ cents a pound, the highest price touched since this metal started upward after election day. Lead was quoted at 10¼ cents a pound on the Metal Exchange for prompt delivery, while copper was quoted at 15 cents flat.

Erie's Committee Fails to Meet.

The committee of the Erie Railroad, appointed to consider the leasing of the road to the Nickel Plate system, did not meet yesterday as planned, because some of the members were out of the city. A meeting may be held today.

EXCHANGE SUSPENDS L. S. OPPENHEIMER

MANIPULATION IS CHARGED

Basis of Complaint Was Trading in Stock of the Southern States Oil Company.

E. H. H. Simmons, President of the New York Stock Exchange, announced yesterday from the rostrum that Louis S. Oppenheimer, former member of the dissolved Stock Exchange firm of Miller & Co., had been suspended for two years. This action was in line with the contemplated disciplinary action approved by the Board of Governors of the Exchange at a meeting held on Dec. 10, which action was held up as a result of the filing of injunctions against the Exchange by the two partners of the Miller firm charged with violation of the rules of the Exchange.

The injunction against the Stock Exchange was obtained from Supreme Court Justice Wagner on Dec. 11, by Nathan J. Miller, head of the firm of Miller & Co., and Mr. Oppenheimer, a partner. The Exchange's action against Mr. Miller and his partner was based on a committee's report that the firm had tried to "artificially influence the market price of Southern States Oil," and that the partners were implicated with C. N. Haskell, former Governor of Oklahoma. The decision of the Exchange was to expel Mr. Miller and to suspend Mr. Oppenheimer.

The announcement made by President Simmons was as follows:

"A charge and specification having been preferred under Section 6 of Article XVII. of the Constitution against Louis S. Oppenheimer, a member of the Exchange, said charge and specification was considered by the Governing Committee at its meeting held on Dec. 10, 1924, said Louis S. Oppenheimer being present, and the Governing Committee having determined that said Louis S. Oppenheimer was guilty of said charge and specification, the said Louis S. Oppenheimer was suspended for a period of two years."

"The section of the Constitution referred to in the announcement to the board is as follows:

"Article XVII., Section 6—A member who shall have been adjudged by a majority vote of all the existing members of the Governing Committee guilty of willful violation of the Constitution of the Exchange or of any resolution of the Governing Committee regulating the conduct or business of members, or of any conduct or proceeding inconsistent with just and equitable principles of trade, may be suspended or expelled as the said committee may determine, unless some other penalty is expressly provided for such offense."

It was further stated:

"The substance of the charge and specification on which Louis S. Oppenheimer was found guilty was that Louis S. Oppenheimer, through the then firm of Miller & Co., participated in and actively assisted in the furtherance of a campaign involving improper transactions in the stock of the Southern States Oil Company.

"A preliminary injunction was granted on Dec. 11, 1924, by a Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, restraining the Exchange from announcing Mr. Oppenheimer's suspension, which injunction has now been vacated by said Court by the consent of the parties. Mr. Oppenheimer having withdrawn from all legal proceedings in the matter."

LOAD FIRST FORD FREIGHTER

Oneida Sails Today With Auto Parts for Assembly Plants in South.

The steamship Oneida, first of the Ford Motor Company's fleet of freighters to load in New York, finished taking on her cargo of automobile parts at her pier in Brooklyn, and will sail today for Jacksonville, New Orleans and Houston, where deliveries will be made to assembly branches.

The cargo consists of manufactured parts for 5,000 cars and trucks. This loading of an entire cargo of automobile parts direct from freight cars to ship is an innovation and has attracted attention in railroad and shipping circles.

STERLING AT $4.76 5/8, HIGHEST SINCE 1916

The pound sterling went "over the top" yesterday when on strong buying both in London and in New York it pushed above its former pegged price of $4.76 and established a quotation which had not been equalled since Jan. 17, 1918.

The pound went to a high point of $4.76 1/4 and closed at $4.76 5/8, the closing price representing a net gain of 1 5/8 cents since last Saturday. Since Jan. 21 last, when sterling sold at its lowest 1924 price of $4.20 1/2, the bill has climbed up 56 1/4 cents net, and at yesterday's close it was only 10 cents below its par value of $4.86 5/8. Sterling's most rapid rise has been in the past four months.

According to foreign exchange dealers, the buying yesterday was largely from banks, supposedly acting for British corporations and individuals who in the last two months have been withdrawing their dollar balances to London. There still was no way of judging whether the British Government itself was back of the rise, but in banking circles this claim was generally credited. A return by sterling to the gold basis in 1925 has been forecast both in London and in New York and a number of other European currencies are expected to follow the lead.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Sterling made further progress today, advancing to $4.77 1/4, the highest since the exchange was unpegged in 1919. Throughout the war period the exchange remained pegged at $4.76. The closing rate in London today was $4.76 1/2, a rise of 1-16c. since Saturday's London quotation.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—In connection with the steady rise of sterling exchange, which touched 4.77 today, the belief is growing here that a move is afoot to restore the gold standard at some future date and that the visit to the United States of Montagu Norman, Governor of the Bank of England, is possibly connected therewith.

The rise of sterling today was the result of persistent buying from America and the Continent. Gold bars, which automatically decline as sterling advances, touched 87.4 an ounce, the lowest figure since the war.

SEE GOOD YEAR FOR TRAVEL

Managers of steamship lines in the North Atlantic Passenger Conference yesterday predicted good business for 1925, although the only outstanding attraction to drak visitors to Europe was the Holy Year in Rome. They said 1924 had been good for passenger traffic but was still 20 per cent. behind 1913 for the eastbound travel, although second cabin and cabin traffic showed a slight increase. Westbound travel, however, which had been a virtual gold mine for the steamship lines, was only 10 per cent of what it was in 1913.

There was a misconception by the public, they said, of the recent agreement to eliminate all favors. Under this arrangement there was a reduction of 25 per cent. on all first class cabins above the minimum rate. This meant that a room with private bath on the Olympic which formerly cost $1,200 could be had now for $900. The same was true of all other de luxe accommodations on the big passenger liners. This concession only holds good until April 1.

Costs of operation, they said, had been added to by the 33 1-3 per cent. increase in the price of fuel oil. This would add $40,000 a voyage to the expenses of ships like the Majestic.

GRAIN EXPORT SMALL AGAIN.

Last Week's Outgo of Wheat 1,917,000 Bushels, of All Grain 2,466,000.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Grain exports from the United States last week amounted to 2,466,000 bushels, compared with 2,357,000 the previous week.

The Commerce Department in making public the figures today gave the following comparisons between grain exported last week and that of the preceding week: Wheat, 1,917,000 bushels, against 1,814,000; barley, 340,000, against 292,000; corn, 93,000, against 145,000; oats, 62,000, against 52,000; rye, 54,000, against 54,000, Canadian grain shipped from the United States last week amounted to 2,618,000, against 2,092,000 bushels the previous week. Wheat flour exported from the United States last week was 273,000 barrels, compared with 493,000 the previous week.

Expect Wilcox Oil Dividend Today.

Directors of the H. F. Wilcox Oil and Gas Company will meet in Tulsa today and it is expected that the regular dividend of 2 per cent. for the quarter will be declared. Earnings for the full year 1924 were approximately $2,000,000 after charges, but before deduction of depletion and depreciation costs.

OUTLOOK FOR 1925 BRIGHT, SAYS ECKER

The year 1924 witnessed many constructive accomplishments, and the outlook for 1925 is decidedly favorable, according to a review of business conditions compiled by Frederick H. Ecker, President of the Chamber of Commerce of New York. The one outstanding factor making for bigger and better business, according to Mr. Ecker, was the re-establishment of confidence.

"The former Allies, in agreeing to the Dawes plan, displayed a unity of action that has been more or less missing in European affairs since the close of the war," Mr. Ecker said. "There is less bitterness abroad now; there is less suspicion. There is more of a friendly interest in each other's problems; there is more cooperation. This indeed augurs well for the future.

"In the United States the uncertainty which was produced in the minds of business men by the recent challenge of American institutions was effectively removed in early November, when President Coolidge was elected by an overwhelming majority. This was the signal for a further outburst of confidence, which has seldom, if ever, been equaled in the history of the United States.

"The railroad situation during the past year showed decided improvement. There has been a change on the part of the public toward the carriers and their problems. There is excellent reason for believing that if any railroad legislation is introduced in Washington during the next four years it will be helpful and constructive legislation.

"From present indications the year 1925 will witness several railroad mergers. Better service, through economy of operation, will unquestionably result.

"The coal, steel, automobile, oil and other large industries, while not operating at capacity or at high prices, are in sound condition. The banks are in exceptionally fine shape and money is cheap. There has been little unemployment and no added inflation.

"The taxpayers of the country, in my opinion, will have their burden lightened again this year."

Substantial Declines Registered in the Major Cash Markets —Metals Higher.

Substantial price declines were registered in a number of the important cash staples yesterday as an aftermath of heavy markets for the contract grades. Wheat, oats, flour in the grains, butter in the dairy products, lard in the provisions and cotton and wool in the textiles were all sharply lower. As a group, the metals were up, lead, copper and tin going to new highs. In the groceries one refiner cut the price of sugar to 6½ cents, while others are quoting 6¾ cents and 7.10 cents.

Following are the cash prices for the principal commodities in the wholesale market at the close of business Monday, a week before and a year ago. Prices are those of the New York cash markets unless otherwise indicated:

BIG WORLD OUTPUT REACTS ON COTTON

The cotton market reversed its course of the opening the previous week and under the heaviest liquidation in some time declined over half a cent. A break of 125 points in Egyptian cotton abroad and evidences that the large world's production had become a more important factor unsettled sentiment in several directions. Contracts were supplied by local and Southern interests for the most part and it was estimated that a few brokers sold 75,000 bales during the day. Below 24 cents for the May position buying by domestic mills absorbed enough cotton to steady the tone and prevent further recessions. Prices lost 44 to 51 points.

The advance in sterling above $4.76 to highest levels reached since support was withdrawn during the war and exchange dropped below $3.25 made early Liverpool prices on cotton comparatively steady. This started the local level virtually unchanged from Saturday, though the March position in New Orleans opened at 10 points advance around 24.14. Initial transactions were at the same figure in both markets when compared with a spread of 10 points or more last week. For a few moments the market hesitated when selling operations suddenly developed on a large scale and continued with scarcely any interruption throughout the session. Brokers who had purchased blocks of cotton the week before over 25 cents for the March position became active sellers below 24 cents the first hour. Orders for 5,000 and 10,000 bales were frequent, forcing prices steadily lower, and it was not until May broke below 24 cents that price-fixing by domestic mills called for a sufficient quantity of contracts to offer more resistance. Though an unsettled stock market during the afternoon brought in commission house liquidation on every slight rally, the support derived from trade demand, coupled with covering of cotton sold earlier in the day, held May around 23.90 throughout the last hour. The break in October below 23½ cents, compared with 24.85 on Monday of last week, attracted more demand and arrested the decline in the next crop at 23.40.

Though spot quotations declined half a cent in most Southern markets, sales were the smallest in some time. Exports aggregated 30,000 bales yesterday, bringing the total for the season over 4,850,000 bales and about 1,100,000 bales in excess of last season.

GOLD IN THE FAR EAST IS HARD TO RECOVER

Gold that goes to the Orient is hard to get back, according to past history, and some concern has arisen in Europe over the recent trend of the gold flow toward India and China in large volume. During December there was taken out of the United States, for India, about $7,000,000 of gold and once there it is feared by some banking economists that the return of the precious metal will be found extremely difficult of accomplishing.

Disturbing consequences to Europe may result, according to The American Banker in a recent editorial, which points out that Europe needs gold now that political and economic conditions are being stabilized which in turn have given rise for hope that European countries will steadily draw back to a gold basis. "While this task is by no means simple," say the editorial, "at the same time the cooperation of the United States has promised to facilitate it very greatly. The huge American gold stocks are useless, expensive and possibly dangerous for us to keep. We wish to reduce them by exporting gold almost as much as Europe desires to regain her gold stocks. All that has been lacking is a feasible method of transfer which shall avoid pawnbroking on the one hand and philanthropy on the other."

But with India and China holding a large proportion of gold the task would be made more complicated, as in neither country can gold exports be stimulated by banking methods, solely, owing to the relatively clumsy credit machinery employed in each country.

"At present the Oriental absorption of the precious metals is a convenience," according to The American Banker. "Europe cannot retain them and America does not want them. Some day, however, they may be needed in the reestablishment of European credit and finance, and the only way to get them back seems to be to wait patiently until the monsoon blows the wrong way."

Income Tax "School" Planned.

For the benefit of bankers and bank clerks who have to work over income tax puzzles, a special course of instruction will be provided by the New York Chapter, Inc., of the American Institute of Banking. The course will consist of eight lectures, the first to be next Friday, and, according to the announcement, is "designed for those who have some familiarity with the Federal income tax, but who desire to become acquainted with recent developments." Hamilton Howard of Lybrand, Ross Brothers & Montgomery, accountants and auditors, will be the instructor.

To Consider Railroad Budget.

Directors of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad Company will meet today to consider the budget for 1925. Besides making provision for the year, the railroad will expend $27,000,000 to $29,000,000 appropriated in 1924. Attention in the financial district is centred on the possibility of an increase in the 6 per cent. dividend rate.

SCATTERED SELLING DEPRESSES WHEAT

Best Export Business in Weeks Develops, but Drop in Values Passes 3 Cents.

RUSSIA BIDDING FOR FLOUR

Based on Closing Price, the March at Liverpool is 22 Cents Over May Here.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—Scattered liquidation was on in the grain markets, and with pressure from local bears prices declined sharply to a new low on the present movement with the finish well toward the bottom, with net losses of ⅛@¾ cents on wheat, 1⅛@2 on corn, 1@1¼ on oats and 2¼@3¾ on rye. Several good-sized lines of long oats and rye went overboard at the last.

Breaks in wheat brought in good buying by commission houses and local professionals, while each upturn led to increased commission house selling and numerous stop-loss orders were caught on the way down.

Fluctuations were erratic throughout the day, although the technical position in wheat at the last was stronger than of late.

The development of the best export business in some weeks, with estimates of 750,000 bushels of domestic hard Winters, Springs and durums sold abroad during the day, suggested that the disparity between American and Southern Hemisphere markets had been corrected. Russia was reported to have made further purchases of flour from English interests.

Local handlers sold No. 2 red to the East at equal to 25 cents over May, delivered, while at Minneapolis fancy high protein Springs sold as much as 50 cents over the May, a new high for the season.

Strength in sterling is holding up the Liverpool market, and March there was around 22¾ cents over Chicago May, based on the closing prices in the two markets.

A decrease of 2,000,000 bushels in the visible supply brought the total down to 91,402,000 bushels compared with 94,491,000 bushels the previous week and 74,804,000 bushels last year.

Primary points received 977,000 bushels for the day; week ago, 849,000; last year, 929,000. Shipments were 755,000 bushels; week ago, 618,000; last year, 305,000.

Some of the leading local bears put out good sized lines of short corn during the day and, with stop-loss orders caught, the decline was easily attained. The increase of 2,271,000 bushels in the visible supply attracted attention, as it made the total 15,573,000 bushels, against 16,302,000 bushels the previous week and 9,708,000 bushels last year. Basis on spot was easy.

Primary arrivals for the day were 1,521,000 bushels; week ago, 1,009,000; last year, 1,025,000, and shipments, 494,000 bushels; week ago, 373,00; last year, 548,000.

Some of the best buyers of oats were on the selling side today and at times the market showed independent weakness.

GOOD YEAR AHEAD FOR ELECTRIC LINES

BUYING MUCH EQUIPMENT

Roads Are Being Modernized—New Financing Heavy—Receiverships Decreasing.

An optimistic picture is painted for the electric railways of the country in a survey by The Electrical World, which points out that they have just closed the most successful year in their history and, "encouraged by successes in financing new development undertakings, will advance still further in 1925 their nationwide program of modernization."

"More passengers were carried in the last twelve months than in any previous year; public relations were improved; old rolling stock was and is being replaced with new cars and other equipment, and the bus was more generally developed in the year," says the publication's review, "as a valuable aid to street and interurban lines."

On the side of finance, the survey shows that more financing for electric railways was done in 1924 than in any other recent year. The total of issues exceeding $300,000 was $85,085,000, or four times more than the amount sold in 1923. A new feature for the year was the employment of the passenger partnership, or customer-ownership method, to the extent of $9,750,000 by ten strictly electric railway properties. Eighteen companies came out of receivership in 1924. There were twelve new receiverships, the same number as in 1923, but the mileage in receivership was reduced in 1924 by 338 miles.

As against expenditures in 1924 of $262,700,000 for materials, supplies and equipment, the electric railways will spend $342,000,000 in 1925, it is estimated. As modernization of the lines proceeds, the survey says, their traffic and purchasing power will increase. More cars and locomotives were bought in 1924 than in any year since 1915. The total last year was 4,002.

TRUCKMEN SAY CITY BOTCHED SNOW JOB

Charge It Cleared Streets for Pleasure Cars, but Not for Business Traffic.

REMOVAL COSTS $1,250,000

Commissioner Taylor Urges Motorists to Have Chains to Avert Traffic Blockades.

The Merchant Truckmen's Bureau of New York wrote to Mayor Hylan yesterday complaining of the Street Cleaning Department's failure to remove the snow from downtown business streets. Thomas F. Barry, executive secretary of the organization, who signed the letter, asked why the commerce of New York should be tied up while Fifth Avenue and other thoroughfares used chiefly by private automobiles and taxicabs were cleaned first.

Mr. Barry demanded action by the City Administration to end the tie-up of freight which, he said, had existed since Friday. He characterized the snow removal work as a "complete farce" and "boneheaded." According to Mr. Barry, his organization represents "the rank and file of truck owners," who, he said, are having hard work moving goods through the city under present conditions.

His letter follows in part:

"We cannot help but take exceptions to the pitiful inadequacy of the preparations made for clearing the snow from the city's streets and the actual work done by the Street Cleaning Department and other departments directly supervising the work of making the movement of vehicles possible in this city.

"It would seem to us that this snow removal work was done with a view to pleasing those who drive pleasure cars and for the particular benefit of the bus lines and street railways. Fifth Avenue, today, and, in fact, yesterday, was as clean as the proverbial whistle. So were other thoroughfares often in the public eye. The waterfront, however, South and West Streets, and crosstown thoroughfares leading to both streets were and are in absolute disgrace to New York City.

"When the huge City of New York, with its army of street cleaning apparatus and much advertised system of ridding the streets of snow in a hurry, makes the work of snow removal such a complete farce as it is making at the present time, it is time that some one gives the situation a little personal and official attention.

"Is the commerce of the City of New York to be tied up for the express benefit of Fifth Avenue merchants, taxicabs and pleasure car owners! All over the city trucks are tied up and wrecked.

"This bureau has been a supporter of your Administration as long as it has been in existence and you have held public office. But when we see such an absolutely insane and brainless piece of work done as has and is being done on this snow removal job we believe it's time to make public protest."

The letter was made public after Mayor Hylan had left City Hall, so that no reply was made by the Mayor yesterday. Street Cleaning Department officials explained that they had been working on a definite plan to start at the centre of the city, cleaning the more important thoroughfares first, and then to work out to the edges, removing the snow from the outskirts last.

Alfred E. Talley, Street Cleaning Commissioner, informed the Board of Estimate yesterday that removing the snow would cost the city between $1,250,000 and $1,500,000.

Commissioner Taylor in a radio speech from Station WNYC last night urged motorists to equip their cars with chains so as to be prepared for future storms. Only in this way, he said, can traffic blockades be avoided.

OLVANY IS SILENT ON COPELAND'S PLEA

Senator Copeland's statement published yesterday in his Nyack newspaper, calling for a new Democratic State leader to appear on the horizon caused no reactions in Tammany political circles which were readily recognizable.

Judge Olvany, leader of Tammany Hall, refused to comment on the statement. Lesser leaders showed no inclination to discuss it either. They reminded each other that Senator Copeland had done the same thing before when he recently called Governor Smith the "Venus de Milo of politics," and implied he was, in the Senatorial opinion at least, more ornamental than useful as a State leader.

"He's done it again," was about the most utterance obtained yesterday from Tammany men in connection with Senator Copeland's pronouncement. They said they recognized the implication of strained relations between the Governor, on the one hand, and the Hylan-Hearst faction, with which the Senator is friendly, on the other.

Most of the "little fellows" of politics, however, seemed inclined yesterday to let the leaders do all the worrying that might be necessary in connection with the conditions suggested by the Copeland statement, while they themselves waited until somebody in authority told them what it was all about and what they were expected to do.

FIGHT RACE SEGREGATION.

Supreme Court to Take Up Negroes' Test Case in April.

A determined fight against residential segregation of negroes was announced yesterday at the annual meeting of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, 69 Fifth Avenue. James Weldon Johnson, Secretary, said the Louisville segregation case would come before the Supreme Court next April. This case involves a ruling of the Supreme Court in 1917 that no State or city can enact legislation permitting race segregation. The association contends that any agreement of white property owners not to sell to negroes, and to enforce such an agreement in court, is not in accordance with the Supreme Court ruling.

These directors were elected at yesterday's meeting, to serve two years: E. Burton Ceruti of Los Angeles, Cal.; George W. Crawford of New Haven, Conn.; Bishop John Hurst of Baltimore, Paul Kennaday of this city, Joseph P. Loud of Boston, Ella Rush Murray of New York, E. Ransom of Indianapolis, Ind.; Dr. William A. Sinclair of Philadelphia, Arthur B. Spingarn of New York, Charles H. Studin of New York, Neval H. Thomas of Washington, D. C., and the Rev. G. R. Waller of Springfield, Mass.

About fifty persons, including delegates from seven States and the District of Columbia, attended the meeting.

Lewis as successor to William Green, who resigned as Secretary-Treasurer of the Miners' International Union to accept the presidency of the American Federation of Labor. The appointment of Mr. Kennedy was ratified unanimously by the International Executive Board.

'MR. ZERO,' IN TEARS, SURRENDERS CHURCH

Urbain J. Ledoux lost the Camp Memorial Church yesterday, his "front factory" faded away and he admitted he did not know which way to "turn next." But he did gain a new recruit, a former social worker, who, as "Mrs. Zero," would do for jobless women what "Mr. Zero" does for workless men.

"Mrs. Zero" introduced herself at The Tub, 33 St. Marks Place, but her offer to form an auxiliary band was not definitely accepted. Ledoux said he would let his visitor know later on. She is Miss Emilie M. Vaughn of 2,880 Broadway, who said last night she had done considerable work cheering up discouraged women, chiefly unsuccessful stage aspirants.

"She described herself as the founder and counselor of the Wit's End Corner," said Ledoux, "and wanted to know if she could not join in our work, confining herself, however, to the needy ones of her sex. During the war she worked at Spartanburg, S. C., where the Twenty-seventh Division, composed of the New York National Guard, was trained. She also has worked among women in Philadelphia."

Accepting the suggestion of Walter H. Rollins, Superintendent of the Congregational Conference, Inc., which has charge of the Camp Memorial, Ledoux did not march on the church. Mr. Rollins told Ledoux that he had no personal objection to his use of the church, but that Bird S. Coler, Commissioner of Public Welfare, and Lieutenant James J. Gegan of the Bomb Squad had advised against it on sanitary grounds.

A suit to obtain possession of Camp Memorial was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by the Congregational Church Building Society, which holds a $15,000 mortgage on the church. The complaint asks that the mortgage be foreclosed to satisfy the loan. Under the terms of the mortgage it was not to become payable unless the defendant corporation failed to hold services as a Congregational Church for a year or if it "alienated the house of worship or any portion of the premises," in either of which contingencies the mortgage became payable at once.

RUHR ORDERS VEX FRENCH.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WIESBADEN, Jan. 5.—The bitterness of the Ruhr and Rhineland native population over the continued French occupation has been intensified by orders from Berlin applying restrictive measures against French private traders. Those occupying business quarters and stores have been threatened with expulsion by the German Housing Commissions, which allege urgent need of the premises.

Another decree has withdrawn the import and export licenses delivered during the Franco-Belgian administration of the railroads. Goods are ordered to be held up at the frontier while the owners are informed that their property will be confiscated unless it is immediately removed.

German firms, having ordered half-manufactured goods in France for finishing in the Rhineland, are not permitted to import them on the ground that they traded with the French during the period of passive resistance.

Although the attitude toward the French army is not overtly hostile, military supplies, mails and newspapers have been delayed on the railroads. These delays are not held sufficient to justify intervention by the military authorities, but they are causing unrest and dissatisfaction among the troops.

SHOCKS BERLIN COURT.

Prisoner Sheds Clothes and Dances About, Sprinkling Ink.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 5.—Three prisoners were quietly seated on a bench this morning in one of Berlin's criminal courts. They had been sentenced for counterfeiting, had appealed and were there to learn the fate of their appeal. Suddenly one of them, without the slightest warning, leaped up, pulled off every stitch of his clothing, jumped in front of the Judge and began doing a weird and complicated dance.

Such was the amazement of everybody in the courtroom that the dance went on unhindered for a minute or so. Then two attendants jumped for the dancer. But he eluded them, snatched up an inkstand from the Judge's desk and began generously sprinkling the premises with ink. He sprinkled some over documents lying on the Judge's desk, some on himself and some on the Judge. Finally attendants grabbed him.

"I won't," said the dancer.

So they dragged him still nude to a cell. There they again begged him to dress himself. He refused. So the case against him was adjourned.

TO PASS WATERWAYS BILL.

House Leaders Agree to Present Measure Providing $38,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—House leaders agreed today to call up within the month a rivers and harbors bill carrying approximately $38,000,000, and the McFadden bill to amend the national banking laws.

As reported last year, the rivers and harbors measure would make available $53,000,000, and the Rivers and Harbors Committee plans to meet tomorrow to reduce the amount to conform with the views of the leaders. It is understood that friends of the bill wanted the figure placed at $40,000,000, while the leaders wished it reduced to $35,000,000.

Just what items would be reduced was problematical among members tonight. Some were of the opinion that an item of $14,000,000 for construction of a breakwater at Los Angeles might be largely reduced. Others pointed out that a reduction here would be ill-advised as the city had agreed to furnish half of the amount.

It was also thought that some of the appropriations for work in New York State might be cut, while others pointed out that the proposal to expend $714,000 for deepening the channel at Newport News, Va., might be abandoned.

Reducing of the $16,000,000 recommended for the intercoastal canal along the Gulf of Mexico was thought probable by some, who asserted that the canal could be constructed by sections, and the amount provided in small sums.

Uphold Verdict for Henkels.

The decision of the District Court that $573,776 realized from the sale of 2,298 shares of the common stock of the International Textile, Inc., seized by the Alien Property Custodian in June, 1918, should be turned over to Max Henkels, the owner of the stock, was affirmed yesterday by the Circuit Court of Appeals. The interest on the amount, allowed by the District Court, was disallowed by the Circuit Court.

Four Landlords Held.

Edwin W. Becker of 4,673 Broadway, Sigmund Sussman of 714 West 181st Street, Mrs. Lodi Dennis of 2,096 Third Avenue and Mrs. Clemence Lemle of 344 East Eighty-sixth Street, all landlords of apartment houses, were held in $25 bail for special sessions yesterday on charges of failing to supply heat and hot water to their tenants. They appeared before Magistrate Jean H. Norcott.

COOLIDGE ASKS LAW ON REORGANIZATION

WANTS THEM BY MARCH 4

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—President Coolidge wants the program for reorganization of the Government departments, as outlined by the Joint Committee on Reorganization in a special report filed in the House and Senate last June, passed during this session of Congress. Letters expressing this wish have been written to leading Republican Senators and Representatives by C. Bascom Slemp, Secretary to the President, with the request that the legislation be called up as soon as possible. Plans are being made to comply in both branches of Congress at the first opportunity.

The letters, which were similar in language in almost every instance, went, among others, to Senator Smoot, Chairman of the Joint Committee on Reorganization; Representative Longworth, floor leader of the House, and Representative Mapes of the Joint Committee on Reorganization, who has charge of the matter in the House. Senator Smoot received the following:

THE WHITE HOUSE,
Jan. 5, 1925.

The President has been advised that the bill for the reorganization of the executive departments, formulated by the Joint Committee on Reorganization, was introduced into the Senate by you and is on the calendar. He thinks it important that action on this bill be taken at this session and hopes that you will call it up and press for passage at an early date.

Very sincerely,
C. BASCOM SLEMP.

Senator Smoot declared that he would call the measure up just as soon as an opportunity offered, and will seek to have it passed in the Senate.

The same assurance was given by Representative Mapes, who will pilot the bill in the House.

The bill before Congress referred to by the President's Secretary does not embody the controverted feature that has been much discussed in connection with reorganization, viz.: consolidation of the War and Navy Departments. This was rejected because of the conflicting views of Cabinet officials. A minority or supplemental report was filed by the Democrats on the committee, Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi and Representative Moor of Virginia. They opposed the transfer of the Bureau of Roads to the Interior Department from the Department of Agriculture.

If the bill should pass as originally intended it would go into effect March 4, or at the beginning of the new Administration. Provisions have been included that where agencies are to be transferred from one department to another the measure would not become operative until July 1, 1925, the beginning of the fiscal year.

The bill provides, among other things, the following principal changes:

Transfer to the Department of Commerce of the Bureau of Mines and the Patent Office from the Interior Department; Lake Survey Office from the Army Engineers; Inland and Coastwise Waterways Service, now under the War Department; and the independent National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, and establishment in the Department of Commerce of the Bureau of Transportation.

Erection in the Interior Department of two subdivisions, one on the public domain and the other on public engineering works, and withdrawal of all other functions. The supervising architects office would be taken from the Treasury Department and installed there and the Bureau of Public Roads from the Department of Agriculture.

Transfer of departmental solicitors from the Department of Justice to the executive departments which they serve.

Removal of the Bureau of the Budget from its nominal connection with the Treasury Department and its establishment as an independent office directly under the control of the President.

DRINKS WINE, DIES IN BED.

Wife Finds Her Husband Dead—Three Held in Boy's Death.

An investigation to determine whether wood alcohol caused the death of Leopold Vaiano, 684 Glenmore Avenue, yesterday was begun soon after his death, on the recommendation of an ambulance surgeon from St. Mary's Hospital, who said that Vaiano had died from alcoholism. Mrs. Vaiano said her husband returned home on Monday night and complained of feeling ill. He said he had been drinking wine. He went to bed, and when his wife went to awaken him in the morning he was dead.

Mr. and Mrs. Luigi Christeniello, 3,631 Holland Avenue, and Peter Pastore, 3,638 Holland Avenue, all of the Bronx, were held in $10,000 bail each in the Bronx Homicide Court by Magistrate Moses R. Ryttenberg on charges of homicide in connection with the death from alcohol poisoning of Lorenzo Vittore Jr., 6 years old, of 760 West 214th Street, the Bronx. The boy drank from an uncorked bottle he found on a table in his home and died in Fordham Hospital. The defendants will have a hearing on Jan. 13.

Addressing a large number of defendants in liquor cases who crowded the courtroom Federal Judge Francis A. Winslow said they could either enter pleas of guilty and pay fines or get jail sentences in the event of conviction if they forced the Government to go to the expense of trial. The announcement resulted in several pleas of guilty.

Prohibition agents raided a restaurant at 294 Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn, where they arrested Robert Gaston, owner, and Joseph Devito, a waiter. In another raid, at 353 Flatbush Avenue, they arrested Bernard Meehan. The three pleaded not guilty when arraigned before United States Commissioner McCabe, who held them for hearing on Jan. 15.

PRISON FOR BANK MANAGER.

Five to Ten Year Sentence for Embezzling $80,000.

Wallace L. Conner, a former manager of the Sumner Savings Bank, got an indeterminate sentence of five to ten years in Sing Sing Prison from County Judge Vause in Brooklyn yesterday, for embezzling $80,000 of the funds of the bank over a period of ten years. He is 50 years old, and lived at 29 Macon Street. His second marriage and a promotion in the bank both took place a short time before his arrest. Nearly one-half of the total loss was recovered by the bank from Conner.

"I am going to give you the limit sentence," Judge Vause told Conner. "Because I want the people of this county to know the court will see to it that their savings are protected from men like you."

The savings bank has been taken under control of the Lincoln Savings Bank, and has been reorganized as its Sumner Branch.

BIG LENIN CELEBRATION ARRANGED BY SOVIET

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Jan. 5.—While the entire peasantry throughout Russia, together with the Orthodox section of the town population, is preparing to celebrate Christmas this week in accordance to the old style calendar, the Communists' sections have already begun arrangements for celebrating the first anniversary of Lenin's death.

According to the decision of the Communist Party Committee, the anniversary will be marked by a new campaign for increasing the membership of the party. A fresh influx of rank and file members from the working class is wanted to strengthen the party and consolidate Lenin principles, at the same time serving as an offset to the recent discussion in connection with the Trotsky controversy. As during last year's campaign for new members, no members belonging to the intelligentsia or professional classes will be admitted to the party.

Meetings and conferences will be held throughout the country devoted to the popularization of the principles of Lenin by all Communist organizations in towns and villages on the eve of the anniversary of the day of his death. The next day, Jan. 22, which, since the Bolshevist Revolution, has been observed as a national holiday in commemoration of the workers shot in front of the Winter Palace, when thousands went to present a petition to the CZAR, will henceforth be dedicated to Lenin's memory.

Arrangements are being made for a multitude to visit Lenin's tomb in Red Square, which will be decorated with red and black banners bearing inflammatory inscriptions and slogans from Lenin's writings. Communist circles expect the new campaign for members to bring in at least 50,000 new disciples.

WILL DESERT THIRD PARTY.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 5.—The disintegration of the Progressive Party, which espoused Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin for President and Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana for Vice President in the 1924 campaign, will be the outcome of a meeting of the organization leaders in Chicago in February, it was learned here today.

The withdrawal of the Railway Brotherhoods from the La Follettette organization appears to be assured by a report prepared in Washington by the Brotherhood representatives on the National Committee of the Third Party.

This report will be signed by ex-Congressman Edward Keating, editor of Labor; Bert M. Jewell, President of the Railway Employes' Department of the American Federation of Labor, and Herman E. Wills, national legislative agent in Washington for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

Their action follows the course of the Federation of Labor at its recent convention in El Paso in deciding to withdraw from the Progressive Party, whose principles and candidates the Federation espoused the recent campaign.

The main purpose of the Chicago meeting of Progressive Party leaders is to discuss future plans as to forming the party on a permanent basis or reorganizing as a labor party.

CAMPAIGN FOR INSTITUTES.

Plans for a campaign in this city to raise $1,000,000 for Hampton and Tuskegee Institutes for Negroes were announced last night at a meeting for better race relations held at Town Hall. The campaign will be part of a nation-wide drive for $5,000,000, which, if subscribed, will be increased by $2,000,000 by George Eastman, the Rochester camera manufacturer.

William Jay Schieffelin presided at the meeting, and the other speakers were Dr. Robert R. Moton of Tuskegee, Dr. James E. Gregg of Hampton, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise and the Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick.

Dr. Moton said that in its attitude toward the negro the South in the last ten years had made more progress, relatively, than the North.

BRITAIN TO SINK MONARCH.

Battleship Scrapped Under Arms Treaty Will Be Used as Target.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—If conditions are favorable, the British battleship Monarch will leave Portsmouth tomorrow to be sunk at sea later, in conformity with the Washington treaty.

Some time will elapse before she is sent to the bottom, as it has been decided that she is to be sunk in the Atlantic, instead of the Channel, as at first arranged. She is to be destroyed by guns and torpedoes of the Atlantic fleet while it is en route from Portland to Gibraltar.

As the fleet does not leave Portland until Jan. 15, the Monarch will wait at Plymouth, to be towed to sea when required for target purposes. Only the officers and men of the ships officially present will see the sinking.

ACCEPTS LEAGUE LAW TASK.

Dr. Hammarskjold Takes Presidency of Codification Committee.

GENEVA, Jan. 5.—Dr. K. H. L. Hammarskjold, former Swedish Premier, has notified the Council of the League of Nations that he accepts the Presidency of the League Committee for the Codification of International Law.

League officials expressed themselves as particularly gratified over the cooperation of Dr. Schuecking, whose appointment was approved by his Government and whose book on the League Covenant has been highly appreciated in League circles.

$5,000,000 APARTMENT SALE

A real estate transaction said to involve an expenditure of $5,000,000 was made in the Cathedral Heights section yesterday. Out-of-town bankers and business men took over two block fronts of apartment houses at Broadway, Amsterdam Avenue and Ninety-third Street as an investment.

The properties involved include the Clayton, a fifteen-story apartment on the northeast corner of Broadway and Ninety-second Street, which was built by Anthony Campagna a year ago. This includes a plot 100 by 75 feet. Two six-story apartments on the west side of Amsterdam between Ninety-second and Ninety-third Streets on a plot 200 by 150 feet completed the deal. These were built by Samuel A. and Henry Blumenthal.

In part payment for the Manhattan properties the purchasers gave a tract of about 1,500 acres in Montgomery County, Maryland, which is just outside of Washington and is close to the Chevy Chase Country Club. The New York property involved was owned by the Astor family for more than fifty years and was disposed of in sections in 1921. The Woodside Realty Company and the Hub Realty Company sold to a syndicate of builders the southeast corner of Hayes Avenue and Tenth Street. This plot, consisting of more than twenty lots, is located in a highly developed residential section, and the new owners are understood to be contemplating the immediate erection of modern residential buildings.

TWO DEALS IN JAMAICA.

Silverman Estate Buys Garage Building, Held at $300,000.

The Silverman estate purchased a two-story taxpayer and garage building having a frontage of 125 feet on Fulton Street and 150 feet on Division Street, Jamaica. The holding price was $300,000. N. J. Nassof negotiated the transaction.

The M. Morgenthau Jr.-Everett M. Seixas Company, Inc., sold for Dr. William H. Runcie of Freeport, L. I., the property located on the north side of Jamaica Avenue, 80 feet east of Grand Avenue, Jamaica, L. I., to Robert Gidseg. The buyer expects to immediately improve with an up-to-date building.

OPENED WITH GOLD KEY.

The new Adler-Adelson Building, erected for the garment trade in the northwest corner of Thirty-ninth Street and Seventh Avenue, was formally opened at noon yesterday by Milton Adler, 11 years old, and Ruth Janes Adelson, 9 years old, son and daughter, respectively, of Louis Adler and A. N. Adelson, the owners. A gold key was used in the ceremony. The key was given to the Trinity Corporation, which formerly owned the site, on which stood St. Chrysostom's Chapel.

Suburban Buyers.

Lewis H. May Company resold for Isaac Roth to a client 1,364-6-8 Columbus Avenue, Far Rockaway, L. I., consisting of three two-family brick houses, on a plot 150 by 100 feet, held at $55,000.

Kenneth Ives & Co. sold a ten-acre property situated near the New Canaan Country Club, at New Canaan, Conn. The improvements consist of stucco residence and garage for several cars. The property, held at $35,000, was sold to settle the estate of Mrs. Esther H. Fleming. The purchaser is Samual H. Watts, who will make alterations for early occupancy.

Building Leased to Restaurant Co.

The Schulte Company leased the entire building at the southeast corner of 181st Street and Wadsworth Avenue to the St. James Restaurant for a long term of years.

The St. James Restaurant formerly occupied part of the building, and it is its intention to greatly enlarge its restaurant space.

Service Station Takes Space.

Tankoos, Smith & Co. have leased for Vincent C. Pepe 24 Morton Street and 52 Bedford Street through to Seventh Avenue, fronting 90 feet on that thoroughfare, to Manuel Leonardo, for a long term of years. After extensive alterations are completed the tenant will conduct a service and automobile accessory station on the premises.

Steam heat without solid or liquid fuel and without a furnace

EACH RADIATOR AN INDEPENDENT STEAM HEATING PLANT

For Clow Gasteam Heating Systems you don't need a cellar. You don't have to bother with stored fuel. You don't have to worry about a lot of pipes.

One hundred per cent of the fuel these radiators use is converted into usable heat. Best of all to many, they require practically no attention except lighting them when you need them and giving them an occasional filling of water.

When you have Clow Gasteam Radiators and want heat, all you have to do is turn a valve, and light.

They are as convenient and efficient as a kitchen gas range. An automatic regulator controls the flow of gas to the burner. There are no ups or downs of temperature—just a steady, even warmth.

If you need four or five of them in cold weather, you don't have to keep all of them going on milder days. And there is no danger of freezing and bursting when not in use.

Send for Designs and Prices

Clow Gasteam Radiators have been approved by over twenty years of continuous use. Telephone for a salesman to make a quick estimate of the cost of your requirements—or write for designs and prices.
